

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

THE COUNCIL NOT INVITED TO CELEBRATE.

Capt. Manly and Alderman Prettyman Indulge in an Exciting Debate Over the Invitation of the Schwaebian Verein.—Other Matters of Interest.

The following communication from the Schwaebian Aid Society was read at Monday's meeting of the Common council:

"To the Honorable, the Mayor and Common Council of the city of Ann Arbor:

"With sorrow and regret we beg leave respectfully to withdraw our invitation to your honorable body to attend and assist us in celebrating Independence Day at Relief Park. We do not feel at liberty under the conditions imposed by your honorable body to carry on and conduct exercises in the celebration of that memorable day within the limits of the city of Ann Arbor. Respectfully submitted

JOHN KOCH, CHRISTIAN SCHLENKER, FRED STAEB, GOTTLIED H. WILD, LEWIS KURTZ, Committee on celebration of the Schwaebian Aid Society."

Capt. Manly at this juncture took the floor. He said that he was one of the number who had voted with the few to allow the society to celebrate the Fourth as they had been accustomed to celebrate it for years. He could see no harm in such celebrations. He had lived for five years within a stone's throw of the park, and had never witnessed anything at the park that appeared out of the way. If the present administration was bent on enforcing every law on the statute books—whether good or bad—why does it not pay some attention to the club rooms, which are running full blast nightly until nearly morning? Frequently business demanded his time until a very late hour, and upon going home he met boys and young men carousing and reeling home drunk. They did not get drunk in the saloons, which close promptly when time came to close, but in the club rooms. It is in these club rooms and your society buildings where the boys get drunk and become drunkards. Why does not this administration pay some attention to those evils?

Ald. Prettyman said that he had voted against a clause in the invitation from the society, and he well knew why he did so. He had not made the laws of the State of Michigan, nor had he aided in framing one law on our statute books. When he entered upon his duties as a member of the city's council he held up his hand and swore to God that he would uphold the laws of the State of Michigan and that was why he voted as he did. He said that the German people did not feel slighted because drinking was forbidden at the park on the Fourth, for he had Germans tell him to do his share to help in enforcing the law, but it was a certain few who wanted to sell liquor because they would be financially benefited thereby.

The motion was laid on the table. The finance committee reported bills against the following funds: Contingent, $878.26; sewer, $27.50; street, $1,340.55; bridge, culvert and crosswalk, $1,654.37; fire $553.85; police $262.75; poor $127.28; water, $2,815, cemetery, $46.

Ald. Manly called attention to a sidewalk grade on Washtenaw ave., which if carried out would kill a number of shade trees. It made a cut of 2 1/2 ft.

Pres. Wines said he thought it was about time that the attempt to level everything in Ann Arbor was stopped.

The city treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $19,159.07.

Ald. Prettyman moved that an expert sewer inspector be hired, who, with a committee should inspect the main sewer, which passed anonymously. Pres. Wines appointed Col. H. S. Dean, Judge Cheever, Edward Duffy, G. W. Bullis and Aretus Dunn on the committee.

11,065 Ann Arbor's Population.

In 1890, when the census was taken, the population of the various wards of the city was as follows: First 2,462, second 1,676, third 1,593, fourth 1,619, fifth 719, sixth 1,926.

The census enumerators have finished their work and present the following figures of the city's population: First ward, 2,516, second 2,131, third 1,939, fourth 1,908, fifth 738, sixth 926.

Since the taking of the last census our city shows an increase of 1,705.

The small increase in the first is disappointing. The numerous residences which have been constructed during the last four years should show a marked advance, but such is not the case—at least it appears so from the enumerators' books.

There are 2,504 houses in the city and 2,764 families occupying them.

The Congressional Canvass.

Sir—I appreciate the fact that you are conducting an independent paper. I think, however, that your Republican patrons would be glad to have you say a word for their especial benefit in regard to the canvass which the various candidates for Congress in the district are making. Permit me to say a few words in behalf of a candidate whom I hear is in the field. I refer to Hon. A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor. I have been over Washtenaw county more or less this fall, and I am fully convinced that Mr. Sawyer is the choice of more Republicans in the county than any other candidate, and there can be no question among Republicans that he would, if nominated, make a strong canvass and draw a large vote. Mr. O'Donnell, of Jackson, and Mr. Spaulding, of Monroe, are both good men, but unfortunately there are certain things that would make it inadvisable to place either of these men in nomination. Mr. O'Donnell has made a large number of bitter enemies in Jackson county by his distribution of patronage. Then, too, there is a feeling which is becoming stronger every day that Mr. O'Donnell's six years in Congress should be enough to satisfy him. At least there are many who think it should, especially when there are plenty of other men in the district who are just as able. The one objection that is being urged against Mr. Spaulding is that he is not a 'hustler,' the general impression seeming to be that the Republicans can elect their man this fall if a lively canvass is made, and I am sure Mr. Sawyer is the man to make just such a canvass. I certainly think the Republicans of this county should at least unite upon Mr. Sawyer. If they will do so, his chances of securing the nomination will be the very best, while none of the other candidates would stand any better or even as good a chance of election at the polls. REPUBLICAN WORKER.

The Medics' Banquet.

Last week the medical faculty gave a banquet to the guests of the department. The senior medics were invited. H. G. Prettyman was the caterer for the occasion, the banquet being given at his residence. Mr. Prettyman placed his entire house at the disposal of guests. A bountiful dinner was spread in the dining rooms. At the appointed time Mr. Prettyman notified those in charge of the entertainment that dinner was ready. The guests were at the time distributed in different parts of the building. Those in charge, and others who happened to be in the same room, filed down to the dining table and had the banquet all to themselves. A number of the seniors, who happened to be in other rooms and who were gentlemen enough not to crowd into the dining room before they were invited, were either entirely forgotten or ignored. Some fifteen or twenty waited patiently for nearly two hours, hoping they would at least be invited to the second table, and be permitted to gather up the crumbs which might have been left by their superiors who had preceded them. But alas, they were disappointed, and after a two hours' wait they came to the conclusion that they were not "in it," and left the house in high dudgeon, and sought their various boarding houses and dined on crackers and water. Evidently somebody had blundered. Some of the disgruntled members were so very much disgruntled that they have been declaring that those who had the arrangement in charge must have had a little special banquet all by themselves just a little while before.

Company A Called Out.

At 3:45 o'clock Tuesday morning John C. Fisher Captain of Co. A, received the following order:

Lansing, July 3, 1894: Capt. John C. Fisher, Commanding Co. A, M. N. G.:—Assemble Co. A at armory, in fatigue uniform. Get ammunition ready. Have every man there. Await orders.

W. W. COOK, Ass't Adjutant General, M. N. G.

The cause of the order was the trouble the strikers at Battle Creek were creating by not allowing passenger trains carrying the U. S. mail to leave that city. Fifty-four members soon reported for duty at the armory, and breakfasted at the Germania hotel. The company has not yet left the city and probably will not, as it is expected that matters at Battle Creek will be adjusted without the aid of the militia.

The company marched to the depot yesterday morning, intending to go to Lansing, but a dispatch informed them that they must not leave the city until ordered to do so from headquarters.

Ez. Norris.

[Adrian Press.]

At a late meeting of the Ann Arbor council a numerous signed petition was presented praying the honorable dads of the burg to grant to the Schwaebische Unterstuetzungs-Verein (an Irish farmers' club) permission to celebrate the 4th of July, in that city, and the right to have a picnic in Relief Park "with the usual privileges." There was more hidden meaning in that little phrase "usual privileges" than there is in a monometalist's platform that declares for gold and silver for money, "on such terms as shall secure a parity." The council men cocked their heads to one side, shut one eye and mused. What did that "usual privileges" mean? Several of the aldermen were very silent, but some Republican timidly suggested that the Schwaebischers might wish to extend the watermains through a beer keg, and argued that to pass the resolution would be construed as an official permit to violate the state liquor law, and therefore he favored eliminating the implied franchise. Therefore, the Schwaebische Unterstuetzungs-Verein will have to celebrate in the unusual manner, and the aldermen must bezahlen zum preis for what beer they drank that day in der Stadt Ann Arbor, Vereinigen Staaten und wenn Sie es nicht uebersetzen koennen, they will call on Ez Norris to explain.

DEMOCRATS OF MICHIGAN IN CONVENTION.

Spencer O. Fisher, of Bay City, the Choice for Governor—Edwin F. Uhl, of Grand Rapids, and John Strong to Run for the Long and Short Term S. nominations.

The Democrats of Michigan met in convention at Grand Rapids, and named a state ticket and two candidates for the United States senate—for the long and short terms.

Chairman Daniel J. Campau called the convention to order, and Rev. M. Goodman opened with prayer. Acting Secretary H. J. Coburn, of Detroit, read the call to the convention. Chairman Campau then made his opening address, which was in substance as follows:

"It is gratifying to reflect that here, in this city, four years ago, was placed in nomination by the Democratic party a ticket that won victory at the polls, and here today, with wisdom counsel prevailing and individual predictions made subservient to the party's welfare, we can place in nomination men who will win in November. It has been my fond hope to see strength, upbraid and perfect the party organization in every election district in this state. With organization there is nothing we cannot accomplish. Democratic party is invincible. Without it we are at sea, rudderless—Michigan is in the hands of the enemy. To this end we have had the faithful co-operation and unselfish service of the various committees of the state—congressional, district, county, city. Let our work here today be tempered with wise counsel, justice, fairness and with the sole object in view, our party's welfare. Let us eschew personalities. They should not enter into our deliberations. Our principles of faith and party platform should guide us in our work. If we formulate our platform in accordance with the wishes of the masses, we declare that silver should take its place on an equality with gold as a monetary metal, without discrimination, one against the other; we take no issue with the tariff reform; if we give the people what they want, and give them the candidates they want; men whose public records and personal character are Democratic platforms to themselves, and whose very names will be harbingers of victory, we need not fear the result. The Democratic party is as truly the party of the people today as it was on the day of its birth, nearly a century ago."

As he concluded Mr. Campau named Wm. F. McKnight as temporary chairman, and he was escorted to the chair.

HON. SPENCER O. FISHER.

Mr. McKnight in his speech thanking the convention for the honor, said that the assertions in the Republican press of the state that there were divisions and dissensions in the Democratic ranks were utter falsehoods which were to distract the attention of the people from the war which is on in their own ranks. He then said the convention was assembled not only to nominate men for various offices, but also to reaffirm allegiance to the principles of our government and to tender a vote of confidence to President Grover Cleveland. Mr. McKnight praised the national platform adopted in Chicago two years ago; laid upon the Republican party the blame for the present condition of financial and industrial affairs; affirmed a pride in the dispatch of business by the Democratic house of representatives; and deplored the tardy methods of the senate. He concluded by calling upon Democrats to stand firm and triumphant vindication of Democratic principles would follow.

Mr. Turner, of Kent, moved that the usual committees be appointed. Mr. Murphy, of Port Huron, presented the objections of 28 delegates to the persons appointed to act on committees. There were contestants in four counties: Ottawa, Muskegon, Tuscola and St. Clair and while considerable feeling was shown and hot words passed there was not a very great amount of strife. Chairman McKnight read a telegram from Congressman Levi T. Griffin, of the First district. A motion was made to adjourn until 3 o'clock and a substitute to make it 2 o'clock was offered. There was a contest on this which resulted in the defeat of the substitute.

It was long after 4 o'clock before any attempt was made to resume and there was a great deal of impatience shown when the temporary chairman announced that the committee on credentials was not ready to report and it was impossible to proceed until they were ready. At last the committee on permanent organization was ready to report and the convention decided to proceed without the credentials committee. Elliott G. Stevenson, of Oakland, was made permanent chairman and C. Kirke White, of Owosso, permanent secretary. Mr. Stevenson simply thanked the convention for the honor and then there was another halt in the proceedings.

Don. M. Dickinson then proposed that while they were waiting a telegram be sent to President Cleveland and it was drafted as follows:

To the President, Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C.: The Democracy of Michigan, in convention assembled in the city of Grand Rapids, greet you with the renewed expressions of their confidence, devotion and their faith in your high purposes. Your intrepid courage and your far-seeing statesmanship has been an abiding one which has grown stronger with the years in adversity as well as prosperity, since 1884, when you became its chosen leader. The faithless may remain silent or betray in the time of trial, but we of Michigan, appreciating your great responsibility, your steady patience and your unflinching stand of the right against all comers, send you the good cheer that honest minds can give to one who amid great difficulties is doing his duty bravely and well.

After a few speeches by prominent Democrats to fill in time, Hon. W. R. Burt moved that the convention proceed with the nominations. The motion was carried. M. M. Houseman, of the fifth district, made a neat speech, endorsing Hon. Edwin F. Uhl for long term senator. The nomination was readily endorsed by delegates from the Eleventh and Twelfth districts and there being no other names the nomination of Mr. Uhl was made unanimous. Chas. R. Whitman, of the second district, presented the name of ex-Lieut.

Gov. Strong for short term senator and it was made unanimous.

On motion of I. M. Weston the nominating speeches for governor were received. Carlos E. Warner stated that the First district nominated Spencer O. Fisher. Every district supported the nomination up to the Tenth, when Mr. Wendock, in supporting the candidate, said he was a man of unparalleled strength, and described his splendid political career. "I move his nomination by a rising vote," said Mr. Wendock. Peter White, on behalf of the Twelfth, moved that Mr. Fisher's nomination be made unanimous. "All in favor of making the nomination signify by a rising vote." Everyone responded with a cheer of exultation. A committee was appointed to escort the candidate to the platform, but Mr. Fisher was not in the hall. When Mr. Fisher entered the hall, amid cheers, the band began playing the "Fisher's Hornpipe." Three cheers for Spencer O. Fisher," shouted someone. The nominee thanked the delegates as soon as the great noise had ceased. He said he appreciated the honor. He was happy to have labored in the same party which had for its head Grover Cleveland. In the course of his remarks he paid a high tribute to representative Democrats throughout the state. The resolutions, he said, had been read by him and he could endorse them. He had received the nomination without any solicitation, and he asked the support of the entire Democracy. He stated he was in favor of unlimited free coinage of silver; tariff reform as laid down by the Wilson bill; free lumber, free wool, free iron ore and free coal, announcements which were received with the greatest satisfaction. He was in favor of an income tax, and in favor of the election of senators by the people.

The committee of resolutions is ready to report," announced the chairman and Chairman Black read the platform of which the following is the substance: The Democratic party of the state of Michigan, in convention assembled, declare that we believe there are at this time certain principles to be settled by the people, through their government, and that such principles are important and should be approached and considered with courage, candor and decorum. Therefore, with malice toward none and with charity for all, we resolve as follows: For the expenditure of public money only for actual necessities of the government. Denounce the taxation upon consumption of articles as advocated by the protection system of the Republican party as entering into the pocket of the expense of the poor, and we therefore reaffirm the principles of the Democratic national convention in Chicago in 1892. We declare in favor of the free, unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio that will permit the debtors to pay their debts upon the same basis in which they were contracted. Demand that all issues of circulating medium be under act of congress and full legal tender. Favor honest and that changes in municipal charters be submitted for the approval of the people and condemn local gerrymanders by the Republican legislature.

Oppose any effort to make religion a test of eligibility to hold office. Whereas, it is charged that certain corporations in the upper part of the state, dominated by English and eastern capital have maintained possession of many thousands of acres of valuable timber and mineral lands, the equitable title whereof is in the United States. Resolved, That we call upon the present administration and our senators and representatives to take such measures as will insure the speedy restoration of all such lands to the public domain for the benefit of actual settlers, thus carrying out in full the policy inaugurated by President Cleveland in his first administration. Oppose trusts and "watered stocks" and demand practical and direct laws to put an end to such practices. Take honest dollars from people by combination without return in value of any kind. Recommend the nomination of candidates for senator by the representatives of the people in state convention.

Denounce all fraudulent alterations of election returns on amendments and demands that all state officers guilty of the same shall receive criminal punishment. New laws should be passed by the next legislature of Michigan providing better safeguards against fraudulent elections returns.

Demand an open waterway for shipment to the ocean. The highest estimates of the cost are $400,000,000, and that work of necessary public importance will give work to an army of unemployed and enable the northwest to reach the southeast without being robbed by corporate rings in terminal charges, etc. We endorse Grover Cleveland as our leader in our faith in his patriotism, statesmanship, unswerving honesty of intellect and of heart and his splendid courage and sterling Democracy. We pledge to him our entire administration our undoubting and devoted support.

We declare in favor of legislation which will bring about a fair system of arbitration to settle difficulties that may arise between capital and labor. We declare in favor of liberal pensions to soldiers of the United States army and believe the per diem pension bill before congress will fully cover all claims.

We denounce the system of protection. We invite the attention of the voters of this state to a comparison of the lavish appropriations and expenditures of the Republican administration of this state with the strict economy of the Democratic administration of Gov. Winans. We emphatically declare against the Republican methods of unwarily converting the state public school lands into a public debt. When the work on nominations was resumed the ticket was completed as follows, with the principal contest for the office of attorney-general between John D. Conely, of Wayne, and James D. O'Hara, of Muskegon; Lieutenant-governor, ex-senator Jordan, of Henry; secretary of state, Lewis E. Ireland, of Plainwell; attorney-general, James D. O'Hara, of Muskegon; state treasurer, Otto Karste, of Ironwood; auditor-general, Frank H. Gill, of Kent; commissioner of state land office, Peter Mulvaney, of Calhoun county; superintendent of public instruction, Albert E. Jennings, of Manistee; member of the state board of education, Michael Devereaux, of Mt. Pleasant.

After the work was all done, the credentials committee came in with their report. Chairman Jerry Falvey presented a majority report and Nat Stuart a minority report. Peter White moved the adoption of the majority report. A very hot time was experienced. The committee in its majority report stated that all counties were entitled to full delegations except the counties of St. Clair, Ottawa, Tuscola and Muskegon. The committee reported in favor of seating the Howell delegation in Tuscola, the Waalkes delegation in Muskegon county, the seating of Mr. Burch in place of Mr. Harrison in the Cass county delegation. The Seventh district delegation was on hand with a grievance. The Phillips delegation was seated after a protracted debate. When the list of committees had reached the Seventh the report was read, when John F. Murphy of Port Huron, arose and asked by what authority the report was made, as there had been no caucus held. (In fact the caucus had broken up in a row on account of the referee and anti-referee factions, which failed to agree.) The D. O. Watson delegation in Ottawa was seated. A motion to seat all contestants and contestees was carried.

There was a hot discussion as to whether the chairman of the state central committee should be chosen by the convention or by the committee. It was finally decided in favor of the committee. Votes of thanks were entered the retiring chairman, Daniel J. Campau, and the officers of the convention for their services, and the convention adjourned.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

SENATE.—16th day.—Mr. Allen made another ineffectual attempt to secure consideration for his resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to inform the Senate of the total amount of money in the pockets of the industrialists, whose wages might be affected by tariff legislation. Then the Senate resumed the consideration of the income tax amendment. Mr. Hill withdrew the amendment he had offered to strike out the provision exempting the interest on United States bonds from the operation of the tax. His object in offering the amendment, Mr. Hill said, was to call the attention of the country to the fact that $55,000,000 of property in government bonds was necessarily exempt from the operation of the income tax under the law, although the ostensible purpose of the income tax was to reach wealth and equalize taxation. There was an enormous investment of capital which the income tax could not reach. Mr. Hill then moved to exempt state, county and municipal bonds. He argued that taxation of state bonds by the federal government would be a direct attack upon the administration of the states. The discussion on the constitutional question of taxation of state and county bonds was continued; several Senators coinciding with Mr. Hill's idea. The amendment was defeated, however. Mr. Hill then moved to exempt state bonds; lost. A motion to strike out the provision for a tax on personal property acquired by gift or inheritance, with what was proposed by Mr. Vest as an amendment to section 55, "that in computing the income of any person, corporation, company or association, shall not be deducted the amount received from any corporations, etc., as interest or dividend upon the bonds or stock of such corporations, etc.," was defeated. The proviso offered by Mr. Vest as an amendment to section 55, "that in computing the income of any person, corporation, company or association, shall not be deducted the amount received from any corporations, etc., as interest or dividend upon the bonds or stock of such corporations, etc.," was defeated. The proviso offered by Mr. Vest as an amendment to section 55, "that in computing the income of any person, corporation, company or association, shall not be deducted the amount received from any corporations, etc., as interest or dividend upon the bonds or stock of such corporations, etc.," was defeated. The proviso offered by Mr. Vest as an amendment to section 55, "that in computing the income of any person, corporation, company or association, shall not be deducted the amount received from any corporations, etc., as interest or dividend upon the bonds or stock of such corporations, etc.," was defeated.

SENATE.—16th day.—Income tax debate continued. A large number of amendments were presented. All were rejected with the exception of two: To exempt savings banks organized on the mutual plan, solely for the benefit of their depositors, from the operation of the income tax; and to exempt from the operation of the income tax the interest on bonds issued by any religious or educational purposes; nor to the loans made by building and loan associations to their members for the purpose of enabling them to provide for themselves homes; nor certain savings banks, saving institutions or societies. The House passed the bill on the 15th. The bill was passed by the Senate on the 16th. The bill was passed by the Senate on the 16th.

SENATE.—16th day.—When the Senate convened Mr. Hoar made a point of no quorum—only seven Senators being present. The House passed the bill on the 15th. The bill was passed by the Senate on the 16th. The bill was passed by the Senate on the 16th.

SENATE.—16th day.—The joint resolution continuing the annual appropriations 90 days after June 30 was adopted. The tariff bill was taken up, and Mr. Vest moved an amendment to the clause repealing the reciprocity feature of the McKinley bill. The amendment proposed by Mr. Vest was to strike out the clause repealing the reciprocity feature of the McKinley bill.

Notes from the Pullman Strike. The Northern Pacific is completely tied up from Chicago to the Pacific and all shops are deserted. Two thousand men in the Southern Pacific shops at Sacramento, Cal., went out, and the tie-up is now complete. The boycott at Cairo, Ill., has assumed serious proportions. Every railroad entering the city is blockaded. The general officers of the A. R. U. have estimated that 85,000 men are now out on strike, as follows: Illinois Central 20,000, Chicago & Alton 10,000, Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe 15,000, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 2,500, Northern Pacific 15,000, Southern Pacific 15,000, Denver & Rio Grande 8,000.

The Santa Fe road has over 250 through passengers tied up in Kansas City and has abandoned hopes of moving trains. The Milwaukee & St. Paul road shops at Milwaukee were shut down on an order from Chicago. Fifteen hundred men are thrown out of employment. Washington: Acting Postmaster-General Jones held a short conference with Attorney-General Olney, at which the movements of the strikers were discussed. It was decided to rigidly insist upon carriage of all mails and to prosecute all who interfere with postal transportation.

Fools' Paper.

"Fools' paper," has a curious origin. It is said that this designation is derived from the fact that Charles I. granted to certain parties a monopoly of the manufacture of paper, and every sheet bore in water marks the royal arms. But the parliament under Cromwell made jests of this in every conceivable manner and ordered the royal arms to be removed and the fool's cap and bells to be substituted. Of course these were reversed after the restoration; but the paper of the size of the parliament journals always retained the name of fools' cap.

Separating the Bones of the Skull.

Anatomists, when they wish to separate the bones of a skull, fill it with small beans and place it in a vessel of water. The beans swell and rend the skull apart at the sutures.

Gus B. Grundman's little four-year-old boy found a bottle of carbolic acid in the house at Carleton and drank about two ounces of it. Physicians were called but they could do nothing. The child died about an hour afterwards in great agony.

Miss Josie Moeller, a well-known resident of Saginaw, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. She had been in ill-health, and it is thought despondency prompted the deed. She was for many years a teacher in the public schools and was 35 years old.

Black diphtheria has broken out in Alpena. The daughter of James O. Carr died from its ravages. She had been visiting friends in the Indian settlement and came home sick. There are ten cases reported in that settlement and Health Officer Dr. Aikens has started a quarantine.

The $40,000 library building of Hope College at Holland was dedicated, and addresses were delivered by Rev. Dr. Philip Phelps, of New York; Rev. Dr. Peter Mordyke, of Chicago, and N. F. Graves, of Syracuse. The building was named after Mr. Graves, and to his generosity its erection was largely due.

The fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the St. Stephen's Episcopal church, of Hamburg, was celebrated by the assembling of the southern convocation, comprising Jackson, Monroe, Hillsdale, Lenawee, Washtenaw and Livingston counties. Rev. A. Tatlock, of Ann Arbor, dean of the convocation, presided.

James Bradford was arrested at St. Joseph on a warrant sworn out by Mayor Preston, charging him with insulting that official of St. Joseph by using indecent and improper language to him and ridiculing him for the manner in which he conducts the affairs of the city. Both are prominent men. The insult was given before over 100 people.

Sharps at Otter Lake have been working a vaccination scheme. They registered as Dr. C. H. Harrison and Dr. E. H. Williams, of Saginaw and announced that the township board had ordered general vaccination, the victim to pay 50 cents for the work. Many arms were scratched and points applied, but whether or not vaccination resulted time alone will tell.

A NEW PRESIDENT.

M. Casimir-Perier Chosen as Successor to the Late M. Carnot as President.

Versailles: M. Casimir-Perier has been elected president of the French republic, in succession to the late M. Carnot. The election was by the senate and chamber of deputies sitting as the national assembly in the great hall of the historic palace of Versailles.

After a sympathetic reference to the late President Carnot, he read the article of the constitution relative to the election of a president, and then declared the national assembly opened. The voting was more close than has been anticipated. The assembly consists of about 884 members.

The ministers, shortly after the president's arrival, formally tendered their resignations to him. Casimir-Perier requested them to remain in office. It is doubtful, however, whether Dupuy, the prime minister, will retain office.

Henry A. Salzer, manager of the John A. Salzer Seed company, La Crosse, Wis., is in Europe looking up rare novelties in vegetables and new things in the farm seed line. He will visit the celebrated farming districts of France, Germany, England, Belgium, Russia and Bohemia.

VERY LARGE FIELDS ASSURED AT THE COMING BLUE RIBBON MEETING.

The Entry List is a Surprise to the Management—Horses are Working Out Fast at the Track Nowadays.

Everything looks favorable for the opening of the new track of the Detroit Driving Club on July 16, when there will be assembled at this fast course more trotters and pacers than have ever taken part in a six-day meeting in this country.

But this gathering of campaigners will not be surrounded by fixtures as white as the new track merits such an outpouring, for without exception, it is the student of a trotting course in the world. The finishing touches have been put on, and as one stands under the wire and looks up the hill which slants into the stretch and then grazes at the magnificent grand stand, it is hard to realize that the bell had tapped for the first time at old Hamtramck before the shovel and pick began to do the work which has been brought to such a grand completion.

Horses are beginning to arrive for their preparatory work on this track, and the most notable string to come will be that of Budd Doble, which is due here Sunday, July 8. Mr. Doble will for his horses some on the day following, and after that will give them miles calculated to put them in condition for the battles of the Blue Ribbon week. It is thought there will be fully 200 horses at the track by the last of this week.

CALL FOR THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The republican electors of the State of Michigan, and all others who may desire to unite with them in upholding the principles of the Republican party, as declared in the platform adopted by the last national republican convention, are hereby requested to send delegates to the state convention of said party, to be held at Hartman Hall, in the city of Grand Rapids, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. Tuesday, July 31st, 1894, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state officers, the election of a chairman of the republican state central committee, and two members of that committee from each congressional district, and for the transaction of such other business as usually comes before the convention.

The delegates from each congressional district are requested to meet in caucus at 9 o'clock on the morning of the day of the convention to select candidates to be presented to the state convention of confirmation, as follows: One vice-president, one assistant secretary, one member each of the committees on "credentials," "permanent organization and order of business," and "resolutions," and two members of the state central committee, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before them.

Washtenaw county is entitled to 21 delegates.

Republican state central committee,
WM. R. BATES, JAMES McMILLAN,
Secretary. Chairman.

We have yet to wait a few years for the ultimate triumph of our principles. The people will then reverse and rebuke the verdict of 1892. Protection will again save the Republic.

In its report of the Democratic State convention the Free Press says it was one of the most harmonious conventions ever known. Certainly it was. There was nothing to quarrel about, was there?

THE Livingston Republican has philosophized for some time on how to save the sheep and wool industry of the country, and has finally reached a conclusion. It says: Kill the Democratic party and save the sheep!

CONSISTENCY, thou art a jewel. The Democratic party talks free trade and then increases the duty on woolen goods. It talks free iron ore and then votes solidly in the Senate with the Republicans for a duty on it!

SENATOR Gorman—not congressman Gorman—says the sugar trust is an industry, and that it should be preserved. How much did you get for your vote, Senator Gorman? The sugar trust probably pays better than the postoffice trust. Congressman Gorman could, perhaps, enlighten you on the latter.

By far the handsomest and best daily newspaper which has appeared on our table in many weeks, was the fourth of July edition of the Grand Rapids Eagle. It was an ideal newspaper, and THE REGISTER congratulates the citizens of the second city on its wide-awake newspaper men, among whom the gents of the Eagle stand at the top.

THE Times is authority for the statement that two years ago Mayor Pingree's henchmen went into the various counties of the State with plethoric purses to influence the election of delegates to the State convention, and says it does not speak from hearsay, but from knowledge. This is certainly a monstrous charge to make. How is this, Mr. Pingree?

THE Chicago Herald says the most noticeable difference between a rich woman and a poor one is that one wears "gowns" and the other wears "dresses." The Herald is mistaken. The most noticeable difference between a rich woman and a poor one is that one has dollars and the other hasn't.—ANN ARBOR REGISTER.

No, that is not it. One has friends and flatterers, the other neither.—Livingston Republican.

Partially correct. One has dollars and the other sense.—Adrian Press.

HERE is the Democratic ticket that will be struck by lightning at the election this fall: Governor, Spencer O. Fisher; Secretary of State, Lewis F. Ireland; State Treasurer, Otto Karste; Auditor General, Frank H. Gill; Attorney General, James D. O'Hara; Commissioner State Land Office, Peter Mulvaney; Superintendent Public Instruction, Albert E. Jennings; Member State Board of Education, Michael Devereaux; Senator (long term) Edwin F. Uhl; Senator (short term) John Strong; Edward Duffy, of this city, was elected member of the State central committee.

THE Courier announces John Heinzmann as a candidate for county treasurer, and says the gentleman would make a phenomenal run. THE REGISTER joins the Courier in its wishes, and hopes Mr. Heinzmann will be nominated.

EVERY daily newspaper in the large cities of the country is in sympathy with Pullman and the railroads and condemns the strikers in order to please the railroads, who in return please the newspapers by showing them accommodations. So one hand washes, or rather, aids the other.

AN exchange says that Hon. James S. Gorman has returned from Washington to his beautiful home at Chelsea and feels much more comfortable there than in the large city. In a few months the gentleman will be able to take all the comfort he can at his home, and if he wishes to visit the large city he can do so in his own interest. The people of the second congressional district will see to it that a better and abler man will look after its business. This district has interests at stake and needs a man—at least a somebody—to look after them.

THE REGISTER has received a letter from Prof. Chas. E. Lowrey, of Boulder, Colorado, replying in a most vigorous manner to the charges made against the university by the Rev. Henry F. Shier. Lack of space prevents our publishing the letter in full, which is a fortunate thing for the reverend gentleman. Prof. Lowrey was in attendance at the university during the entire period Mr. Shier was a student. If Prof. Lowrey's statements are true, and we have every reason to think they are, Mr. Shier should be the last man to utter any criticism whatsoever upon the moral and religious influence of the University of Michigan.

THE tariff bill passed the senate Tuesday evening. The measure as it stands places wool, lumber and salt on the free list, but protects sugar, iron and coal. It taxes all incomes exceeding $4000 and abolishes all reciprocity features of the McKinley law. The measure will now go to a committee of conference of both houses. The most dramatic incident of the night occurred when Senator Hill arose and in ringing and fervid tones entered an eloquent protest against the "populistic income tax" and arraigned his party associates for being false to their party pledges and their country. The Republicans drew around him as he spoke, the galleries leaned over as he dealt sledgehammer blows. When in conclusion he declared threateningly that he would not support the bill, a wave of applause swept over the gallery. A hard but hopeless fight was made by the republicans, under the leadership of Mr. Sherman, to place wool on the dutiable list.

WE wish that Prof. Stanley and others when they have tickets to donate would remember THE REGISTER office in the third story. [Take the elevator, please.] Confession is good for the soul, is a truism which we were taught when we were a nice, dear, good little Sunday school boy long, long ago. So we'll confess that some pencil pushers are as poor as—well, as poor as church mice. Take the hint—see the point, do you? The nice things we scribblers frequently say about concerts, etc., would be a great, great deal nicer if we could personally attend them, instead of drawing on our imagination for a description of the concert. Now this paragraph may not be framed in the best kind of English syntax, still we think it reads quite plain. It is too hot to rewrite it and, you know, over-exercision might bring on a case of sunstroke. Did you ever hear or read of an editor dying of sunstroke? No, never! Editors always have a tired feeling. It is the best preventative against diseases of all kinds and we can recommend it. Try it. Dose—one tired-feeling-pill three times a day.

IN TEXAS.

At a meeting of business men held in San Angelo, Texas, on the 14th day of June, it was

Resolved, 1. That we, the business wool growers, and citizens of West Texas, in mass meeting assembled, ignoring party lines, solemnly protest against the action of our senators and representatives in their unjust and unpatriotic discrimination against the interest of their districts; and be it further

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves not to give our support to any candidate for congress from our district who will not pledge himself to work and vote for an adequate duty on wool so long as the industries of other nations are receiving the benefit of a protective tariff; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be wired our senators and representatives in congress and that the interests of our district demand that they cast their vote for the Sherman amendment of 40 per cent ad valorem duty on wool, and a copy of these resolutions also be wired the San Antonio Express, the only daily paper of Texas that holds the interests of our people above political dictations.

It is well to say that the San Antonio Express is a Democratic newspaper, with no Populist or Republican ideas about it.

A Republican protectionist amendment. Good Republican doctrine.

Among the Politicians.

What a piece of work is a man! How noble in reason! How infinite in faculties! In form and moving how express and admirable! In action how like an angel; in apprehension, how like a god!

"Say, gentlemen, say!" said a politician to a company of men about town yesterday. "It is frequently a big curiosity shop to me to know what the Democratic orators, who will take the stump this fall, are going to talk about to inspire their audience. They can't do any tariff smashing this trip, not much. It is my candid opinion, gentlemen, that they will let that subject alone. Neither will they touch on the money question much. Cleveland, the leader of the Democratic party, is a gold-bug, while the majority of his lieutenants are directly opposed to the gold-bug idea. So one will hear very little said by Democratic stump speakers on monetary affairs. What will they talk about? They will have to unearth Jefferson and Jackson, the fathers of Democracy, so-called, and get a cheer—perhaps. You have probably noticed, gentlemen, that when a Democratic stump speaker runs out of ideas, he will always unearth Jackson (cheers) and Jefferson (more cheers.) Grover Cleveland, (cheers) the great star of the East (cheers) used to get a good share of applause, but his share will be mighty small this fall. If the faint cheers from the referee branch of his party are not intermingled with hisses, it will be a surprise party to me. Again, gentlemen, if a farmer is in the audience and the subject of wool is touched upon, he will do very little cheering. Very little cheering will the laboring man do when he thinks of the silent factories everywhere. Yes, gentlemen, Jackson and Jefferson will be bigger men this fall than they ever were before."

Hon. E. B. Norris says that Spencer O. Fisher is a fisher from Fishersville and will be elected. Of course this is the gentleman's opinion and must be taken for what it is worth.

"I understand that C. P. McKinstry, the expert accountant, will again be a candidate for the office of register of deeds on the Republican county ticket," said a politician yesterday. "He made an excellent run two years ago for the office and if he is placed on the ticket this fall he will be elected. Mac is a young man of ability, honest in his dealings, obliging, and counts his friends by the hundred, who will wish him success."

"I see that the newspaper cranks and some of our citizens are giving the police fits for permitting unmuzzled dogs to run about the streets," said a downtown statesman to a gang of Huron-st. politicians yesterday. "What have the police to do with the dogs? Nothing. It is the business of the common council to order the police to shoot or dispose of the dog nuisance. I think it would be well to muzzle some of our editors. Their ravings are frequently more annoying than a mad dog. The hot weather has about the same influence on an Ann Arbor editor that it has on a dog."

Gorman will capture the various delegations for congress in spite of the opposition that exists against him in all portions of the district. The postmaster-generals of the various counties are getting in their work and will make their influence felt at the convention.

"Honorable Charles R. Whitman must be considerably disappointed at not having received the appointment of professor of the practice court in the department of law in the university, which has been tendered to Tom Bogle," said a political to a number of men about town on Main-st. yesterday. "Charlie coveted the position and expected to receive it, but he must, like many other mortals, content himself with the aphorism, 'the unexpected always happens.' Mr. Bogle knew nothing of the honor conferred upon him by receiving the appointment, until he read it in the newspapers. Yes, the unexpected always happens."

A large number of Democrats are coaxing Capt. Manly to enter the field for the congressional nomination. The Captain virtually stands at the head of Washtenaw's democracy—what there is left of it—and could capture two-thirds, if not the whole, of the Washtenaw delegation. The leaders say that the Captain has made hundreds of stump speeches in this congressional district and is always greeted with crowded houses when he is announced to speak, and could put up a vigorous fight.

Capt. E. P. Allen is certainly a candidate for congress. He is thinking about his chances and the very flattering notice Mr. Osband gave him in the Ypsilantian last week so much that he is getting absent-minded. Last Sunday he took off his vest, in which was his gold watch and chain and other valuables, and hung it in an old closet. A few hours afterward he missed the vest, whereupon a general search was instituted, but, unfortunately it could not be found. It was surely stolen. The police were notified and the news telegraphed to the Detroit dailies. On the following day the vest and valuables were found in a closet where the captain had hung it, and all's well that ends well.

"I see that Hon. E. B. Norris has been showing his hand again in local politics," said a man about town to a company of gentlemen of leisure a few days ago. "I had thought that Ez, like Don M., had graduated from local politics, but it appears not. I presume you all read in the city papers that the Germans presented a petition to the council asking permission to allow one of our German societies to celebrate the Fourth with its usual privileges, etc. Of course the 'usual privileges, etc.' means beer and lots of it. To this clause in the petition the council objected and it was stricken out. This is what Norris wanted, for it was he who wrote the petition and deliberately inserted the beer clause, well knowing that the council would strike it out. Of course the Germans are hot about it and condemn the Republican council, which is what the Talleyrand of Ann Arbor politics wanted—and he got it."

"I wonder what has become of our lady politicians?" inquired a Main-st. politician of a good-looking downtown statesman yesterday. "What has become of our Political Equality Club? The darling ladies should soon be stirring themselves for the campaign, like a cyclone, will be upon us before we know it. Or, are the ladies again to remain quiet this summer and fall and allow the dear men to run things as usual? It has that appearance."

According to the Detroit Tribune, Hon. W. D. Harriman, the prominent Democratic politician, says that the Grand Rapids platform was concocted by a knave to deceive fools, and that it is a mass of rubbish above comprehension and beneath contempt. The Judge is a man who is fearless in the expression of his honest conviction.

"Instead of a campaign of education, as they were wont to call it two years ago, the Democrats will be able to boast of this year's political contest as a campaign of bar's," said a downtown statesman to a number of gentlemen of leisure yesterday. "Spencer O. Fisher has a bar", and so has Strong, ditto Uhl, and if Wellington R. Burt had only been honored with the chairmanship of the state committee, what a fight the Democrats could have put up this year with four millionaires in the field! Fisher will come nearer being Governor of Michigan than any other Democrat, still he will lack 100,000 votes of being elected. He, no doubt, would give that many dollars to be Governor of Michigan."

Hon. Densmore Cramer thinks that the nominations of Fisher, Uhl and Strong are good ones—everybody knows them—but he is willing to wager that with the possible exception of Hammond of the Argus—who has monkeyed with state politics some—not an Ann Arbor editor is acquainted with, or ever heard of, the nominees on the rest of the ticket.

"Say, gentlemen, they is the greatest man that lives," said an all-around politician on Huron-st. a few days ago. "My wife told me other day that 'they said you was the greatest humbug and rascal alive, that you did everything that was low and mean and that you was a lady masher and everything.' 'Who is they?' I inquired, but she would not tell me, and if any one of you can tell me who they is there'll be as big a row as in a this year's Democratic convention."

"The entries from this county for the congressional race are about all in," said a politician yesterday. "Three first-class horses will scratch for 1st place. Hon. Chas. E. Hiscock will enter his best horse, Joe T., and is having him put into first-rate condition by making him wear sweaters and walk about the streets with an occasional run to Detroit, Monroe, Adrian and Jackson. Hon. W. M. Osband thinks he has the winner in his old thoroughbred race-horse, Capt. Allen, who has met with but few defeats in the congressional stepple chase. He is keeping him well groomed in his stables known as The Ypsilantian stock farm, and is giving him plenty of air, plenty of exercise and plenty of taffy. Hon. John F. Lawrence is certain that he has the winner in the celebrated horse, Andrew Jackson Sawyer, who can pace, trot, or run on any track, regulation or kite-shaped, rain or shine, and win. He has entered him and, of course, will drive him himself. He is having him nicely groomed and has sent him to Cavanaugh Lake, where he is fitting him for the contest. I understand that blood is up and they mean business. It has been suggested that the champions of these three thorough-breds have a private meeting and decide which is the best boss to enter for the great race—instead of sending three horses, to send one. It is believed by many admirers of the horses that if Washtenaw enters three contestants instead of one, some rank outsider will capture the stakes. Jackson county, which threatened to send three thorough-breds, has decided to enter but one horse, Jim O'Donnell;

Lenawee will send one, Smith, the Adrian horse; and Monroe will have but one entry, General Spaulding, the Monroe thorough-bred and old timer; Wayne will not contest for the sweepstakes but feels inclined to coach a Washtenaw horse. The congressional race will be a hot one and will be run for blood. Who will win? Washtenaw, Jackson, Monroe or Lenawee? The books are open, gentlemen, select the winner!"

Honorable Charles E. Hiscock tips the scales at 190 pounds, sixteen ounces to the pound.

Honorable Ezra Benton Norris says he would rather read the Politicians' column in THE REGISTER than Shakespeare.

Latest From the Strike.

Ironwood, Mich., July 3.—(Special)—Rioting and bloodshedding by the striking miners have begun at last and an incensed and angry mob of men has possession of the city. At 2 o'clock this afternoon 1,500 strikers and fifty deputy sheriffs and armed workmen met in a bloody strife around the steam shovel at the East Norrie mine, and three men are shot and many badly clubbed and injured. Sheriff Eddy and his deputies are powerless to maintain peace and quiet and a call has been made on Gov. Rich for military assistance.

Chicago, July 3.—Traffic by rail in this city is in a most deplorable condition, every effort to raise the embargo having met with every form of obstruction; men who would, dare not lift a hand to set a-turning the wheels of commerce, the puny efforts of the handful of officers of the courts being laughed to scorn by thousands of strikers and their friends. President Cleveland today decided that a show of military force must be made. Tonight a portion of the Seventh Cavalry and the Fifteenth Infantry, U. S. A., from Fort Sheridan, divided into detachments of 100 to 150 men, and having a number of Gatling and Hotchkiss guns, are deployed at different points throughout the city and suburbs, where trouble has been most frequent, and this fact seems to have exercised a quieting effect on the strikers, though occasionally some hot-head announces in loud tones the awful fate in store for the troops. By common consent the strikers, it is hinted, have called off their dogs until after the Fourth.

The price of all kinds of provisions is advancing very rapidly, and the hotels, restaurants and private families are feeling it very keenly. Fruit, ice and all kinds of perishable provisions are commanding very high prices and are now regarded as a luxury. The coal famine is becoming very serious, and a number of factories have been compelled to shut down; a number of breweries cease operations to-day. For the first time in the history of Chicago not a single car-load of live stock arrived at the Union Stock Yards by rail to-day, while the shipments of dressed meats is practically at an end.

Kicked to Death by a Horse.

Jerry Minnehan, of Spring-st., was kicked by a horse on Saturday and died Monday morning from the effects of the kick.

The horse is a vicious one, which was borrowed from Ed. Bycraft to take the place of one of Minnehan's horses which had become lame. Mr. Minnehan was in the yard near his house at the time he was kicked.

The deceased was well known in the city. He leaves a wife, and a son about 13 years old.

SERIOUS FACTS ABOUT FOOD.

The Recent Cases of Poisoning from Alum Baking Powder.

The recently reported cases of poisoning from the use of alum baking powders in Wisconsin have awakened the public to the serious danger which menaces the health of the people of this country in the numerous brands of these goods now being urged upon consumers.

There is no question as to the detrimental effects of the alum baking powders upon the system. Every Board of Health, every physician, will tell of the unwholesome qualities they add to the food. Some countries have absolutely prohibited the sale of bread containing alum.

Even small doses of alum, given to children, have produced fatal results, while cases of heartburn, indigestion, griping constipation, dyspepsia and various kindred gastric troubles from irritation of the mucous membrane, caused by the continuous use of food prepared with the alum or alum phosphate powders, are familiar in the practice of every physician.

It is not possible that any prudent housewife, any loving mother, will knowingly use an article of food that will injure the health of her household, or perhaps cause the death of her children.

How shall the dangerous alum powders be distinguished? And how shall the danger to health from their use be avoided?

Generally, alum powders may be known from the price at which they are sold, or from the fact that they are accompanied by a gift, or are disposed of under some scheme. The alum powder costs but a few cents a pound to make, and is often sold at 20 or 25 cents a pound. If some present is given with it, the price may be 30, 40 or 50 cents a pound.

It is impossible to name all the alum powders in the market, but any baking powder sold at a low price, or advertised as costing only half as much as cream of tartar powders, or accompanied by a present, or disposed of under any scheme, is of this class, detrimental to health, and to be avoided.

But the easy, safe, and certain protection of our bread, biscuit and cake from all danger of unwholesomeness is in the use of the Royal Baking Powder only. This powder is mentioned because of the innumerable reports in its favor by high medical authorities, by the U. S. Government, and by the official chemists and Boards of Health which leave no doubt as to its entire freedom from alum, lime and ammonia, its absolute purity and wholesomeness. While its use is thus a safeguard against the poisonous alum powders, it is satisfactory at the same time to know that owing to its greater strength it is more economical than others.

These facts should incline consumers to turn a deaf ear to all importunities to buy the inferior powders. The wise housekeeper will decline in all cases to take them.

Take no chances through using a doubtful article where so important a matter as the health or life of dear ones is at stake.

SHORT TALKS ON ADVERTISING.

No 11.

[Written especially for THE REGISTER.]

A Washington piano house is just now using considerable space in the local papers to advertise a voting contest. The most popular school teacher in Washington is to be presented with a free trip to Europe, lasting 30 days. The ticket to cover all transportation charges, hotel bills, carriage drives, etc. from Washington to Europe and back again.

This may be a good scheme, but I doubt it. It is hardly what I would call legitimate advertising. A trip to Europe and the most popular teacher have nothing on earth to do with the desirability of the pianos. It will be talked about, more or less, and in so much is advertising, but I doubt very much if it will result in any very great good. I would very much rather take the money that this trip costs and use it on straight newspaper advertising.

Advertising properly considered, and in its strongest sense, is merely telling people what and where and why—particularly why—they should buy some particular thing. Advertising isn't good unless it accomplishes this and convinces a greater or less number of people that the advertiser and the thing advertised are just exactly what they have been looking for.

A trip to Europe doesn't prove anything. It has nothing whatever to do with the piano business and anybody, from a butcher up, might use it with equal propriety.

I do not believe in scheme advertising of any kind. In some cases it may pay but they are few and far between. The kind of advertising that always can be depended on, is newspaper advertising. It always does what it is intended to do if it is properly used. If it ever fails, it is not the fault of the medium but the fault of the advertiser or the way he advertises.

The right sort of advertisements in the newspapers go right into the family circle, exactly where the dealer wishes his goods to go. For this reason, if for no other, it is better than any other possible method for bringing business.

I have had quite a good deal of experience in managing different outside schemes for advertising a business, and I have been able to figure up the results rather accurately. I have never yet seen an undertaking of this sort bring back enough money to pay for itself, either directly or indirectly.

This free European trip will certainly cause more or less talk, but will it cause the right kind of talk? Will it carry the conviction that straight-out common sense talks in the newspapers would do? These are the questions on which the piano people will probably be expensively intelligent after the contest is over.

Civil Service Examination.

The regular semi-annual examination for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city post-office will be held on Saturday, August 11, 1894, commencing at 9 o'clock A. M.

Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on July 23, 1894.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliation. All such citizens, whether Democrats or Republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination. For application blanks, full instructions and information relative to the duties and salaries of the different positions, apply at the post-office to Especially timely and valuable papers characterize the contents of the recent issues of Little's Living Age. Selecting the richest from what is already the creme de la creme of recent English periodical literature we would call particular attention to "Kossuth and the Hungarian War of Liberation," by Sidney J. Low; "A Visit to the Tennysons in 1839," by Bartle Teeling; "Mr. Gladstone," by Richard Holt Hutton; "The Queen and Her Permanent Minister," by Reginald B. Brett; "A Note on Walt Whitman," by Edmund Gosse; and "A Russian View of the American Press," by Professor I. L. Yonjoul. We would again call the attention of our readers to the generous offer recently made by the publishers, viz.: to send the 13 numbers of the magazine, forming the first quarterly volume of the new series (Jan. to March, 1894), free to any one remitting six dollars in payment for the nine months, April to Dec., inclusive, 1894. This offer will be kept open through June. The subscription price is $8.00 a year.—Littell & Co., Boston, Mass., publishers.

WHY "No. 9" ARE HEELER & WILSON'S SEWING MACHINES POPULAR?

BECAUSE LADIES BUY THEM LIKE THEM AND TELL THEIR FRIENDS.

Many ladies have used our machines twenty to thirty years in their family work, and are still using the original machines we furnished them a generation ago. Many of our machines have run more than twenty years without repairs, other than needles. With proper care they never wear out, and seldom need repair.

We have built sewing machines for more than forty years and have constantly improved them. We build our machines on honor, and they are recognized everywhere as the most accurately fitted and finely finished sewing machines in the world. Our latest, the "No. 9," is the result of our long experience. In competition with the leading machines of the world, it received the Grand Prize at the Paris Exposition of 1889, as the best, other machines receiving only complimentary medals of gold, silver and bronze. The Grand Prize was what all sought for, and our machine was awarded it.

Send for our illustrated catalogue. We want dealers in all unoccupied territory.

THE ONLY INDUCEMENT.

Why the Fair Maiden Should Have Accepted the Minister's Suit.

He was a minister of the gospel in a small town, and it is not necessary to say that his remuneration was not of tropical luxuriance.

He was a bachelor, however, and he received slippers and other articles of bric-a-brac during the year from admiring members of his congregation in sufficient quantity to enable him to hypothecate them for enough to be of some assistance.

That he had not married was due largely to the fact that most of the young ladies of his acquaintance had to eat and wear clothes and live under a roof of some kind, and they did not see how he could make such provisions for their comfort.

True, he had tried once or twice, probably three times, but the passion was not overpowering, and his condition was such, to his own knowledge, that nothing less than the overpowering could make him persevere in his efforts to win the object of his choice.

There were many, many times when the skies were gray and heavy above him, and even the consolations of religion were powerless to bring a ray of sunlight into his heart. But, though bent by his burden, he was not broken and youth was his aid and faith.

The time came at last, however, when the overpowering presented itself, and the minister's heart went out irresistibly to a fair, sweet girl, gentle, loving and trustful. At least she was that to somebody, says the Detroit Free Press. It might be to the minister later. He did not know, but he hoped so with a hope that lifted him into a tender atmosphere than he had ever known. He forgot his poverty, his weakness, himself, and by day and by night his thoughts followed this girl. She could not but know that he loved her, yet she gave him no encouragement.

She was kind to him, for it was not in her heart to treat him harshly, for he was so innocent, so devoted, so good. One evening, when he could endure the suspense no longer, he asked the fatal question. "I am sorry, very sorry," she said, "but it cannot be."

He gulped down the lump in his throat. He feared this. He had heard it before from others, but it had never pained him so.

"Nothing," she went on, kindly, seeing that he did not or could not speak, "nothing would be an inducement for me to be a minister's wife."

His lips trembled and he brushed the tears from his eyes, and with one effort he spoke.

"Ah, dear," he murmured as he rubbed his hand over his shiny coat sleeve, "then you should have me, for heaven knows that is the only inducement I can offer you."

A Rosebush One Thousand Years Old.

The oldest known specimen of the rosebush in the world is at Hildersheim, Hanover. It was planted more than 1,000 years ago by Charlemagne in commemoration of a visit made to him by the ambassador of the Caliph Haroun al-Raschid. In the year 818 a coffin-shaped vault was built around its sacred roots, and a few years later a cathedral was built near by, so close, indeed, that the vines were trained along the cathedral walls. In the year 1146 the cathedral was destroyed by fire, but the vine survived and still flourishes. At present it is twenty-six feet high and covers 800 square feet of the cathedral wall. The main stem, however, after over 1,000 years' growth, is only two inches in diameter, but is said to be "as hard as ivory."—St. Louis Republic.

Advice Wanted.

"You newspaper men know most everything, don't you?" asked the woman with the square chin, as she planted herself in a chair alongside the editorial desk. The editor dodged a direct answer by asking the woman what was the trouble. "It's just this way," she said. "You see I want to see a lawyer last week to see about gettin' a divorce an' paid him $25 in advance. Yistiddy the old man got run over with a coal cart an' got his neck broke, an' of course, I don't need no divorce from a dead man, an' I want to know if the lawyer can keep that money, or can I make him chip in for funeral expenses?"—Indianapolis Journal.

THE DRAWN BLIND.

SILVER trumpets sounded a flourish, and the jave- lia men came pacing down Tregar- rick Fore street, with the sheriff's coach swinging behind them, its panels splendid with fresh blue paint and florid blazonry. It's wheels were picked out with yellow, and this scheme of the color extended to the coachman and the two lackeys, who held on at the back by leathern straps. Within the coach and facing the horses sat two judges of the crown court and Nisi Prius, both in scarlet, with full wigs and little round patches of black plaster, like ventilators, on top; facing their lordships sat Sir Felix Felix-Williams, the sheriff, in a tightish uniform of the yeomanry with a great shako nodding on his knees and a chaplain bolt upright by his side. Behind trooped a rabble of loafers and small boys, who shouted, "Who bleeds bran?" till the lackeys' calves itched with indignation.

I was standing in the archway of the Packhorse inn, among the maids and stable boys gathered to see the pageant pass on its way to hear the Assize sermon. At the moment when the trumpets rang out, a very old woman, in a blue camlet cloak, came hobbling out of a grocer's shop some twenty yards up the pavement, and tottered down ahead of the procession as fast as her decrepit legs would move. There was no occasion for hurrying to avoid the crowd, but she went by the Packhorse doorway as if swift horsemen were after her, clutching the camlet cloak across her bosom, glancing over her shoulder and working her lips inaudibly. I could not help remarking the position of her right arm. She held it bent exactly as though she held an infant to her old breast, and shielded it while she ran. A few paces beyond the inn door she halted on the edge of the curb, flung another look up the street, and darted across the roadway. There stood a little shop—a watchmaker's—just opposite, and next to the shop a small one with one dingy window over it. She vanished up the passage, at the entrance of which I was still staring idly, when, half a minute later, a skinny trembling hand appeared at the window and drew down the blind.

"Who is that old woman?" I asked, touching Caleb, the head hostler, on the shoulder. "What woman?" "She in the blue cloak, d'ee mean?—an old, ancient, wisht-lookin' body?" "Yes." "A timmersome woman, like?" "That's it." "Cordely Pinsent, widow of old Key Pinsent, that was tailor to all the grandees in the county so far back as I can mind. I can just mind Key Pinsent—a great, red, rory-cumory chap, with a high stock and a wig like King George—my royal patron' he called 'em, havin' by some means got leave to hoist the king's arms over his door. Such mighty portly manners, too. Oh, very spacious, I assure 'ee! Simme I can see the old Trojan now, with his white weskit bulgin' out across his doorway like a shopfront hung w' jewels. Gout killed 'em. I went to his buryin'; such a stretch of experience does a young man get by the time he reaches my age. God bless your heart alive, I can mind when they were hung for forgery!" "Who were hung?" "People," he answered, vaguely, "and young Willie Pinsent."

same rooms you see—and then she ate less 'n a mouse an' took to needle-work, plain an' fancy, for a lot o' the gentry's wives round the neighborhood befriended her, though they had to be sly an' hide that they meant it for a favor, or she'd ha' snapped their heads off. An' all the while she was teachin' her boy and tellin' 'em what ever happened, to remember he was a gentleman, an' lovin' 'em with all the strength of a desolate woman.

"This Willie Pinsent was a comely boy, too; handsome as old Key, an' quick at his books. He'd a bold, masterful way, bein' proud as ever his mother was, an' well knowin' there wasn't his match in Tregarriek for headwork. Such a beautiful hand he wrote! When he was barely turned sixteen they gave 'em a place in Gregory's bank—Wilkins an' Gregory it was in those aged times. He still lived home w' his mother, rentin' a room extra out of his earnings and turnin' one of the bedrooms into a parlor. That's the very room you're lookin' at. And when any father in Tregarriek had a bone to pick with his sons he'd advise 'em to take ex- ample by young Pinsent, 'so clever and good, too, there was no tellin' what he mightn't come to in time."

"Well-a-well, to cut it short, the lad was too clever. It came out, after, that he'd took to bettin his employ- ers' money agen the rich men up at the Royal exchange. An' the up- shot was that one evenin' while he was drinkin' tea with his mother in his lovin', light-hearted way, in walks a brace o' constables an' says, "Will- iam Pinsent, young chap, I arrest thee upon a charge o' counterfeitin' old Gregory's handwritin' which is a hang- in' matter!"

"An' now, sir, comes the cur'ous part o' the tale; for, if you'll believe me, this poor woman wouldn't listen to it—wouldn't hear a word o't. "What! my son Willie, she flames, hot as Lucifer. "My son Willie a forger; my boy that I have nussed an' reared up, an' studied, markin' all his pretty takin' ways since he learned to crawl! Gentlemen," she says, standin' up an' facin' 'em down, "what mother knows her son, if not I give you my word it's all a mistake."

"Ay, an' she would have 'n other. While her son was havin' his trial in jail, she walked the streets with her head high, scornin' the folk as passed."

"But her greatest freak was seen when the Assizes came. Sir, she wouldn't even go to the trial. She disdained it. An' when that mornin' the judges had driven by her window, same as they drove to-day, what d'ee think she did?"

"She began to lay the cloth up in the parlor yonder, an' there set out the rarest meal, ready for her boy. There was meats, roasted chickens, an' a tongue, an' a great ham. There was cheese cakes that she made after a little secret of her own, an' a bowl of junket, an inch deep in cream, that bein' his pet dish, an' all kinds o' knick-knacks, w' grapes an' peaches an' apricots, an' decanters o' wine, white an' red. Ay, sir, there was even crackers for mother an' son to pull to- gether, with scraps o' poetry inside. An' flowers—the table was bloomin' with flowers. For weeks she'd been a plannin' it, an' all the forenoon she moved about that table, givin' it a touch here an' a touch there, an' takin' a step back to see how beautiful it looked. An' then, as the day wore on, she pulled a chair over by the window, an' sat down an' waited."

"In those days a capital trial was kept up till late into the night, if need were. By an' by she called up her lit- tle servin' gal that was then, (she's a gran'mother now), an' sent her down to the courthouse to learn how far the trial had got, an' run back with the news."

"Down runs Selina Mary, an' back with word: "They're a-summin' up," says she. "Then Mrs. Pinsent went an' lit eight candles. Four she set 'pon the table an' four 'pon the mantel shelf. You could see the blaze out in the street, an' the room lit up, w' the flowers, an' fruit, an' shinin' glasses."

"So the poor woman sat a while longer an' then she calls: "Selina Mary, run down agen, an' as he comes out, tell 'em to hurry. They must be finished by now." "The maid was gone twenty minutes this time. The evenin' was hot an' the window open; an' now all the town that wasn't listenin' to the trial was gathered in front, gazin' cur'ously at the woman inside. She was titi- vatin' the table for the fiftieth time, an' touchin' up the flowers that had drooped a bit i' the bowls."

"But after twenty minutes Selina Mary came runnin' up the street, an' fetched her breath at the front door, and went up stairs slowly and 'pon tip-toe. Her face at the parlor door was white as paper; an' while she stood there the voices of the crowd outside began to take all one tone, and beat into the room like the sound o' waves 'pon a beach. "Oh, missis," she begins. "Have they finished?" "The poor cheald was only able to nod. "Then, where's Willie? Why isn't he here?" "Oh, missis, they're going to hang 'em!"

"Mrs. Pinsent moved across the room and gave her a little push out into the street. Not a word did she say, but shut the door 'pon her, very gentlelike. Then she went back and pulled the blind down slowly. The crowd outside watched her do it. Her manner was quite ordinary. They stood there for a minute or so, an' behind the blind the eight candles went out, one by one. By the time the judges passed homeward 'twas all dark, only the blind showin' white by the street lamp opposite. From that year to this she has pulled it down whenever a judge drives by."

WITS AT WORK.

Father—Do you really desire to make my daughter happy? The Sutor—Certainly, Father—Then don't marry her.

Waiter—Will you take tea or coffee? Actor—I always take coffee—because it settles. Manager—I prefer tea—because it draws.

"That Mrs. Tedious is a miserable talker, isn't she?" "Her language, I thought, was beautiful." "Dear me, yes, but she talks all the time."

Indignant Constituent—Sir, you have proven utterly false to your principles. Green Statesman—Nothing of the sort. I merely wore them out and got a new set.

Little Gladys—Granny, go down on your hands and knees for a minute, please. Fond Grandmother—What am I to do that for, my pet? Little Gladys—Cause I want to draw an elephant.

Little Gertie—Do you s'pose I'm go- ing to the picnic with such a looking thing as you? Little Tommie—M-marm p-put her work-b-basket on my head when she c-clip round th' handles—boo-hoo!

Servant—Mr. Greatman is at home, gentlemen. I am to show you up. Mr. Tim. McDoolan, one of the rising politicians of the ward—Ye are, hey? By Jarge, if that's his game we'll take a hand! We can show him up a thunderin' sight worse'n you can show us up! (Exeunt, slamming the door.)

"We don't play the piano at our house on Sunday," said the first little girl, "and you folks do. We ain't heathens." "Neither are we," said the second little girl, "but we don't believe in usin' up all our religion on Sunday so's there won't be none left through the week, like some folks does."

"No," said Floatin'hair, the poet, "I shall never call on that editor again; never, never!" "What has he done?" "He has been rudely sarcastic. I handed him a bundle of manuscripts this morning and he told the office boy to hunt up his overshoes." "Over- shoes!" "Yes. He said he had a lot of slush to wade through."

Vinegar and sugar are made from cocoanut sap.

The town of New Hope, Pa., with a population of about 1,200, appears to be having an epidemic of twins, no less than fifteen pairs being born lately.

Flags inside a New York window blowing out just as they would do in a breeze outside attract some attention and cause some little wonder until one sees the electric fan behind them. Under the Mississippi whisky law when a saloonkeeper's license expires he can not renew it unless a majority of the citizens of his district sign a petition to the authorities of his county, and this petition must be published in the daily papers for three weeks.

"Old Gilbert" is a horse, thirty-seven years old, owned by a resident of Owensboro, Ky., which is the possessor of a competence which enables him to live without labor. His late owner, Mrs. Fannie Sharp, left a fund of $500 and stipulated that the old horse was to be well fed and groomed for the remainder of his life.

A spring of marvelously pure water discovered on the farm of ex-Congressman Carlos French, near Seymour, Conn., has been analyzed by Professor Chittenden of Yale college, and pronounced to be the purest water yet analyzed in America. His results show that it contains but one and two-thirds grains of organic matter and inorganic matter to the gallon.

Mr. Savi's elephant hunting expedi- tion excites the Indian press on account of its wonderful success. In eight months he secured 230 elephants, all near Jalpaiguri. He also bagged three tigers and a tigress—respectively ten feet two inches, nine feet eight inches, nine feet seven inches and nine feet—one rhinoceros, an elephant of ten feet, five leopards and six sambul, besides small game. Mr. Savi sold all the elephants except twenty-six before leaving Jalpaiguri.

THE GODS OF MYTHOLOGY.

Fama was the goddess of gossip.

Ate was the Greek god of mischief. The Naiads were spirits of the ocean.

The Lemnads watched over the lakes and ponds of Greece.

Greek and Roman virgins prayed to Fortuna for a good husband.

Actors and public readers offered sacrifice to Momus, the god of laughter.

Hebe was adored among the Greek women, that their beauty might be preserved.

The Panates were gods of the pantry from a Latin word signifying where food is kept.

The Dryads took care of trees and prevented their being cut down until their time had come.

Cupid was recognized as a deity, but his worship was always merged in that of his mother, Venus.

Roman capitalists and persons desiring to become such, sacrificed to Plutus, the god of wealth.

The Furies were old maids whose countenances were so terrible as to transfix with horror every beholder.

Janus was the god of all gates and doors. He is always represented with two faces because a door looks both ways.

The Romans had a god of boundar- ies, Terminus. His statue was a post set in the ground to mark the limits of fields.

The principal wind deities were Boreas, the north wind; Zephrus the west, Austur the south, and Eurus, the east wind.

Vesta was the goddess of life and of home; her altar stood on every hearth- stone, her fire burned on the floor of every public building.

Barney Cumiskey, who now resides near Ann Arbor, but was a former long time resident of this village, appeared on our streets for two or three days this week. Barney says that notwithstanding his long residence here, he knows more people in Ann Arbor today than he does in Howell. The changes of Howell are perhaps not so apparent to us here, but they are numerous nevertheless, and to those who are not here to assimilate to them, the changes seem marvelous.—Howell Republican.

About two years ago Adolphus Diehl came to this city from Chicago, where he had several years of experience in the shoe business, and in partnership with Goodspeed, a wealthy merchant of Ann Arbor, Mich., purchased the Hinkle shoe store, in the Luken block. Mr. Diehl personally took charge of the store, and his present well-regulated and popular store shows what enterprise and business integrity will accomplish. From an unpopular establishment and a bad and tag end stock, he has built up one of the most popular and best shoe stores in the city. His present rushing business, consequent to some liberal advertising, is evidence of the confidence our citizens place in his business integrity.—Richmond (Ind.) Palladium.

Judge Kinne has overruled the motion of the attorneys of Clifford Hand for a new trial. In denying the motion, Judge Kinne says: "If I did not believe that the accused had had a fair and impartial trial it would be my pleasure as it would be my duty to set aside the verdict in this cause."

Mid-Summer Sale!

BEGINS Saturday, June 30th—Ends Saturday, July 14th. "Two weeks and a day."

Semi-annually we "clean up" our stock by closing out all goods of the season, that our stock may be fresh and clean the next year. Our customers reap a benefit by securing seasonable goods at half to three-quarters their regular selling prices. We reap a benefit by converting into cash thousands of yards of goods, which, but for these sales, would be on hand to spoil the freshness of our next season's offerings.

This Season's Sale begins Saturday morning, and for extent of offerings and for values supplied will eclipse any of our former "Semi-Annuals," and you well know the exceedingly interesting character of some of them. Advertisements are poor and cheap if not lived up to by the firm advertising. We always do exactly as we advertise, and we know it pays to do so. Test us during this sale.

- Figured China Silks, were 50c and 60c, will be - - 39c.
- Dress Goods, All Wool, 50c value, at - - - 31c.
- 48-inch Black All Wool Serge, worth 65c, will be - - 44c.

YPSILANTI SENTINEL.

From an unauthentic, but quite reliable source, we learn that the census of 1894 will show a decrease in population in the first ward of 53 from that of 1890, and an increase in the second of 182. Both wards will show an increase from 1884 aggregating 374. It is probably the entire city will show a slight increase.

A little son of Mr. Birkheiser, of the fifth ward, while bringing a cow from pasture, Monday evening, was attacked by another that had a calf by her side, and badly gored, his skull being laid bare for several inches. Dr. Batwell dressed the terrible wound, closing it by eight stitches. It is hoped that with great care the child will recover.

CHELSEA STANDARD.

Three Chelsea boys receive their diplomas from the University of Michigan today, Ransom S. Armstrong, from the School of Pharmacy; William W. Wedemeyer, from Literary department, and George E. Hathway from College of Dental Surgery.

DEXTER LEADER.

The farmers of Webster turned out en masse Tuesday and leveled the grade on the north road from the peninsula mill bridge to Preston's hill.

It looked very much as though the advance guard of Coxe's army had struck the town Monday evening, when about twenty shelf-worn tramps piled off from a freight train that pulled into this station from the west.

MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE.

Census enumerator Mort Hendershott says he thinks the corporation census will be about 1170 people. There are several now in town who cannot be counted by reason of their having been counted in other places, and the true population at this time is probably 10 more, which will be nearly the same as four years ago, when it was about 1190.

In the annual adjustment of postmasters' salaries, Manchester received a cut of $100. This is owing to the decrease in business last year. The business of the office for the past quarter has been more than sufficient to put the salary back.

SALINE OBSERVER.

Mrs. H. R. Mead, who was so badly bitten by a dog about a week ago, is now under the careful treatment of Dr. Chandler and slowly recovering.

It would be well for farmers who have bins containing two or three crops of old wheat to investigate. Many bins have been found to be full of worms and the grain worthless, the grain on top will be found sound and good but down in is where the surprise is usually found.

CHELSEA HERALD.

Mr. Louis Burg, who has recently come to Chelsea, is the possessor of a beautiful tenor voice, which he knows how to handle to the best advantage. He is a member of St. Mary's choir, and charmed the large congregation last Sunday at the High Mass by his exquisite rendering of an "Ave Maria," as an offertory solo.

THE YPSILANTI.

Trains No. 153 and 154 on the Lake Shore, which were taken off a short time ago on account of the shortness of coal, were put on again Monday.

Burwell McGregor, the eight year old son of James McGregor, fell from a cherry tree that he was endeavoring to climb last Thursday afternoon and fell and broke his arm in two places below the elbow.

YPSILANTI COMMERCIAL.

As soon as the small pox scare shall run its course, the doctors should begin vaccinating against the base ball fever. It is really the more dangerous of the two. A young lady was killed by a ball in Ann Arbor recently, and Father Kennedy of this city is carrying a lame arm from dislocating the elbow.

J. C. Corkins closed a very successful term of school in the Morgan district, Augusta, June 15. Lizzie Potter, Grace Russell, Winnie Dawson and Cora Willings were presented with 8th grade diplomas. Superintendent Cavanaugh expressed himself well pleased with the examination papers. Much credit is due Mr. Corkins.

MILAN LEADER.

De Witt Ostrander, of London, drove into town last Saturday evening with a spirited young horse attached to a road cart, and in the cart a crate of chickens. He stopped at the residence of his grandmother, Mrs. Sally Haack, on East Main-st., dismounted and tied his horse loose and away went the horse, cart, chickens, etc., leaving De Witt standing bewildered at the roadside. The horse, etc., at a 2:10 gait came dashing up town, carrying consternation into the ranks of teamsters lining both sides of the street, having many hairbreadth escapes from collisions with other vehicles, and was finally headed off and captured in front of Easterly's store, without a penny's worth of damage to horse, cart or fowls. One carriage, however, in its course along the street was struck and a spoke broken: De Witt is still alive, and vows that in the future he will use a hitching post and tie strap.

A SIREN'S DEFEAT.

HERE is Blanche to-night, mother mine?" She is gone down into the country, Val, to spend a month. A little rustic cousin of hers is about to be married, and she wants the benefit of Blanche's fine taste about the trousseau and the wedding.

"Ah, poor Blanche! pity her, immersed in a country house in December! What will she do, unless she finds some men to flirt with?" laughed Valentine Monroe, throwing his handsome length lazily on the cushions of a divan in his mother's luxurious boudoir.

"There's no one to flirt with at Hazelmere. It's a very quiet neighborhood, and I don't believe the girl that's going to get married would ever have found a husband, only that a young man just happened to live in the house—nephew to her guardians, I believe—and they fell in love. Nothing but propriety, you see, Val, that makes so many matches. Heigho! I wish it had been as successful in your case with Blanche."

"Dear mother, don't bring up that old grievance again."

"But, Val, let me urge dear Blanche's claim just once more. Poor girl, ever since she came to live with us, five years ago, when her parents died, she has worshipped you, Val, and it is cruel that you don't take pity on her tender heart."

"One doesn't like to have a girl throw herself at one's head, mother. Blanche might have waited till I asked her to love me."

"But, Val, you ought to be grateful to her for loving you, really. Any other man would go on his knees to thank her, and you know it. She is the belle of her set, beautiful and rich; and, as she says, she can bring any man to her feet but you."

"And wants me just out of perversity, eh?" laughed handsome Val, and the big diamond on his white hand sent out a blinding flash of light as he tried to smother a yawn.

"No, she loves you fondly and devotedly, my son, and she is just the girl for you, too—a very queen of beauty. Come, I will tell you her secret, poor girl. It was for your sake she has buried herself in the country."

"I don't comprehend."

"I'll explain, Val. Well, only the night before she left she told me in tears, that she was maddened by your indifference, and was going away to test your love. She thought you might miss her, and find out you loved her, by your sorrow at her absence."

"Did she think I could not enjoy my dear mother's society alone?" he queried, affectionately.

"Don't begin to flatter me, dear, thinking to turn off the subject! Oh, Val, why won't you marry Blanche? She surely has reason to complain if you don't, for you have flirted with her ever since she came here."

"Beg pardon, it is Blanche who has flirted with me. Mother, you know that girl has flirted from her cradle!"

"She only does it to make you jealous, Val."

"No, it's her nature. And she cares no more for the sufferings of her victims, than little boys do for the butgaged before I ever met her. She told me so when I asked her to be mine. But, before heaven, I believe she liked me well, and if she had only not worn that other fellow's ring—confound him! I might have won her for my own."

"Ah, I am very glad she is married to another man. There's a chance for Blanche yet," cried Mrs. Monroe, with a sigh of relief.

"But she isn't married yet, mother, for I made her swear solemnly to send me wedding cards when it came off. For, as long as she is single, there's some hope, you know. And I swear that I'll marry no one until my little beauty is lost to me forever."

"And then—then would you have Blanche?" eagerly.

"As well her as another, since I should have no heart for any but my lost love," gloomily.

The weeks slipped away, and one morning, when the mail came in, his mother cried, eagerly:

"Wedding cards for you, Val. Perhaps it is that girl!" and she could not keep the joy out of her voice and eyes.

He tore the cards from the envelope, with nervous fingers.

"Great Heaven! the cruel blow has fallen!" and he staggered to his seat, his hand before his eyes.

"Why, what is this?" she cried, examining his cards. "Val, it is the girl at Hazelmere, Blanche's cousin, pretty little Bessie Gray!"

"That is her name," he sighed, heavily.

"Oh, Val, remember your promise! If this girl married her betrothed, you would marry Blanche!"

"Yes," he answered, with the acquiescence of despair.

"I am so glad, so glad! Val, shall you go to the wedding?"

"Yes, I will see her lost to me forever! Then, I will bring Blanche back as my betrothed!" he answered, with the recklessness of a torturing despair for his blighted love-dream.

He arrived at the pretty Southern homestead in the morning of the day set for the wedding. A blundering servant took his card when he asked for Blanche, and sent him into the conservatory.

"She's in there, cutting flowers for the bride's bouquet."

Some one was helping his cousin, and he paused at the sound of voices, and peeped through a thicket of blossoming pink azalias.

Blanche's companion was a young, fine-looking man. He cried out, in a passionate voice:

"Blanche, this is cruel work for us both! Oh, if these flowers were only for you, my darling!"

"Hush! you must not say such things to me—you, who will be married to Bessie Gray to-night!"

"Not if you forbid it, Blanche, for my fate lies in your hands. Ah, poor little Bessie, I loved her dearly till you came, but the glances of your eyes drove me mad, and my love turned from her to you. Do not upbraid me, dearest, for surely I have read your heart aright, in your tender blue eyes, and you love me as well as I do you. This marriage would make us both very unhappy. Oh, Blanche, let us fly together before this fatal bond is riveted that sunders us forever. We can be married quietly in Washington, and go abroad—"

"Stop," she cried, in clear, ringing tones. "You insult me, Perry Grandison! Why, I have never dreamed of loving you! I only amused myself with your vanity, because you happened to be the only man about! I shall never marry any one but my handsome cousin, Valentine Monroe!"

"As for you, sir, you must keep your troth with Bessie!"

"I will, for I despise you now that I know you were only flirting with me, and—" but he turned with a start, for the outer door of the conservatory opened, and a petite figure entered, the dark curly head held high, the mignon face very pale, the tiny white hand holding out a pretty pearl ring.

"Take your ring, Perry Grandison, and may God forgive you for your falsity," cried Bessie, her voice shaking with stifled tears.

"Oh heavens, Bessie! you have heard all. But forgive me, I pray you dearest, for I was caught by a siren's wiles. I only fancied I loved her, and, at the discovery of her falsity, my heart turned back to you with a warmer love."

"And I despise you!" she replied, scornfully. "There will be no wedding to-night."

"Ah, Bessie, don't say that rashly," cried a yearning voice, and Valentine Monroe stepped from his concealment and took her hand. "I, too, have heard all, and I rejoice in this craven's falsity, since it gives me another chance! Oh, Bessie, when I courted you, by the sea, last summer, you almost owned that, but for a prior engagement, you might have liked me. Can't you love me now? can't I take Grandison's place to-night?" he prayed earnestly.

"Ye-es, for I know I shall love you better than I ever could have loved Perry Grandison," she murmured, blushing, and let him slip his ring on her little hand.

And Val really married sweet Bessie that night, but Perry and Blanche did not stay for the wedding. They departed in haste repenting their treachery and hating each other—Perry to seek forgetfulness abroad, and Blanche to weep her heart out in a vain despair.

An Aged Fishhook.

There was recently shown in Birmingham, England, some Egyptian relics said to be authentic. Among them were a bronze water tap, 2,000 years old, well made, and as perfect in design as any modern plumber could make it; a copper fishhook, 5,000 years old, and a fragment of a copper saw, 6,000 years, described as the oldest piece of wrought metal in the world. A steelyard, with hooks, like those in present day use, was 4,000 years old.

EASY GRAFT.

Detectives Fall Ready Victims to the Clever Pickpockets.

"It is a fact," said Ellis T. Long, of New York, who was exchanging reminiscences with some friends, "that although a detective can generally protect any one else from thieves he is frequently robbed himself. I remember some ten or fifteen years ago, when I was connected with a private inquiry office in New York, a very amusing instance, showing that the proverb that the man who is his own lawyer has a fool for his client applies to a detective. Two well-known criminal hunters were traveling on the New York Central in the same car as myself and on a very similar errand. We had the smoking room to ourselves, and while we were discussing the ease with which the most careful man could be relieved of his pocketbook or watch without having his suspicion aroused, one of the detectives said he would bet $50 that the slickest pickpocket on earth could not take his diamond pin from his necktie without his knowing it. A moment later the other detective got up and went for a glass of water, and on his return to his seat he lounged past his friend and looked for a second out of the window. The conversation ran to other topics, but shortly afterward the man who had got up for a drink asked his friend if he was really willing to bet $50 that his scarf-pin could not be removed without his knowledge. In replying that he was, the booster naturally and instinctively put his hand up to his necktie and found the pin gone. His friend, who had extracted it as he passed him, took it out of his pocket and handed it back with a good-humored laugh at the expense of the other detective, who made no other remark, but simply called the porter and ordered refreshments."

MIND AND MATTER.

A Magician's Example of the Brain's Influence.

In Mr. Warburton's work on Egypt he describes his experience with a famous magician of that country. He, being sent for, came to Mr. Warburton's hotel to give him an exhibition of his skill. The magician calls a boy from the street and makes a mysterious mark upon his hand, requesting him to look steadfastly upon the mark.

This the boy did for ten minutes without any effect. The magician called up another boy and repeated the same thing. This boy, being susceptible to the influence, was soon in a semi-mesmeric condition, the object of the mysterious mark on the palm of the boy's hand being the means of putting the boy in a passive condition. The magician now requested Mr. Warburton to call up whom he wished, and stated the boy would see him. Mr. Warburton called for the late Lord Derby. The boy instantly cried out:

"Here he is! I see an old man, with spectacles, lying on a couch, having on a long, black robe." Mr. Warburton next called for the late Lord Nelson. The boy said: "Here he is. I see a soldier with one arm."

After calling for several others, the boy minutely described them, to the astonishment of Mr. Warburton and his friends.

Now the trick consisted in getting the boy to suspend his thinking faculties, so that he would become in a semi-mesmeric condition, and thus be in sympathy with the mind of Mr. Warburton when he called for the different individuals. The boy saw in a kind of vision the very picture that was passing through Mr. Warburton's mind when he called for these individuals. This is a high development of a clairvoyant condition.

Little Christopher Columbus, the Eskimo baby born at the world's fair last summer, died at the midwinter fair, being the last of the six children of that queer people born in this country to succumb to the climatic conditions.

Sir Robert Ball, the eminent English astronomer, in a recent lecture in Leeds emphatically asserted that the planet Mars is inhabited. It was, he said, impossible for men to live there, but creatures of some sort exist on that distant world.

The coroner's jury in a case at Winnipeg, Manitoba, in which a woman had taken poison, cut her throat and then hanged herself, after hours of deliberation returned a verdict that she had "come to her death from a cause or causes unknown to the jury."

British troops have been rushing through the state of Maine for months. It seems that the British government is desirous of seeing how quickly it can transport soldiers from the garrison at Halifax to Esquimaux, B. C., and the shortest route by rail is through the state of Maine.

It is now a rule of the white house that no bird shall be allowed to warble or even live within the walls of the executive mansion. Mrs. Hayes made this rule years ago, and it has been obeyed as a sacred precedent. When Mrs. Cleveland first came to the white house to live after her marriage she had a pet canary which she had brought with her. But the rule against birds was explained to her and she gave the bird away and kept the rule.

A Carnivorous Water Plant.

That strange water-weed, the bladder-wort is carnivorous, like some of those sinister tropical plants which seek what meat they may devour. The tiny bladders attached to the leaves and leaf-stalks are each furnished with a door, the whole acting on the eel-trap principle. Any small water creature that ventures to peep in is seized in the clutches of the murderous plant, and straightway is swallowed and assimilated.

A CIRCUITOUS SUCCESS.

A faint breath of exquisite perfume about her.

"Excuse me," he said. Just then the gas flared out in the lower hall. He made out a soft, oval face and a dainty figure, as he passed. Julian was a big fellow, with features of strength rather than of beauty, but for all that he was a "sensitive," whose impressions of people were as sure as a dog's instinct about his master. The young woman's "atmosphere" was agreeable. It followed him to his room.

He lighted the gas and looked around. It was a goodish den for a literary worker. The carpet of pale greens and olives was almost new. The windows had lace curtains, and a fair outlook.

He sat down and tilted back his chair. A curious plot for a story had come into his mind. It seemed to start out of that chance encounter on the stairs, yet he scarcely realized it then, so subtle is the action of the brain.

His heart began to beat quickly. He had done a good deal of patient work in the past, with indifferent success, but such impromptu mental activity was new. He took it as a good omen. He had a strain of what we call superstition, in his nature. A strange dream had impressed him with the belief that with his change of quarters, something was to happen—for the better.

The bright, unique ideas came pouring into his mind like a flood. They clamored for expression. He found a pencil in his pocket and looked around for paper. He had not a scrap. His trunks would not come till morning. If he stirred from the room to hunt up a stationer the aroma of the story would be sure to escape. He thought desperately of his cuffs, his shirt bosom, and execrated the motley wall paper. Had it been plain, it should have done duty as a tablet.

He sprang from his chair. The covering of the quaint table in the corner was of white oilcloth—imitation "marble." He sat down and marked it off in spaces. The pencil glided over it smoothly. He wrote quickly and without effort. He knew he had never done anything like this before. Some one seemed to be dictating at his elbow. He had heard and read of such cases. Now he was the subject.

He wrote column after column, till the cloth was covered. He leaned back and surveyed it. He knew the thing was unique and exquisitely wrought out. It was a love story, with that dainty creature on the dim stairway flitting through it. Julian's eyes grew misty. He looked at his watch. The three hours he had been writing had seemed but five minutes.

It was early yet, not 11 o'clock. He locked the door and went out on the street. He had a vague idea of getting some paper from some hotel clerk. He could not feel easy until his story was in manuscript.

He turned into the avenue. The thunder of the elevated was in his ears. A team was dashing along recklessly underneath it. He attempted to cross. Round the corner was the — house. The subtle fascination of the story was yet upon him. In the midst of it he was conscious of a sudden shock, a pain crossing the sweet-

PULLED FROM UNDER THE FEET OF THE HORSES. ness, making horrible discord, then all became blank.

He was pulled from under the feet of the horses. The blood flowed from a wound made by the cruel hoof. No address could be found on him and he was carried to a hospital. He had been severely but not fatally injured.

Brain fever set in, but an excellent constitution was in his favor. In his seasons of delirium the marble oilcloth haunted him. Sometimes it hung over him like an awning with the letters like a thousand eyes staring at him. Then they changed into Chinese hieroglyphics, and the young woman on the stairs was wrinkling her lovely brow in vain endeavors to decipher them. Again the cloth was waving like a banner from the roof of the Daily Fizzler. Through careful nursing he came out of the tangle at length, and began to recall just what had happened. His previous story which was to have inaugurated a new era, what had become of it? Four weeks he had been lying there, they told him. In that time the room would be let to a new tenant, and his story scrubbed off the cloth by some wooden-headed chambermaid. He fretted and fumed over it. His omen of good luck had been demolished by a sledge hammer.

"Don't you want to look over these papers?" queried the pretty cheerful nurse, placing a pile before him. "You need to catch up with the times." Julian tossed them over half savagely and came presently upon something that made his heart thump. His story was looking him in the face from the columns of the Exaggerator. It was entitled "Into His Kingdom." The letters seemed to wink and blink at him knowingly.

He read it through. There had been scarcely any alteration. Some-body had got ahead of the chambermaid and copied it, selling it as his or her own production. He should never be able to prove its authorship. He groaned in spirit.

Presently he came upon a copy of the Daily Fizzler, three weeks old. There he found the story headed by a sensational paragraph, which was evidently its first appearance, the other paper being a copy.

Julian was half amused, half annoyed over the conjectures about the author. The paragraph set forth the production found on the oilcloth as the last effort of an unfortunate son of genius. Driven to extremity, without a penny even to buy paper, he had fixed his last ideas upon the only white surface he could command, and then he had gone out into the night and committed suicide. One of those unidentified bodies at the morgue was his, probably. Could he have staved off despair twenty-four hours longer the ice would have been broken.

Julian breathed freer. The copyist then, had not palmed off the production as his or her own. He could yet claim it without dispute.

As soon as he was on his feet he called on the editor of the Daily Fizzler, who knew him by sight, and had prophesied success for him some day. "It seems I have been figuring in the Fizzler lately as an impecunious suicide," said Julian bluntly.

The editor laid down his pen. "Explain," he said.

Julian told the story. "Like another man, you awake to find yourself famous, said the editor offering his hand. "That story has been copied all over the country. It is a gem of its kind."

"I'm not sure I shall ever do so well again," said Julian.

"What is once done can be done again. You will now command a hearing."

"How did you get hold of it?"

"It was sent in by—by—" consulting a memorandum—"by Miss Cora Wheeler, 142 — street."

"Why, I wrote the story in that house!"

"She sent a note stating the facts, and Bolton, you know him, touched them up a trifle. None of us suspected you. The landlady believed your name was Jones, but, on second thought, didn't know but it was Smith."

"I had only a word with her when I engaged the room."

"I may as well pay you to-day," said the editor as he filled out a check. A glance showed Julian it was drawn for one hundred dollars. He was in luck after all, it seemed.

Next he rode uptown and rang the bell at 142 — street. How much had happened since he first went up those steps, less than six weeks ago!

The girl who opened the door looked at him blankly when he asked for Miss Wheeler, and showed him into a small reception room while she took his card. He was presently asked to step upstairs, third floor, front. The door was half open, showing a prettily furnished interior. He tapped gently. There was a rustling behind a dark green portiere and a young woman stepped out from behind it and greeted him with "Good morning." She was the one he had met on the stairs in the gloom, he could swear. There was the same faint perfume about her garments and, besides, he knew her atmosphere. "You are Miss Cora Wheeler?"

She bowed.

"And I am Julian Jones. I wrote the story on the oilcloth. I am told it found its way into print through you. I have come to thank you."

Miss Wheeler was about as breathless as Julian. She motioned him to a chair and sat down. The facts that he had presented rapidly grouped themselves at once logically in her mind. "Then you did not suicide," she said with a mirthful glance at his muscular frame, adding, "I never thought you did."

"I suppose I came pretty near 'shuffling off,'" he said, and repeated his story.

"I expected something of that sort had happened," said Miss Wheeler, though there were all sorts of conjectures. The landlady called upon me to read what you had written. She thought it might denote, denote—"

"Insanity?"

"It enchanted me. I write a little myself, you see. I sent it to the Fizzler. It was copied everywhere. You are a genius."

"With the right sort of inspiration," corrected Julian.

It looks now as if the pair would go into partnership. Under the name of metacyanotramethyldiamidodiphenylcarbinol, a firm at Haecht-am-Main, Germany, have patented a yellow coloring material.
