VOL. XX NO. 29.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

THE CITY FATHERS DESPATCH CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS.

Michael Stabler Wants a Liquor License and Taxpayers Want a Bridge of the T. & A. A. Tracks on William-

A communication was presented by Michael Staebler, proprietor of the Germania Hotel, in which he recites that William Frank paid $250 on a $500 liquor license for the bar at said hotel, and that soon thereafter he (Staebler) paid the remainder of the $500 and that no license had yet been issued. He asked that the council take action in the matter. Referred to the bond committee.

Ninety taxpayers presented a petition asking that a bridge over the T. & A. A. railroad tracks on Williams-st. be built. The taxpayers maintain that the grade crossing is dangerous to the public. The lengthy petition closed by saying that the T. & A. A. Ry. Co. would probably pay part of the expense in erecting a bridge. Referred to the street committee.

Petition were presented asking for a sidewalk on Benjamin-st. and two cement crosswalks at the intersection of Liberty-st. and Fifth ave.

A communication from Railroad Commissioner Billings notified the city that he had served notice on the Michigan Central that the bridge over the tracks on Detroit-st. was out of repair. He also served notice on the city that the bridge was out of repair.

The city attorney was asked to explain the remarkable straddle and he said that as was known by the council he had appeared before the railroad commissioner in behalf of the city and took the ground that the bridge was an overhead crossing and that the railroad company was holden to keep the bridge in repair. He then explained railroad commissioner what the notifi- water. cation meant.

Residents on Washtenaw avenue presented a communication protesting 000 a year and bring shorter hours and against the excessive lowering of the better pay to the 700,000 railroad emgrade for a sidewalk grade in front of ployes. the residence of Mr. Coon. Prof. Hinsdale said the main objection to the cutting of the grade was on account of a number of beautiful shade trees that would be destroyed. George W. Bullis thought that the grade should be lowered and said that members of the board of public works had said if the by the state board of health at its last grade was not change they would have meeting: nothing more to do with grades.

Ald. Manly said that if the board of public works did not care to do their duty, they should resign their positions.

Ald. Prettyman stated that a number of people had complained to him that the pressure on the water mains at the time they were allowed to sprinkle was insufficient. He said that the people were carefully obeying the rules of the company and he thought the Water Co. should see to it that they had sufficient pressure at the time when they could sprinkle under the rules. Ald. Kitson said that the pressure last evening at his place would not throw water four yards. Ald. Prettyman moved that the salary of the city engineer while at work on the lateral sewers be $100 per month. Ald. Wood asked if work was going to be done on the laterals before it was known what was the condition of the main sewer. Ald. Prettyman said that while there might be defects in the main sewer still without question the main sewer could be used. The resolution to increase the city engineer's salary then passed by a vote of 9 to 4.

The Truth About It.

To the Editor of THE REGISTER:-I was in the Argus office one day last week and among those present was Mr. Brown, of the Daily Times. I made the statement that in Australia workingmen could ride on the railroad six miles for 2 cents, twelve miles for 4 cents and thirty miles for 10 cents, etc., and that in Germany one could ride four miles for I cent and that the government owned the railroads, etc. Mr. Brown said that I was mistaken, and in order to show the gentlemen that I am not lying about the matter I beg leave to call his attention to the following article, taken from the "Ulturian."

In Australia you can ride a distance of 1,000 miles across the country for $6.50, first-class, too, while workingmen can ride six miles for 2 cents, twelve miles for 4 cents, thirty miles for 10 cents, etc., and railroad men receive 25 to 30 per cent. more wages for st.-Protest Against Lowering a eight hours of labor than they are paid in this country for ten hours of toil.

In Victoria, where the above rates prevail, the net income from the roads last year was sufficient to pay all the federal taxes.

In Hungary, where the roads are state owned, you can ride six miles for 1 cent and since the government bought the roads wages have doubled.

Belgium tells the same story-fares and freight rates cut down one-half and wages doubled.

Yet the roads pay a yearly revenue to the government of $4,000,000.

In Germany you can ride four miles for 1 cent on the government owned lines. Yet wages are over 120 per cent. higher than they were when the private corporations owned them, and during the last ten years the net profits have increased 41 per cent. Last year the roads paid the German government a net profit of $25,000,000. Workingmen and farmers, if you like such rates as these, vote the People's party ticket.

If our government owned the railroads we could go to San Francisco from Boston for $10. Look at the Uncle Sam pays the railroads not quite $275 to transport a loaded postal ear from Boston to San Franciso. A passenger car will carry fifty passengers, which, at $10 each, would be $500, or a clear profit of $225 a car, and this, too, after paying 51 per cent. on watered stock, which is fully 100 per cent on the cost of the roads.

To show how our railroads have watered their stock I point to the New York Central & Hudson River railroad which, when the Vanderbilts obtained control in 1869, was capitalized at that in his opinion the communication $49,000,000. DR. VAUGHAN AT WORK.

He is Looking for a Substance Which May Be the Elixir of Life.

The following interesting information is gleaned from the report sent out

"For a few years past Prof. Vaughan of the state board of health, has been engaged in some very important experiments in the state laboratory of hygiene at the University. These experiments relate to subjects of very great importance to the public welfare. One purpose is to accomplish the end which at one time it was thought had been reached by Dr. Koch, namely, the preparation of a substance which can be introduced into the body and which shall antagonize germs of disease such as those of consumption. Prof. Vaughan is now able to prepare a substance which there is reason to believe may be similar to the one normally used by the body in battling with the germs of disease. His experiments are not yet conclusive as to the usefulness of this substance for the cure of disease, but they tend to prove that by its use immunity to the contraction of germ disease is enhanced. The substance consists of the nuclei of cells, and since it is probable that the spleen is the organ in the body which takes the most active part in battling with germs of disease, he has given special attention to the 94, Pond 16. preparation of 'nuclein' made from the cells of the spleen.

ARBITRATION.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND SAYS IT MUST BE.

Will Proceed Under the O'Nelli Law of J888 Such is the Announcement in Washington Dispatches-Other Features of the Strike Situation.

Washington: It has been officially announced from the White House that the President will appoint a commission by the authority given him by the arbitration act of 1888 to investigate the labor troubles at Chicago and elsewhere and report to the President and congress. This determination on the part of the President was arrived at after an interview with Secretary-Treasurer Hayes, of the Knights of Labor, Mr. McGuire and C. N. French, of the executive committee, and Mr. Schoenfaber, who were introduced to the President by Senator Kyle. After discussing the various features of the situation for more than an hour, the President promised if the leaders would return to Chicago and use their influence toward restoring peace and order he would appoint the commission as soon as the disturbances had ceased to such an extent as to render a careful, thoughtful investigation possible.

The President laid great emphasis on the fact that no steps could be taken in this direction until lawless-ness had ceased, and he made his promise contingent on the pledge of the labor leaders to see to it that so far as organized labor is concerned the trouble at Chicago and elsewhere will Immediately disappear.

General Secretary-Treasurer Hayes, of the K. of L., in speaking of the de-cision of the President said: "The President seemed pleased to receive us and immediately opened the subject by referring to the law which the parties interested desired to see enforced. An hour was spent in discus-sing the various provisions of the act which authorizes the President on his motion to appoint two arbitrators, to-gether with United States Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright, to act as a commission of arbitration and investigate and decide what should be done by either party to settle the controversy. The commission has all of the powers necessary to administer oaths, subpoena witnesses, etc. We expect to secure much more from this arbitration than the final settlement of the present difficulty in Chicago. While it is in itself a great victory for lador organizations and everything that the A. R. U. has fought for, it gives official recognition to the justice of their demands for arbitration, and it will lead much further, for in the moments of the future, when defects of the present arbitration law have been made apparent by actual experience, prompt steps will be taken to amend the same." Debs is Pleased.

Chicago: Mr. Debs said: "We are very much gratified over the action of the committee and at the act of President Cleveland in appointing a board of arbitration. We have no doubt that the board will be composed of men of high character and ability and that they will be able to locate the right or wrong involved in the existing con-troversy, by virtue of which a satis-factory settlement will be reached. We are, of course, for arbitration and had this principle been recognized this strike would have been avoided."

Thicago: A movement originated among a coterie of Pullman stockholders on the board of trade to induce the resident directors of the Pullman company to bring their influence to bear on Mr. Pullman to yield to the demands for arbitration, or, if necessary, to call an emergency meeting of the executive committee of directors to act independent of the president in the interests of a majority of the ownership. It has always been sup-posed that Pullman and his most intimate friends owned a controlling in-terest in the Pullman Palace Car Co., but investigation shows that over two-thirds of the stock is owned by scattered outsiders, but as the company has been going on swelling its capital and apparently coining money, it never occurred to the shareholders to be inquisitive. Now, however, they are openly criticising the management.

The annual meeting of the stock-holders is held in this city the first week in August. With some the possibility has suggested itself of "throwing Pullman down" and putting a man at the head of the company who can be more polite in his intercourse with the rest of the world. Local stock-holders view with openly expressed alarm the effect of the strike and feel that by his autocratic and stubborn refusal to permit disinterested inquiry as to whether or not there is anything to arbitrate he is jeopardizing their

PRENDERGAST HANGED.

The Cowardly Murderer of Mayor Harrison Punish d With Death at Chicago. Patrick Eugene Joseph Prendergast, who on Oct. 28, 1893, shot and killed Mayor Carter H. Harrison in cold plood at the latter's home on Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, was hanged as an expiation for the cruel crime.

The last chance for life which remained to Prendergast was swept away when Judge Grosseup, of the federal district court, refused to interfere by granting a writ of habeas cor-pus or permission to appeal. When pus or permission to appeal. When Prendergast was informed that the last hope had faded away he refused to believe it. Again and again he argued that malice was a necessary element of murder and that there was no malice in his act. It was merely an unpleasant duty as he saw it, and it had been accomplished. He insisted that it would be judicial murder were he hanged.

Meantime the gallows timbers were being taken from the store-room and tested. It was the same gallows on which Buff Higgins suffered for his crime a few months ago, and from which the anarchists dropped in '86. When the structure was erected it was tested with sandbags.

The murderer's last night was spent in sound sleep and he ate a very little breakfast. At 11:45 a. m. the sheriff appeared in the corridor, followed by the condemned man who was sup-ported by Chancellor Barry of the Cathedral of the Holy Name. Pren-dengast looked like a rown coard how dergast looked like a poor, scared boy, as he walked, without urging, behind the young priest. He wore a cheap, worn suit, his shirt was white but without a collar. Jailor Price deftly put straps upon his arms, feet and legs. Then the white shroud was put about him. He was fearful and nervous. As the clasps were prepared for his arms he raised his right hand and made the sign of the cross. He was sane enough to keep his lips moving in prayer as the final preparations were being completed and the cap was drawn over his head.

At 11:48 he was standing on the trap and the crowd waited expectantly. It had been stated that he had a speech ready that would take 40 minutes to read, and reporters drew their papers and pencils, ready to put down his last words, but Fr. Muldoon had dissuaded him from making any scene in his last moments. The trap fell from under Prendergast at 11:49, and he fell like a bag of sand. There was a slight shrug of the left shoulder as the rope stretched, and so far as Prendergast knew it was all over. His pulse beat until 11:57, and then the jury of physicians filed by. Each listened at his heart to see if life was extinct. Nineteen minutes after the drop fell, the rope was lowered, the shroud removed and the body placed in a coffin.

REFUSE TO STRIKE.

American Federation of Labor Takes a Patriotic Stand.

The conference of the American Federation of Labor in session at Chicago decided against a general strike. The action of President Debs and the American Railway Union was indorsed, however, and $1,000 voted for a defense fund for the coming trial of Debs.

An address to the public was issued, which in substance says:
After careful, calm and full consideration of the great industrial up-heaval and in view of complications we are forced to the conclusion that the best interests of the unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor demand that they refrain from participating in any general or local strike which may be proposed in con-nection with the present railroad troubles. It must not be understood that we are opposed in any way to the that we are opposed in any way to all labor organizations struggling for right and justice. The public press All were destroyed with the entire contents and the fire stopped only it could find nothing more to are patriotic and law abiding, we protest against the assumption by certain corporations that because we oppose them we stand for lawlessness and anarchy. The trades union movement is one of reason, one of deliberation and depending entirely upon the vol-untary and sovereign action of its members; it has its origin in economic and social injustice. Industrial con-tests cannot be entered into at the behest of any individual officer of this conference, regardless of the position he may occupy in our organizations. While we may not have the power to order a strike of the working people of our country, we are fully aware that a recommendation to them to lay down their tools would largely influence them to do so, and appreciating the responsibility we declare that we believe a general strike at this time inexpedient and unwise.

We further recommend that all connected with the American Federation of Labor, now out on sympathetic strike, should return to work, and those who contemplate going out on sympathetic strike are advised to remain at their usual vocations. Mr. Pullman, in his persistent repulses of arbitration and in his heartless, autocratic treatment of his employes, has proven himself a public enemy. For years the railroad interests have shown the lawless examples of defiance to injunctions, and have set aside laws to control them. They have displayed the utmost contempt for the interstate commerce law, have avoided the pen-alties and sneered at its impotency to prevent pooling, discriminations and other impositions on the public. In this disregard of law these corpora-tions have given the greatest impetus to anarchy and lawlessness. Still they do not hesitate when confronted by outraged labor to invoke the powers of the state, the federal government, backed by United States marshals, injunctions of courts, proclamations of the President, and sustained by the bayonets of soldiers and all the civil and nilitary machinery of the law have relied on the summons of the corporations. Against this array of armed force and brutal moneyed autocracy, would it not be worse than folly to call men out on general or local strike in these days of stagnant trade and commercial depression.

No. Better let us organize more generally, combine more closely with our forces, educate and prepare ourselves to protect our interests, and that we may go to the ballot-box and cast our votes as American freemen, united and determined to redeem this country from its present political and indus-trial misrule, to take it from the hands of plutocratic wreckers and place it in the hands of the common people.

Don't take tips from flattery's tongue.

SOVEREIGN SNUBBED.

Knights of Labor Disregard His Order to Quit Work-Strike Seems Lost.

The effect of the appeal issued by Grand Master Workman Sovereign, of the Knights of Labor, calling on all knights throughout the country and those in sympathy with them to quit work is not very alarming. The Knights of Labor at all points heard from, including nearly all of the large centers of population in the United States, remained at work with practical unanimity. Mr. Sovereign points out that his appeal was not an order to strike; that, in fact, he has no power to order a walk-out, but he was perfectly confident that after the vari-ous local and district assemblies had time to meet and take formal action on the appeal and to rally their friends outside of the order, the result would show 1,000,000 of men idle as a conse-

As far as Chicago was affected of all the trades which had threatened a strike, the seamen, the cigarmakers and carpenters were the only unions which signified their intention of stopping work. The leaders, however, say that their is nothing in the situation to cause discouragement. The strike leaders claim that a little time was a necessary condition to a walk-out of the 100,000 men whom they represent, and that after the various subcorganic and that after the various sub-organizations had time to consult together the purposed tie-up of business would be fully as effective as they had pre-dicted. Surface indictions so far, however, do not bear out the claims of the Chicago men. Several of the organizations, members of the federated trades, have given it to be understood that they do not intend to go out.

Foreigners Drive Dock Men From Work. Work was commenced on all of the ore and coal docks on the Pennsylvania side of the river at Ashtabula, O., but had not been in progress over half an hour before a mob of 600 strikers, who had decided not to return to work, marched on to the docks and by threats compelled the men at work to cease their labors. Picks, shovels and tools of every kind were thrown into the river and a riot was only avoided by the men leaving the boats. One thousand Ashtabula dock strikers then marched to Conneaut, headed by a band, and compelled dock men to cease work. A large force of special policemen attempted to keep order, but to no purpose. Sheriff Allen was notified, and Mayor Parker also sent a request to Gov. McKinley for troops. The Geneva rifles were ordered out.

Two Deputies Killed in a Collision.

Two deputy U. S. marshals met their deaths and two others were seriously injured in a collision between freight trains on the Wisconsin Central tracks, in Chicago. Two locomotives and several cars were wrecked in the accident and the three-story brick warehouse of Burdett, Smith & Co., stove manufacturers, was partially destroyed. The Baltimore & Ohio and Wisconsin Central jointly use this track and by some misunderstanding of orders they met on a curve and the impact as the two engines came together was tre-mendous. Both engines were buried under the mass of shattered cars they were hauling, and the helpless deputies who were riding on top of the cars next the engines were caught and crushed beneath the debris.

An Ohio Town Burned Out. Fire broke out in Ellis Wilson's restaurant, at St. Clairsville, O., and in three hours damage to the amount of $200,000 had been done. There was no means of fighting the blaze and it quickly spread to Umstead's hardware store, then to Redmeyer & Van Curran's grocery, Alexander's drug store, Horner's meat market. Miller's saloon Horner's meat market, Miller's saloon, McMillan's jewelry, Conkle's bakery, when it could find nothing more to burn. The entire business portion of the town is wiped out.

SENATE.—176th day.—The proceedings in the Senate were listless and devoid of interest, the one thing that relieved the general monotony being a personal explanation by Mr. Allen. A recent newspaper charged the Nebraska Senator with being intoxicated and indecorous in his conduct recently, which Mr. Allen denied. At the same time he arraigned the fabricator of the story as "an assassin of personal character." Consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was resumed, but it was not passed, owing to the tendency of some Senators to filibuster and the lack of a quorum. House.—The House transacted no business before the hour arrived which had been set apart by special rule for eulogies in honor of the late Representative George W. Houck, of Ohfo. Many speeches were delivered in his memory.

Tried to Kill a Pullman Official.

Chicago: An attempt was made by a man whose name the police will not divulge to kill Vice-President Wickes, of the Pullman company, with an in-fernal machine. The man entered the building carrying a small bundle under his arm. He asked to see Mr. Wickes and was conducted to his office, where the special officers who guard the building quietly took his bundle away. It was found to be a glass bottle with a fuse attached and filled with some sort of explosive.

DELIBERATELY DERAILED A PASSENCER TRAIN.

A Chicago & Grand Trunk Express Thrown From the Rails at Battle Creek-Fireman Killed and Fourteen People Injured-Michigan News.

Atlantic express No. 6, going east on the Chicago & Grand Trunk railroad due at Battle Creek at 2:30 a. m., was ditched by a deliberately planned wreek at the top of a heavy grade one and one-half miles west of that city. Thomas W. Crowe, fireman, of Valparaiso, Ind., was killed and fourteen passengers and trainmen were injured. The express was 30 minutes late, but had just slowed up at the head of the grade. The train consisted of express and baggage ear, two coaches and four Pullmans. The engine and tender, express and baggage car and two coaches were badly wrecked. The four Pullmans remained on the track. It is a miracle that all of the passengers escaped with only bruises and concussions, and that not a bone was broken. The fireman remained on his engine until it was overturned, when he was thrown out and struck on his head,

The wreck was deliberately planned.
The bolts that fastened the fish plates had been removed and the plates taken off and then the rails spread. The second sleeper stopped over the place where the rail had been tampered with. The officials claim that this is the third attempt at the same kind of work within one week.

The wreck caused much excitement in Battle Creek where there has been a constant strain for some time past on account of the prevailing strike. This sequel of the troubles and the plain fact that it was deliberate, has added greatly to the excitement and there is universal denunciation of the miscreants who would do such a deed. It is claimed that the company have positive evidence that certain men were heard on the streets to say that something would happen on the Grand Trunk. Affidavits have been taken of those who overheard the remarks and the men will be arrested. W. J. Spicer, general manager of the Chicago & Grand Trunk, offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of the men who caused the wreck. Sheriff Walkinshi w, of Calhoun county, also offered a reward of $500.

Michigan Crop Report.

The Michigan crop report, issued from the office of the secretary of state, says: "The returns at hand indicate that the wheat crop of the state this that the wheat crop of the state this year will be about 15 per cent less than the crop of 1893. The reduction is entirely due to decreased acreage. The average yield per acre will fall little, if anything, below the average of a long series of years. Correspondents estimate as follows: Southern counties, 15.42 bushels; central counties, 15.74 bushels; northern counties, 16.13 bushels; state, 15.58 bushels. The area planted to corn equals the area in average years. The per cent in the southern counties is 98, central 102, and state 100. In condition the 102, and state 100. In condition the crop ranges from 88 per cent in the southern section to 97 in the northern. The outlook for oats is promising. The area planted to potatoes has been largely increased throughout the state. Clover meadows and pastures are in bad condition, due to 'nsect depreda-tions. The timothy fields are in better condition, but are much below a fair average. Clover sowed this year prom-ises well. Apples promise about threefourths, and peaches six-tenths of an an average."

A Bloody Murder.

James Robinson, aged 75 years, near Coldwater, very mysteriously disap-peared and circumstances at once lead to a suspicion of foul play. The sur-mise was correct, for after a search of three days the body was found buried about a foot in the ground under a manure pile in the rear of the barn near the house of Alton A. Misenar. Suspicion all the time rested upon Misenar, as Robinson was seen with him last. His having a bill of sale of all the dead man's property, the con-flicting stories as to his whereabouts, and the remarks made by his wife to a neighbor led to his arrest. Misenar was arrested by Sheriff Sweet while at work in a wheat field. An examina-tion of the body showed the marks of at least nine heavy crushing blows by some heavy blunt instrument like the back of an axe, crushing the upper and front part of the skull, making a pumice of the brain.

TE. Robbers Shot the Postmaster.

Just after Postmaster Weatherwax, of Somerset, Jackson county, had closed for the night three men drove up to his store. Postmaster Weatherwax sleeps in the postoffice and the men made a noise to attract his attention, telling him they wanted to buy something. When he opened the door two of them rushed in and overpowered him, but not before he had knocked revolver from the hands of one of his assailants. Postmaster Weatherwax was shot in the left leg and another bullet grazed him. He is not danger-ously injured. No plunder was secured and there is no clue to the perpetrators.

Farmers in the eastern part of the upper peninsula are troubled greatly this summer with grasshoppers, which are on hand in millions and eat the tops off green vegetables. A son of James McRorrie, a blacksmith of Bay City, was run overy by a F. & P. M. train and had both feet

Ed. Kopka, of Dundee, has a thick skull and he probably owes his life to the fact. While working in a black-smith shop setting tires he was struck on the head with a sledge hammer. Kopka was knocked out for a little while, but a few stitches and a little treatment by a doctor soon brought him around all right.

Company H, the Emmet Rifles, of Jackson, has adopted resolutions expressing loyalty to the state, and regret that the recent strike resolutions had been passed and misinterpreted. A paper signed by 53 members was sent to Adjt.-Gen. Eaton, disclaiming any sympathy with the sentiments ex-pressed in the said resolutions.

Lansing: Gov. Rich upon being apprised of the action of the Emmet rifles, a military company at Jackson, which adopted resolutions denouncing the military authorities for calling out the troops to quell insurrections and suppress riotous mobs, stated that he would thoroughly investigate the matter, but chose to withhold his opinion as to what sort of punishment would be inflicted, if any, in case the troops should be found guilty of insubordination.

Schoolcraft county has a great spring, Kitchi-ta-Kipi, about 14 miles from Manistique. It is 200 feet in diameter and 65 feet deep—a great bowl of water, clear as air and green as emerald. The grains of sand on the bottom can be distinctly seen, and the places where the water boils in look ike little craters. Quiet at Chicago-Battle at Sacramento. The great railway strike is practically at an end in Chicago. Trains on all roads are moving, passenger trains are almost without exception on time, and freight traffic is rapidly become regular. "The backbone of the strike is not only broken," said Manager Egan, of the General Managers' asso-ciation, "but the backbone has entirely disappeared. The blockade is raised, and it will require but a short time to get the railroad business of the city back into its regular routine."

Continued improvement in the railroad situation elsewhere except at Sacramento and Oakland, Cal., is noted. At the former federal troops were landed, but the state militia stationed on the water front to cover their landing were fired on from ambush after the regulars had moved away, and a train which it was sought to send to San Francisco under guard of federal troops was thrown from a trestle and fired into by the strikers, resulting in the death of one of the engineers and the wounding of several soldiers.

Disastrous Fire in an Ohio Town Edon, a small town in Williams county, O., was visited by a most disastrous conflagration, resulting in a loss of $175,000 worth of property. Seventy-two buildings were destroyed,

The residence of James O'Brien at including nearly the entire business section of the town. In many cases there was no insurance. The fire started at 11:45 and at 2 o'clock the destruction was complete, as a brisk wind was blowing. The village fire department consists of one hand engine. Relief was sent for to Bryan and Mont-pelier, but the fire had burned itself out by the time they arrived.

WEERLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: When circumstances are duly weighed, the strength and soundness of business in this country during the past few weeks are amazing. With the second city in the country in the hands of a lawless mob, besides many other cities and towns, with raliway traffic almost entirely stopped over the vast area between Toledo and the Pacific, with presidential proclamations declaring the existence of an insurrection and the passionate answer ordering half a million men to stop work, with a prolonged strike of coal miners not fully ended in many states, and with differences between the house and senate on the tariff question so wide that duties affecting mining and manufactures cannot be anticipated, industries and trade have nevertheless gone on with sublime confidence that the people and their government would soon restore order. The shrinkage of business and the depression of values have been unexpectedly small, the failures relatively few and unimportant, and there are even signs in some industries of actual progress toward recovery from previous troubles. Wheat is slightly lower, in profound disregard of the government report, which indicated small yield. Recipts and exports in the present disturbed condition of business are not significant. Corn has advanced a little, though accounts indicate a good yield. The number of failures during the past week has been 237 in the United States, against 35 last year.

New York.—Bradstreet's review says: General wholesale business at Chicago and at centers within the territory tributary has been practically paralyzed by the railway strike. Larger castern cities felt the effects of the tie-up in restricted receipts of live stock, meat and produce, while western manufactures and merchants suffered loss through inability to secure supplies and raw materials from the east. The railroad strike and boycott in part repeated the effects of the recent soft coal strike by shutting up a large number of important industries in the central

An Opposition to the Pullman Company. At a meeting held in East St. Louis, Ill., by a number of business men from that city and St. Louis, Mo., the matter of organizing a new sleeping car company, to be known as the Continental Palace Car company, was dis-cussed at considerable length. PUZZLE FOR ANTIQUARIANS.

Relics of a Race Who Lived on an Island Off the French Coast. A lady whose home is in the south of France writes to Goldthwaite's Magazine of a visit she made recently to an island on the coast of Brittany. Those who have read the story of King Arthur and his knights will remember that they started out over the sea in pursuit of the dragon. In this, the Marbihan sea, is a little island which can be reached from the mainland only when the water is smooth. The sole inhabitant is a Breton shepherd, who lives in a little hut and spends his time in caring for his sheep. The party landed and were met by the kind-faced old man, who led them over the grassy slope where his flock was feeding, and showed them the way around a hill, on the east side of which they found the entrance to a tunnel. This extended some distance, and its floor, sides and roof were made of immense flat pieces of stone, covered with hieroglyphs and figures, 'looking somewhat like wreaths and again like coiled serpents." At the end of this tunnel was a hall also floored, roofed and walled with the same curious stones, and in the center was an altar and a stone upon which it is thought that human sacrifices have been offered. The strangest part of all is that no stones or rocks like those used in this tunnel can be found on the and at no place nearer than iles inland. Who brought them? How did they come? There is no . cord left-at least none has been fo nd-to tell who these people were or anything about them. They must have lived many centuries ago, but have vanished entirely, yet their work is as perfect apparently as when first built. It is thought that they may have been Druids, who came here when they left Great Britain; others, again, think that they were worshipers of the serpent god called Hoa. But it is conjecture. All we know is that the stones are there, strangely carved, skillfully put together, but of their builders there is no trace.

Sailing Vessels Still Make Money.

That there is still profit in sailing craft is shown by the fact that the Dover navigation company, a New Hampshire corporation owning several three-masted schooners, at its annual meeting recently held, declared dividends averaging eleven per cent on four of its largest vessels. These dividends represented a year's earnings and on the earnings of one of its schooners, which, after six months of sailing, is stuck in the mud on the Louisiana shore, a five per cent dividend was paid. A well-known Bath-built four-master, only seven years old, has already netted $200,000 for her owners.

A Much-Married Woman. I find the following in the famous diary of John Evelyn: "At Haarlem they showed me a cottage where they told me dwelt a woman who had been married to twenty-five husbands; and, being now a widow, she was prohibited to marry in the future. Yet it could not be proven that she had ever made way with any of her husbands, though the suspicion had brought her divers times to trouble."

WE are sorry to see it, yes we are sorry, sorry, sorry indeed, that our esteemed contemporary, brother Smithe of the Ypsilanti Commercial, is cultivating bad, bad habits. We do not mean that he drinks and gets drunk nor stays out late nights and does other naughty things, but he is contracting a worse habit-he is writing long editorials! When this habit is once contracted, it assumes serious complications and, like the opium habit, (we are informed) is difficult to break, and usually ends in death. It is a well-known fact that Brother Hammond, Heaven bless him, and Brother Brown, Heaven protect him (they need it) have contracted The public at large pities them and it, before it is too late!

THE Politician in Detroit Tribune: interesting column "Among the politicians" with Shakespeare's truism "All, all, honorable men." It is the strangest thing in the world that politicians, as a class, are looked upon by many as positively dishonerable. time Democratic politician to a com- Manly, who has always been a champany of citizens of Athens a few days as good a crop of hustling young Demoeratic politicians agrowin' up and coming to the front as you can find anywhere in Ohio, where politicians are bred and born. Of course the time is acomin' when our present great politicians of both parties will grow too old for business and will be called to that blessed land, from whence no politician has ever returned. Norris is getting along in years pretty well, and so is Ed. Duffy and Jimmy Kearns and Doc Kapp and Mike Lehman and Doc Smith and Col. Dean and Pat McKernan and Harriman and Bill McIntyre and Frank Allmendinger and Densmore Ambrose Kearney and Tom Leonard and George Schwab. I tell you, gentlemen, they're getting pretty well along the bright side of 40 years and upwards and they'll not have the ambition anymore, nor the power, nor the staying qualities, nor the cheek after a while, and they'll have to take a back seat for the young chaps.

"Now, gentlemen, we have a crop of young politicians here who are excellent, honorable young men and no chumps. For instance, there's Jim Bach. He has just graduated from the chairmanship of the Democratic county convention and he has witnessed all of the tactics of a Richelieu and a Talley- man. "Then I'd fix up and I'd look rand, known in good American language as tricks. He has resigned the somest and lovliest young woman in chairmanship in favor of Artemus this congressional district and I'd catch Brown, who is not a better and an abler soldier, but a younger one. What Art death-" doesn't know about politics isn't worth knowing. He knows just how to go at a thing and do it up brown. And then there's John Duffy. John is a great figurer and can see a good diplomatic little lake and I'd fish and loaf around point quicker than any of the young all summer and invite my friends out fellows. He hasn't quite as much there and have the best things in the cheek as Art Brown or Jim Bach-in country to eat, and I'd have a No. 1 boat fact, he is rather modest—but he has a house and I'd have more fun than you way about him that takes just as well can shake a stick at. I'd invite the as cheek.

"And again, gentlemen, next in line comes the good-natured young Fourth warder and six-footer, Frank O'Hearn, That chicken knows everybody and everything that's going. There don't any ships pass in the night that Frank don't see. He can keep his mouth shut tighter and longer than any of the young politicians and he talks in parables when he does open up. A fellow never can tell where he is at. Will Miller is quite a duck among the boys and comes pretty near knowing all about the Fourth ward. He can generally guess pretty close on the result of an election in that ward, as he is one of the engineers in that political hot bed, where the pot is always boiling. Char-Re Kline is another. He can distance all of the young] fellows laying body is sleeping and then surprises around and sits around and talks poliwires. He works nights when everyeverybody by the force of his genius. If Charlie were fat and had a large face he would be a Napoleon among the young fellows.

"Will Watts is another of the shrewd young fellows. He is well liked, and about town and down-town statesmen when he does move, he moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has for years been one of Postmaster-General Beakes' scholars, and has graduated from local politics, being, as you all know, at present assistant to his master in the postoffice. This will shelve him for a time and give him a

"Then, again, there's Sid Millard. He is one of the lieutenants of the Dem. ocratic party in the second ward, and usually succeeds in getting six men on a delegation. He has a knack for poli. a great many must be relaid. "I want tics and soon catches on when a job has a man who is fearless, who is strong been put up by the party leaders. When and has an iron constitution, to enter he gets onto a deal, he goes home, smiles all by himself and thinks that have such a man here, name him. coming events cast their shadows before, and sometimes they don't.

"Come to think about it, I'll tell you of a young politician who'll make them all look up some day. Idon't just know what his first name is, but it is Campbell-O, yes, F. G. Campbell is his name. He is a smoothe talker, makes a good speech and takes an active part in politics. Did you ever notice when he talks how he puts in all the commas and dashes and exclamation points and punctuations? Then there are others, gentlemen, there are others too numer. ous to mention. Five Reasons Why You Should Use the Pyramid Pile Cure.

First, it cures every form of piles without a particle of pain.

Second, it cures without any inconvenience or detention from daily work Third, its effects are lasting and not simply a temporary relief.

Fourth, it is the cheapest and safest pile cure before the public. Fifth, it is entirely harmless, containing no mineral poisons, and cannot harm the most delicate. It has been thoroughly tested by physicians in every state in the union and is recognized by the best authorities as the safest, surest and cheapest pile cure known.

When it is remembered that usually ease to cure, the results obtained from using a single package are certainly remarkable to say the least. People who have been annoyed with piles for sults always secured.

He Gives a Brief Paper on the Attempt to Force Pullman. ANN ARBOR, July 12, 1894.

To the Editor of THE REGISTER:-Dear Sir:-The social and governmental problems connected with the present strike are very interesting and important. Most men sympathize with the laboring men at Pullman, and think that some effective measures should be provided to remove the abuses they suffer. There is no lack of sympathy for the laboring men. There is, however, a very general opinion that the remedy they have provided in the present strike is worse than the disease. The Pullman Co. claim that they will lose money by running their shops. Then the verything that would please Pullman most would be to have his shops closed. The laboring men have struck and closed his shops, and he is enjoying a nice vacation on the St. Lawrence river, and the governments, state and national, are carefully protecting his property. The laboring men have done just what Pullman wished to have done. Pullman is not injured and is not punished. He smiles blandly over his cool glass of lemonade, etc., at his palatial summer resort and enjoys hugely the situation.

Who are injured and punished by this strike? The laboring men and the general public. Chicago will have to pay several millions for property destroyed by the mobs. The state of Illinois will have to pay large sums for the expenses of her citizen soldiers now in the field. Railroads and steamboat companies will lose large sums by diminution of traffic. Merchants and others will lose millions in decreased trade and the public generally will suffer much loss by this strike. The strikers themselves will lose enormous sums in wages they might have earned and some will be left permanently out of employment for a long time. Factories that were running at small profit or at a loss, will not start up again till times improve. The laborers have used up the little money they have laid by, and in the coming winter the general public will have to support a large army of the unemployed. These are some of the leading results of this selfimposed punishment by the strikers, The strikers have punished themselves and the general public severely, and Pullman not at all. The strike then is a failure and a serious mistake. The remedy by a strike must always fail for several reasons. When 50,000 laboring men are turned loose in a strike, they cannot be controlled. They are not an army under military organization and thorough discipline. They are an unorganized, uncontrolled mob. Mr. Debs has issued a number of most excellent orders, and given the strikers excellent advice, but it has not been heeded. Mr. Debs has no power to enforce his orders. Then, too, many burn and plunder. In a word, a strike always results in an uncontrolled mob estructive of both life and property A man or body of men who organize and start a strike by that act set in motion forces that will result in the commission of many of the worst crimes punished by the criminal law. It is a serious question whether an act that immediately causes such enormous injuries and damage to the general business interest of the country, that necessarily results in the destruction of the property, life and liberty of our citizens and in no way tends to remedy the grievances of the strikers, is not in itself a crime that ought to be punished of the strikers get drunk and cannot be controlled, and in a great city like

Chicago the roughs and thugs all join the strike because there is a chance to

by the criminal law. In any event the laboring men should see by this time that the strike is worse than useless as a remedy for the differences between labor and capital. There are admitted grievances that demand a remedy. Laborers in shops and factories have been necessarily forced into specialties. A laborer in a factory is no longer a general mechanic who could turn his hand to almost anything, but learns to do only one class of work and is not prepared to take up something else. If by force or voluntarily he quits work, he and his family must starve or be supported by public charity. Grievances necessarily arise between the employers and their laborers. Remedies for these should be provided so that as a rule the laborers will not feel compelled to quit work to correct a grievance. The most promising remedy yet suggested is national boards of arbitration as suggested by Mayor Pingree, of Detroit. It would take some time, of course, to perfect this measure, but time and experience would do that. It would at least give us an impartial tribunal that would determine who was in the wrong. This would aid greatly in correctly forming and guiding public opinon, and this would go far to correct the grievances.

Respectfully, N. W. CHEEVER.

> XXXVII. OPENING OF THE SCHOOL.

In pursuance of an act of the legislature approved April 6th, 1838, a loan of $100,000 was negotiated through the bank of Michigan for the University in order that the preparation for the work of instruction might proceed without delay. Work was going on in the branches that a class might be ready as soon as possible for the central school. Building at Ann Arbor was in progress not on the magnificent scale of the New Haven architect's plan, but still on a scale which the resources of the instituto build twelve houses for professors, four of which were built at a cost of tion. somewhat over $32,000. Had the twelve been built, this alone would just about exhaust the loan. The two dormitory buildings which now form the wings of the main edifice were successively put up, the second, however, not car a day or two ago that one of till some years after the opening of the them was carried by her "getting school. The exact cost is not now in my mind; I think it was about $35,000. July 17th, 1838, Dr. Isa Gray was elected demanded by word and gesture that Professor of Botany and Zoology, the conductor stop the car. This and being about to sail for Europe, the was promptly done and the woman sum of $6,500 was put into his hands, seized a child lying close by her and $1,500 as his year's salary, $5,000 to rushed out. purchase the beginnings of a library. The regents paid in 1837 $4,000 for Baron Lederer's collection of minerals and a few months later $970 for a copy of Audubon's Birds of America. This orougly. was four years before the opening of the University and with the carrying on of the branches and a few other expenditures exhausted the loan. In September, 1841, a freshman class was ready and the central institution was opened by calling two principals of clothing. branches, Professors Williams and Whiting, to professorships in the University. These men had received $1,500 a year for their work in the branches. But such was then already the low condition of the finances that their

These two professors were aided by a tutor and, having during their first year but a single college class were able to carry on a preparatory school. Indeed, this school was continued for three years, that is, until the first class entered senior, and all that up to this time had been required for carrying on the work of an eastern college was in operation here. Other provisions were early made looking to the future of the University, the chief of which were but incidents of the state plan of a geological survey. A law approved in February, 1837, provided for this and Dr. nical and zoological brances of the survey. The work in zoology Dr. Sager himself took charge of, while Dr. Wright, of whose person and work I have little information, had in charge the work in a matter of the state and not of the Uni- his arms a little child. versity, a question may arise as to the propriety of its introduction in a sketch and explain how you come to drop a of the University. University professor.

Then also, in 1842, Drs. Houghton and Sager were made professors in the University, to enter upon actual service when the demand should arise. Dr. Houghton's place was that of Professor of Chemistry and Geology. Dr. Sager was to take the place of Dr. Gray, who never entered upon his work here, but accepted the professorship of botany in Harvard college. Nor did Dr. Houghton ever enter upon service, but when a demand arose for instruction in the department which had been assigned to him, he furnished a substitute in the person of his relative, Dr. S. H. Douglass, who, in 1846, Dr. Houghton having been drowned in Lake Superior in 1845, was elected to the place. It being generally thought that Dr. Houghton was drowned from the Indian canoe now in the University museum, and that this is kept as a memorial of the sad occurance, I will in passing correct the impression by observing that the canoe, now in the museum, was suspended to the beams in the woodhouse connected with the eastern University house on the north side of the campus when I took possession of the premises in September, 1844, somewhat more than a year before Dr. Houghton's death. It remained there for about two years because it could not be gotten into the door of the dormitory building then up and so turned as to be carried up stairs. It was finally raised through a window into the room then occupied as a museum. The class that entered freshman in 1841, became seniors in 1844, making further provision for instruction necessary. At this time I was elected to the Professorship of Intellectual and Moral Philosophy and Dr. Douglass, as indicated above, was employed to give instruction in the physicial sciences. The name of Reverend Edward Thompson, of Cincinnati had stood for some time on the catalogue as professor elect to the the catalogue as professor elect to the chair of Intellectual and Moral Philosophy; but he never entered upon duty and, when in 1844, he was required to do so, or resign, he chose the latter alternative and afterwards was made one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church. Professors Fasquelle and Sager were earlier under appointment, but neither entered upon duty until 1846.

Thus I have sketched the history of the University up to the time of my own connection with it. It began with a course quite equal to that of the average eastern college and men to carry it on; for at that time the great expantion would not bear. The design was sion of the course had scarcely been entered upon in any American instituago, when the earth was young, this shepherd boy was in the habit of watching the sparkling stars of heaven, when driving home his sheep at night. He was lost in a world of wonder at their beauty, and thought that strange people must live in them.

"I wonder," thought he, "will I ever be able to reach them? will I ever see the race of men who people those glorious golden worlds?"

But the notes of the huntsman's horn, sounding clear on the evening breeze, dispelled his lofty thoughts, and he wearily retired for the night.

One lovely evening he saw a ladder, made of golden threads, slowly unfold itself from Venus, the bright star, and fall to the earth near his feet. He was so astonished that he thought he must be dreaming. But on examining the ladder, he saw that it was a reality, and that some one was descending it, coming from the star.

What would he do? Seize the person who was coming from the star, and compel that person to let him climb the ladder; or would he tear the golden ladder from Venus, and become a rich man?

Perplexed in the extreme, he resolved to await developments. He did not have to wait long, for in a few moments a beautiful princess reached the end of the ladder and stood before

Oh! What a vision of entrancing loveliness! He had never before seen such a beautiful woman. Her blue eyes, golden curls and perfect form made his heart throb with love. What dangers he would brave to possess the fairy standing near him!

"Who are you?" he asked, at length. The princess smiled, and replied in a voice of melody:

"I am a princess; my name is Lycia, and I came from Venus, the evening star, on an errand of great importance. Oh! lonely shepherd boy, will you aid me in a great undertaking?"

He thought there was something strange about her words and actions; but her beauty conquered his thoughts and he said: "I am at your command. But before I lift a hand to help you, tell me, O, tell me, princess of the evening star, are these-are there brighter, greater, nobler beings, than the mortals of this earth dwelling in those lands of beauty above?" Her eyes sparkled with pride as she re-

"In Venus, the land of my birth, there is a race of people far greater other things."

"Will I ever see them?" he inquired. "Yes, you will see them if you aid me to free my mother from a witch's

"I give you my promise. I will do power to free your mother from the enchantment.

Lycia kissed his hand rapturously, and said:

"You are too kind!--by what name are you known in these mountains?"
"My name is Harold."

"Then, Harold," she continued, "I are the king and queen of Venus; and, although their power extends far and wide, it received a severe shock at the hands of the witch. She has ceased—and a dark eyed siren left the

"Nay; you would not. A man of and be free from her magic. A man is her throne and came toward him. the only one who can break the chains of enchantment and free my mother. Will you be her champion?"

"And now," she resumed, releasing eyed beauty. Three days passed thus, herself from his embrace, "let us enter Venus."

They ascended the ladder together, and were soon in the star.

How strange everything appeared! What roads of silver dazzled Harold's eyes! What castles of gold were there! and what beautiful pearly clouds floated about in the azure sky of Venus. Lycia introduced him to her father, Kaldemar by name, and immediately a great banquet was prepared, at which all the people of the kingdom appeared, save the witch and her minions. The banquet lasted for six days and at the expiration of that time Lycia told him that he must free her mother, because she feared that the witch would be torturing her mother to death.

"I will go at once," replied Harold, and free her if it costs me my life!"

"But," said Lycia, "you will have severe trials to brave; the witch will endeavor to make you forget your promise to me; she will entertain you royally in her marble halls, where she keeps bands of beautiful women-and -and I am afraid that you will forget me and your resolutions in that whirl of fascination."

"Ah, lovely Lycia," Harold replied, "do not entertain those thoughts of fear; I could never forget you nor the vows I made; your mother's welfare shall rest in the temple of my mind-your love shall spur me on, and give me courage to brave all sirens' charms!"

"Then go at once Harold and free my mother. I give you six days in which to do it, at the end of that time, if you do not make your appearance, I will know that you cannot free her, and that you are charmed by the nymphs. Go-may the god's protect you!-with you goes all the future of Lycia."

They embraced, and Lycia gave him a rose, which he was to wear on his bosom, that it might help him to think of her, if the witch's nymphs succeeded in charming him. She was

Harold journeyed on all that night, and as he was crossing a silver mountain, a number of animals came up to him, and said strange things.

"Ha!" put in a third. "You two are always ready to predict misfortune for a person. No doubt, he will have considerable trouble, but I'll warrant than the mortals of this earth! their that we will dance at his wedding." 'Pooh!" snarled the others." always say the same things over and over-you're an old gossip anyway!" And with that, they ran off into the

But Harold grew sad. What if the animals had prophesied truly? would all that lies within the limits of my he persevere? would he remain true to his promise? Ah! yes; for a great reward awaited him-Lycia would be his wife. To possess such a beauty, he would brave a world of dangers. As he journeyed onward, he descried castle towers and battlements in the distance; he saw bands of nymphs coming towards him with banners must tell you the story of my mother's waving, he also heard music playing, misfortune. ranks and came toward him.

"Most gracious shepherd prince," she said, "our great queen the witch of the star, hearing that you were about to explore her lands, sent this deputation to attend and give you entertainment before you commence your work. Hoping that you will accept her invitation, we await your further orders, and trust that you will join us and march to her castle at

How beautiful she was! could he resist those soft, pleading eyes? Could he resist the temptation of joining them? No. It would be impossible; he was the slave of their wishes. He saw the exquisite beauty and grace of each one, and said:

"March on to the castle at once. am anxious to see your queen's castle!" And as he marched on he thought:

"I will only tarry at their palace for one day, and then I will look for Lycia's mother. Lycia would not deny me this little indulgence, and then I will have five days remaining in which to accomplish my purpose.' So saying, he continued to walk with them until a halt was called, and "Then how can I free her? I would then the dark eyed siren led him into the marble halls of the witch's castle. Such grandeur he had never beheld before, and he was lost in wonder this earth can enter the witch's land, until the witch hobbled down from

"You must remain with us awhile." "Come," said she, smilingly "come to the banquet hall."

He suffered himself to be led to the banquet hall, because he was powerless to resist the beauty who was exerting such an influence over him. Yes; Harold could find no words in which he loved her. He forgot Lycia-forgot the vows he had made to her, and lived upon Marian's enchanting smiles; for Marian was the name of the dark-looks of sunshine when she made her appearance again.

which was bounded on all sides by golden hills, where lovely fairy maidens fantastically danced until the midnight hour; at this hour of entrancing solitude, the lovers reclined on ivory couches, which were lined with the purest silver, and drowsily listened to the liquid notes of the plashing fountains; castles of flashing diamonds rose up before their gaze, as if by magic, and the sweetest music came whispering toward them; clouds of perfumed incense stole through the air of harmonies toward the sky of the star, which was turning from purple to green and red and gold; thousands of glorious lights shone through the incensed air and myriads of elves united in one great effort to load the evening breeze with the lulling music of enchantment.

In this world of joys, Harold forgot Lycia entirely. He never once paused to ask himself why he was in the star, or how he had entered it; all his looks, his words, his thoughts were lying like serfs at the feet of the fairy beauty-Marian. But pleasure cannot last forever; the greatest pleasares receive the severest blows of fate! and so it was with Harold's.

A grand dance was announced that evening at which everyone attended. The music began, and all the people whirled gracefully over the marble floors; when the excitement was at its highest point a rose fell from Harold's bosom—it was the rose which Lycia had given

It was the flower of remembrance. Yes, he seized it, rose to his feet, imprinted a fervent kiss on its withering petals, and called it the flower of remembrance! Maddened by the enchantment he had undergone, he rushed madly from the hall-out into the cool evening-out into the air of freedom.

"Hold!" cried a voice in the darkness, "you can not escape me thus." And the next moment Marian was standing before him, breathless and

"Harold!" she sternly cried, when her breath was under control, "you must not think of escaping me! Oh, no! you must become my husband! The priest will soon be here, and we will be married."

"I think not," was Harold's cool re-

"What?" she screamed with rage; 'Am I not a fit companion for your future life? Have I not wasted my time with you? Will I not become an object of laughter to my friends?--"

"It is no fault of mine. You lured me to your lovely shrine, and made me forget my sacred vows to Lycia, the princess of the star; you obeyed commands of the witch and nothing more; you were to receive ma as a recompense for all your endeav-ors, but Lycia's rose has dispelled the threads of the magic web, which you were weaving around me, and I am

The next difficulty which suggested itself to Harold, was to depart from the witch's dominions, free. If he succeeded in eluding her, golden showers of rewards would be heaped

At length they entered a silver road which wound round the witch's castle, and led to Kaldemar's kingdom. If he could only pass the witch's castle without molestation, he knew that he could travel through the remainding part of the country with safety. As he came near the castle in question, he saw numerous dwarfs with torches

He would soon know. As he passed the first group of dwarfs, he heard some one behind them laughing mockingly, and turning round, he discovered that it was Marian. But he did not halt; fear lent speed to his feet, and in a few noments he stood outside of the charmed country!—he was free!—he was in Kaldemar's kingdom.

The moment that Harold and the queen passed the magic boundaries, his royal charge, shivered and said:

"At last I am free! the gods were kind to me, when after years of torture and separation from my family, they permitted you to release me! come; you shall be shandsomely rewarded." And when they had traveled on for a few hours, they saw a brilliant equipage coming toward them followed by hundreds of soldiers. It was a crystal carriage lined with strips of the brightest gold, and was drawn by eight white horses.

I care not for the pomp and power of a ruler, nor do I sigh for the golden crown of a prince; Lycia," he continued seriously, "ifwe could be man and wife-that would be the greatest joy you could confer on me!"

"Let not sadness weigh down your noble heart-I am yours. Come; we will ask my father's blessing."

And hand in hand they entered the throne room, where there was great rejoicing, and knelt before Kaldemar who was seated on his throne.

"Father," began Lycia, "you beheld the nobleness of Harold here, who braved all dangers to free my mother from he witch's charms-'

"I did, my child," interrupted Kaldemar, "and I intend to reward him." "Father, the reward he claims is

"What!" thundered Kaldemar, rising in wrath from his throne, while the rattling of swords was audible in the room. "Does you miserable shepherd boy ask you to be his wife? Would you wed with a mortal of the earth, who cannot afford the means by which you should live in royal style? Would you disgrace the fair name of your ancestors? Speak to me, child; my heart is heavy.'

"Father," Lycia said, "I know I am your daughter; and all daughters should bow in obedience to the com-mands of their parents; but if you only knew how I loved Harold you would not look down on me with such an eye of scorn."
"Lycia! Lycia! Your words

Harold, who was already in a rage, could withstand it no longer. The king had branded him with the name of viper, and the hot blood of injured pride mantled his cheeks.

"Keep your daughter!" he cried out in ringing tones. "Although I love her to madness, I would rather be free from the union which would incur such enmity ou your part!"

"Stop!" roared Kaldemar in a rage. 'Do you dare to brave me-the mighty king of Venus!" "I hurl defiance at your crown! I am but a poor youth, but poverty in anger is greater than kings surrounded by their armies!" Then turning round, he pressed Lycia to his bosom. "Do not weep," he said, "I do not seek to marry you-"Enough! enough!" thundered Kaldemar, while he rushed down the steps of his throne toward the lovers. "Separate them!" he cried to his sol-

"Farewell, Harold!" said Lycia, "although we are separated, I shall remain true to you until death!"

But Harold was not allowed to speak to her-to tell her he would also be true until death; the rough guards placed their hands over his mouth, and, in obedience to the commands of the king, hurled him from the star to the earth below, to a prison on a high rock near the ocean.

He cried for joy, when he found himself on earth once more; but his was turned to dismay when he saw that he was a prisoner. Rough iron bars were on his windows, and a door of brass separated him from freedom.

For twelve long years he was a prisoner. He tried to force the door open, but a hollow sound was the fruit of his efforts, and at last he gave up in despair. Food was always placed in his prison; but he did not know who brought it, nor did he trouble himself to find out. He was growing old; his locks were silvery white, and he thought his face must be wrinkled. He had no mirror, in which he might consult and therefore he merely wondered.

As time flew by he grew more and more despondent; but he was destined to see days of sunshine yet, and one day, when the monarch of the heavens arose and filled the land with fluid gold, when the birds sang merrily in the trees, and when every-thing seemed to rest in the fields of contentment, Harold heard sweet notes of music in the distance, they were like balmy sighs from paradise.

The music seemed to possess magic power, for Harold fell fast asleep un-der its influence. When he awoke he found himself in Venus, in the throne room of Kaldemar's palace. Lycia stood beside him, her lovely eyes looking at him in the greatest happi-

Harold embraced her and led her to the altar where they were married. When they were coming down from the altar, music struck up in every direction; and every one attended the wedding banquet: the animals that prophesied Harold's misfortunes; the witch, who had become a good wo-

The sad and unexpected news of the death of Dr. Heller which, was received here Tuesday afternoon, was a great surprise to everybody. The first telegram that came announcing his serious illness, was somewhat mixed in name and not until the second one came a few hours later, telling of his death, was it known to be one of the worthy and highly respected professional men of our village, but it was soon found to be a fact that Harry D. Heller, D. D. S., had just passed away at Northville, where he had recently gone for treat-ment, after which it had been his purpose to go to Indianapolis to take a post-graduate course in his profession.

In Trades.

A most amusing list could be formed of the odd names given to some articles in various trades. Appended are a few in use by hardware men: A "curate" is a small auxiliary poker with a steel point, inare only kept for show; it is a standing joke that this article takes its name from the fact that it does the principal part of the work. A "footman" is an ornamental weight used for the purpose of keeping a door open, whilst a "porter" is a spring for keeping it shut. A "waiter" is a small tray. An innocent-looking arrangement of tin is the "demon" insect trap, and a machine used for grinding different substances is known by the forcible a propos title of the "devil" disintegrator.

LITERARY NOTES.

Mark Twain has never written anything more striking than the article 'In Defence of Harriet Shelley," the first instalment of which appears in the July number of the North American Review. As its title implies, the paper is in the nature of a vindication of the memory of the poet's wife from biographical misrepresentation, and even those who are not specially interested in the subject cannot fail to be attracted by the manner in which it is treated by the famous humorist .-North American Review, New York.

The July number of The Forum is, as usual, a special educational number; and, as usual, it deals with very practical problems in education-problems of interest not to professional educators only, but problems that touch the very base of our system of training. The three articles are: "The Ideal Training of an American Boy,' a working statement of the highest ideal, by Prof. Thomas Davidson; "Research the Vitalizing Method of Higher Teaching," by President J. Stanley Hall—the most suggestive of his series of articles; and "Will the Co-educated Co-educate their Children?" in other words, will women who attended co-educational colleges send their children, especially their eyes. daughters, to these colleges? This article, by Prof. Martha Foote Crow, of the University of Chicago, is based on a series of inquiries made of the Alumnæ of Cornell, the University of Michigan, and the other co-educational schools.-Forum Pub. Co., New York.

Mrs. Burton Harrison's storry, "A Bachelor Maid," which begins publication in the July number of The Century, takes up a new phase of the woman's rights question, the revolt against matrimony and the more or less exacting ties of family life, which are supposed by those who have aspirations to hamper the fullest development of ideal womanhood.—The Century Co., New York.

The Review of Reviews offers its Fourth-of-July greeting to American citizenship in the form of a thoughtful discussion of vital political and social questions, and particularly of the so-called "new sectionalism" that matter. The credit system is the is apparently arraying the West against the East. Several pages of the July number are given to letters from Western men describing Western economic conditions and movements. This publicity to Western views is given at this time with a view to promoting better understanding and mutual respect between the sections. -The Review of Reviews, New York.

> GARTER OR DOG COLLAR? The Conundrum Which a Self-Possessed Girl's Manner Propounded.

"The most self-possessed woman I ever saw is just now one of the belles down at Old Point Comfort," said Arthur Spalding, of Bridgeport, to a writer for the Washington Star. "She is a perfect Juno as to figure, and half the manly heads of the place have been turned by her, and the other half would give all their hopes of a better hereafter to be called as she calls her spaniel— 'Sweetheart.' The young lady has played no favorites among her admirers, however, and an examination of her card at any of the dances would show a list of names as different as those on the register youder. The other day she went up for her usual promenade on the ramparts of the fort, and, as usual, was accompanied by her aunt, who is her chaperon, one of her rigid rules being to allow no man to escort her when she takes her morning constitutional. By some aggravating cause she lost an article which is an important part of the feminine apparel. It happened that a bright young devil of an army officer came along and picked it up. He caressed the nar-row strip of blue silk, admired the artistic workmanship of the gold contraptions on either end of it, and. upon closer examination, deciphered those initials that agreed with those borne by the charming creature who was swaying along the path a hundred yards in front of him. property is yours.'

She thanked him with a cordiality that made him almost stutter strings of moths who had fluttered and, turning to her aunt, remarked with apparently unconscious naivete: the flame of Mrs. Venning's bright "Sweetheart is such a careless eyes.

If her pet had how such an idea could ever come into been a toy terrier she would have been lost. It is scarcely necessary to add that when Sweetheart redainty mo turned to the hotel he was not sporting a blue silk collar with gold scribble a few names across the sheet.

strewn carpet of the drawing room in a Victoria street flat swept and rustled the laces and silks of Mrs. Venning's newest Paris tea gown. Faster and faster turned and paced Mrs. Venning's small satin slippers, the while the owner of drawing room, tea gown and shoes dabbed angry tears from her eyes with a fragmentary lace pocket handkerchief.

"What shall I do? Whatever shall I do?" cried Mrs. Venning, as for the hundredth time the marqueteric writing table barred her progress and turned her footsteps back to where the carved mantlepiece positively groaned under its load of Dresden china, old ivories, fresh roses and bibelots of every description. She crossed the white fur rug and, pausing, gazed ith a self-pitying smile at the pretty profusion that met her

She frowned a little before she turned again to the writing table, where the silver and gold knicknacks were hidden beneath piles of papers, those of a blue tint predominating. "Oh, how I hate you all!" she cried, shaking a white fist at the offending documents. "How I wish I could burn you all, as I have so many of your predecessors; but I dare not—I dare

She dropped into the writing chair and leaned her chin, dimpled and round as a baby's, in her palms.

"It seems to be about six thousand pounds that horrid people want from me. I can't make it any less, and I've added everything together a dozen times. Of course, I know I have been extravagant-but, then, I'm youngand-not bad-looking" (which was Mrs. Venning's way of considering her undoubted beauty), "and a widow into the bargain. All widows are expected to be so very smart nowadays. Still, the tradespeople should not have given me such unlimited credit. Ah! that's the real root of the whole ruin of women, who, like myself, must have pretty things about them. These horrors," and she flicked at a pile of dunning letters with her handkerchief, "would wait if they heard I was about to make a rich marriage. A rich marriage-now let me think who

And Mrs. Venning laid her bejeweled finger across her eyes and gave herself up to serious thought.

"I'd throw the handkerchief at Raphael Gluckstein in a moment and I know he'd positively jump at me, for the sake of my visiting list and the Corporations and Trusts in the The country houses I stay at, but that he would want to pry too much and would find out at once that when my late husband, Robert Venning, died, he only left ten thousand pounds behind him, and not the ten thousand a year with which the society and tradespeople have chosen to credit me."

And so, with crinkled brows and a slender forefinger that ticked off each victim to Mrs. Vennings' charms, as he came in view, the prettiest and most popular woman in town passed before her mind's eye such men as by their station or fortune, could alone save her from social and financial annihilation.

The earl of Wessex she had openly snubbed a month ago, and only a week back his engagement to a Chicago porkpacker's daughter had been announced. The Hon. Bertie Shorthouse was a nice boy, and his prospects truly grand; but he had been very wild on his own account, and a

Lord Arthur St. John I will certainly write to; I've not seen him for a year, but I know he is at Brighton, and he always said if ever I felt inclined to change my mind he would only be too pleased. Sir Roderick McPherson and Bertie Shorthouse. Eight of them! Fancy a woman writing to eight men to express her perfect willingness to marry any one of them! The only circumstance that prevents me expiring with horror at my own temerity is the fact that all of them have proposed to me, and in their different ways expressed a perfect readiness to fall in with my views if ever I could persuade myself to reconsider my decision. Well, my creditors have done the persuading, and my decision is that I must marry a rich man, and that very speedily. Yet all the time a curious hesitancy mingled with her air of determination. Twice she laid her pen upon the paper as though to add a ninth name to those already written. The third time her fingers traced the letter R, but she scratched it through hastily.

"I think I must be mad. The idea of my offering to marry Reginald Beresford. Reggie with whom I quarreled. Reggie with whom I played in my baby days. Reggie to whom I was engaged when I was still in short frocks before he was first sent to India. I was married to Mr. Venning when he came back, and then-then poor Reggie began to racket and spend his money and ruin his health. Yet he never reproached me with spoiling the best years of his life. Heaven forgive me! I laughed at him -he was so poor-for, though my heart ached for him, my head was too light to remember anything I was young and pretty. It

When the task was com te she rang the bell, and sendi: ... her maid, told her to pr for a week's stay in the country.

"Who has called?" Mrs. Venning asked, as she entered her flat on her return from the country. A sheaf of cards and a packet of letters were handed her. The first she tossed aside, the second demanded perusal.

"Now, I wonder how many men I shall find myself engaged to by the time I've read all these.

She broke the seal of the first. "Sir Roderick! So glad to hear I'm well-fears Scotland would scarcely suit me-kind regards-how Scotch! The bishop rejoices to see I am taking a more serious view of life. Has changed his mind about marrying and thinks the clergy should be celibate. Gluckstein has looked up my husband's will and considers that my readiness to become his wife is actuated solely by a desire to possess his millions. Gracious! what else could the little vulgarian think? Colonel Dingwall is engaged to a young girl-all blue eyes and golden hair-going to be married next week. How foolish he must have felt when he read my letter. Well, four of them are out of the running." A slight flush rose to Mrs. Venning's cheeks as she opened the fifth letter,

"What a shameful letter to write. - I always did hate that horrid old duchess! Umph! Lord Arthur St. John's valet writes for him. Says his master has got softening of the brain. Bertie Shorthouse informs me that he's stone broke and has got to marry an American heiress; but will I dine with him at the cafe Royal one night? There are five mistakes in spelling. Now for Lord a Fordwell-he always was a dear

"And to think that I should be refused by eight men. By men who vowed they loved me for myself, would defy the fates to win me, would wait for years for me. Oh! this humiliation is awful. I shall never face myself in the glass again. I shall-' "Lulu!" said a voice behind her.

"Reggie! You?" "Yes; why not?"

"Where have you been, poor boy, and what have you been doing?"
"I have been at the cape, and I have been making my fortune. And

'Oh, I-"

"I hear you are free?"

"Going to marry again?" "Perhaps! Is that what you came back from the cape to say?" "Yes! Any chance for me, Lulu?"

"What will you do if I say no?" "Go back to the cape!" "I could not send you back there again, Reggie." He caught her perfect form in his strong arms, her beautiful head rested on his shoulder, he kissed her many times. He called her by her name, but she only sobbed, for she was very happy. Women are strange things.

A Cat in the Coffin.

Mrs. Catherine Connors was buried at West Lynn, Mass., on a recent afternoon, and after the body had been taken to the cemetery some of the friends asked that the coffin be opened. The request was complied with, and as soon as the lid had been raised out jumped the family cat, which had crawled in beside the body while it was at the house.

Quiet, But Effective.

After Mr. Sumner had criticised General Grant savagely, some one was talking to Grantabout atheism in New England, and remarked: "Even Sumner does not believe in the bible."
"Why should he?" quietly replied Grant; "he didn't write it."

Carlyle's Estimate.

An artist, who frequented Carlyle's house, painted a picture of him in his dressing gown smoking a pipe by the fireside, and Mrs. Carlyle in an arm-chair sitting opposite him. The picture was hung at one of the Royal academy's exhibitions, and, though not a striking work of art, was purchased by Lord Ashburton-Carlyle's friend — for five hundred pounds. The delighted artist hurried off to the Carlyles, expecting congratulations on the sale, and some manifestation of pleasure on their part at having such a value set on a picture of themselves and their domestic interior. He delivered his glad tidings, but all the response he received from Carlyle was: "Well, in my opinion, five hundred pounds was just four hundred and ninetyfive pounds too much."

THE JACERSFONTEIN DIAMOND

The Native Who Found It Might Easily Have Hept It.

I learn from London that the emperor of Germany is eager to purthase the big diamond found at the Jagersfontein mine, says a Kimberley. South Africa, correspondent of the Jewelers' Circular. This monster gem turns the scale at 971 karats and there seems good reasons for believing that it is the very biggest in the world. Some of the oriental potentates have very large diamonds, the weight and size of which they are not anxious to disclose to Europeans, and it is thought that there are several in existence approaching nearly the size of the Jagers fontein gem. The latter is of fairly good size and shape, and has been chrisdened the Jagersfontein "Excelsior."

The Jagersfontein mine, which is situated about fifty miles from Kimberley and within the territory of the Grange Free State republic, is owned by a company many of the shareholders of which reside in England and a few of them on the spot. For some time they have sold the yield of diamonds by public tender in advance. The contractors for the purchase of the diamonds in July were Messrs. Wernheim & Beit, and Their contract expired on the very day this famous stone was found. Had it been handed to the manager only a few hours later it would have fallen into other hands.

The "Excelsior" was found by a native Basuto laborer named Jonas, and he could easily have secreted it, as has been done in thousands of cases no doubt, because it happened that he was working at the time at a place where no diamonds were expected to be found. However, he promptly placed it in the hands of the manager, who did not for a considerable time realize its enormous value. The natives at the mine, as an encouragement to zeal and honesty, are allowed a small commission upon the diamonds they find, and Jonas' share was about £80. This sum to an African native is quite a small fortune, and as the bonus was supplemented by the gift of a horse, saddle and bridle the Basuto left for his home a very proud man.

On the spot the diamond was valmed by the official government insepector at £25,000, but when it reached Kimberley a bid of £250,000 was made for it. The offer was declined, and the Excelsion was shipped to Europe. It was a curious sight to see the parcel guarded to the Cape Town docks by a squad of cavalry and a detachment of police. At reached England safely, and immediately the value went up until now the owners decline to part with At for less than £1,000,000. It has been lodged in the bank of England for security, and at the present time enegotiations are proceeding for its purchase on behalf of the German emperor, who is having a new crown constructed, and has an idea apparently that this particular gem will add luster to the diadem. He is not, however, the only bidder in the market, and it is quite uncertain yet what will be the gem's uitimate

stepped gayly into their little craft

and rowed away across the water. After they had turned an abrupt angle in the bank, disappearing entirely from his sight, he bit his lip more viciously than ever and springing into his own boat, took up the oars as if intending to follow them, but after another moment of reflection the oars were allowed to rest a little in their places while his brow took on a darker frown and his face grew rigid with a fierce determina-

To know that the woman he loved preferred Roy Dallas to himself was maddening enough, but to be obliged to witness their perfect happiness was almost unbearable torture, and unaccustomed as he was to disappointment, even in his slightest wishes, the utter helplessness of his efforts to win the fair girl's love goaded him almost to the fury of desperation.

And right here on the water a plan to end it suddenly occurred to him: If he could not love her, Roy Dallas should not, and with this malicious conclusion in his mind, he seized the oars again, and with rapid but almost noiseless strokes, glided swiftly after the lovers.

Roy Dallas moored his boat at one of the most beautiful islands in the bay-an island not half a mile long, but densely wooded with cool, green trees, and noted far and near for its variety of flowers and the pleasing freshness of its mosses. Then helping Kittie to alight, they started, hand in hand, each with a basket, to gather whatever of nature's treasures pleased them best, and just as their forms disappeared within the shadow of the grove, Herbert Hilton's boat shot suddenly around the curve; then pausing, seemed to scan the situation.

There had been no rains for many days and the flowers were beginning to droop a little, but happy in her lover's presence, Kitty roamed about among the trees, and before they fairly knew it they were in the thickest of the grove, and the afternoon shadows deepened by the darkness of the wood, fell about them and warned them to retrace their steps if they would reach the mainland in time for an early dinner.

Roy Dallas reached out playfully to snatch a flower from Kitty's hand, when suddenly his eye caught a vivid glare of something far off among the bushes, something that almost made his blood run cold, for as he gazed a moment with a cautious, anxious stare, a thin, red streak of flame ran rapidly up the trunk of a distant tree, splitting and spreading among the branches until, with an ominous hissing, crackling sound, the leaves burst out in a sudden blaze and the wind, now blowing freshly toward the bay, caught it and carried it along with almost lightning-like rapidity.

Seizing Kittie by the arm, he said as calmly as possible, "We must hurry, darling—see? The woods are all on fire," and Kittie, fearless as himself, took one swift look in the direction of the blaze, then dropped the basket of treasures she had plucked and with Roy's hand to guide and aid her, ran fleetly as possible across the moss and in between the trees and

It was a terrible race, for the fire was gaining at every step and the wind seemed blowing harder and

FOUND BY A PARTY FROM THE MAINLAND. harder and, panting now with fear and weariness, poor Kittie stumbled and nearly fell across some straggling branches.

Lifting her bodily in his arms, Roy Dallas rushed onward toward the ing full upon his back, he at last

Without a moment's hesitation he plunged into the bay, drenching the woman that he loved to the very ears, but carefully holding her head above water and shielding it from the clouds of smoke and embers as best he could with his own broad shoulders.

Only a short half hour sufficed for the flames to sweep along, leaving a bare, burned tract behind where once were beds of flowers and mosses, and almost exhausted. Roy Dallas crept ashore and laid poor Kittie down on the blackened ground. It had been a fierce experience, but the worst was yet to come, for with the drenching and the fright there was every chance of a serious illness for his loved one, but how was he to get her home from this now barren island without a boat and with two good miles of shining water between her and her father's

The question was a difficult one, and one that Kitty, with all her woman's ingenuity, was hardly able to answer. At last they sensibly decided that inaction would not do, and slowly and carefully they made their way along the very edge of the water in an attempt to explore the entire island, to find, if possible, some stranded craft that might be baled and caulked with withered moss sufficiently to enable them to risk the homeward journey.

The fire still raged at one extremity of the island, but at the other the blackened and dismantled trees stood out like skeletons among smouldering underbrush and fallen branches.

Suddenly Kittie exclaimed with a happy laugh, "See, dearest! There is Herbert Hilton's boat! How strange it should be here without its owner. and the face, at first illuminated with a happy smile, was suddenly shaded by an anxious look of terror.

"It is strange," Roy Dallas answered her a little soberly, as the thought flashed through his mind also that Hilton might have been either perpetrator or victim of the sudden conflagration, but without hesitation he seized the painter and drawing the boat up closely to the shore lifted Kittie in before even he glanced about to see if any one was near him.

While her lover held the boat as steadily as possible, Kittie made her way carefully to the stern but before she had fairly reached her seat the sound of a blow fell upon her ear, and turning, she was just in time to see her lover fall head-foremost on the ground, when Herbert Hilton cut the dangling rope and springing in pushed the frail craft far out into the water.

Kittle shrieked aloud in agony as she saw her lover fall, but the man who held the oars stood threateningly before her and, grasping her wrists firmly in his hands, he muttered fiercely between his teeth, "Be still, Miss Minturn, if you would save your own sweet life! I saw you when you started for this afternoon's excursion and have followed soiely to secure revenge for the misery you have brought

"I loved you once and offered you my heart and hand, which, as you remember, was refused by you with absolute indifference.

"Now I will have my turn! I will denounce you in the village and swear that the blow I struck your lover was solely to defend your weakening honor! I will swear he cut his boat adrift for the purpose of keeping you here all night, and your fair name will be smirched forever, unless"-but Kittie had endured enough without waiting for his villainous conditions.

With one sharp wrench she tore her hands from his and threw herself across the boat in a wild attempt to see her lover, and Herbert Hilton, moving quickly to preserve the balance of the little craft, stumbled and fell clumsily ahead and in another moment was floundering in the water Quick as thought Kittle seized the oars and pulled madly for the shore, and Hilton, recovering from the shock, struck out boldly as possible as he started after her in fierce pursuit.

The race was short, but what would be the ending? Kittie turned her head and saw her lover still lying helpless on the sand. He could not defend her from this angry man, and she gave a quick, despairing glance in the direction of the swimmer.

Another minute and he would reach the boat, for Kittie was unskilled at the oars, but even as she felt her strength give way, a great, black object rose upon the water immediately behind the struggling man and, dropping her oars with a warning shriek, the poor girl fainted at this added hor-

A moment later the bay was tinged with blood where Herbert Hilton disappeared beneath the glassy water. Wind and tide alone drove Kittie's boat upon the shore and grounded it beside her injured lover, and when, a half hour later, a party from the mainland, attracted by the smoke and fire, came suddenly upon them from the bay, it required much vigorous skill and action on their part to restore either Roy or Kittie to their

A few days later some one rowing by the place discovered Herbert Hilton's body lying on the beach, and when approached the awful fact was revealed that both his legs had been devoured by a shark, but no one ever knew the entire circumstance of his death; for Roy and Kittie, shuddering at his fate, decided he should rest in peace after so fierce a retribution.

How Tolstoi Publishes.

Count Tolstoi has repeated his publie declaration that he does not give any one the exclusive or even the preferential right of publishing his works and translating from them. "I offer it indiscriminately," he says, "to all those publishers who find the publication of my works or their translation desirable." This statement is called out by the fact that he often receives requests for an exclusive right of publication, and that certain foreign publishers ascribe to themselves this exceptional right and contest it with others.

A Man Fish.

An amusing feature of an aquatic exhibition at the Chicago Athletic club recently, was the angling contest. Professor Robinson, the club's swimming instructor, put on a strong leather harness which fitted closely about his back and neck, and entered the water. J. M. Sellers attached a hook to the harness. Then the man fish commenced to wriggle, and the angler began to play his catch scientifically. He had fifteen min-utes to bring the professor within reach of his six foot gaff. Robinson made a game effort. Several times THE MECCA OF THE TOURIST, INVALID he went to the bottom, but the angler skilfully gave him all the line he wanted. After an especially vicious pull the man fish succeeded in snapping the line asunder, thus Old Time Charms Combined With Modern winning the contest. This contest, while hardly new, is, as far as known, the first of the kind which resulted in a victory for the "man fish," the angler, on other occasions, gaining the upper hand.

BY REV JELLINGER CLARKE,

E was an old man with large head, with large head, bent frame, white hair and long white beard, sitting on a log in front of his cabin gazing into the mountains and valleys of purple and gold above the departing sun. His cane was in his hand. His hat was on the log. ', Who is he?" I asked of my guide. "That's Panther Jim," was his an-Approaching and taking a seat on the log beside the venerable man I over me as if to say 'I don't care who you are, I'm not afraid of you," the old man began and narrated the following story:

Contractor and Builder! "It was this way, stranger. Up in these regions back in the thirties there was a heap of game, deer, bear, panthers. Every fall three of us, Jack, Tom and myself, would take our guns, dogs and camping-traps and go into the big woods for a hunt.

"One snowy morning we started from camp each in a different direction. I took my dog along. He and I were always together. His name was Lion, not because he looked like a lion, but because he was brave and had lots of sense. Why, sir, that dog could talk, indeed he could, stranger, not in words, of course, but with his eyes, ears and tail. Even the hair on his back had tongues. If I said, 'Guard him!' he would waltz around a bear or panther in Jim Corbett style. If I said, 'Sieze him!' he would come the Fitzsimmons racket to perfection. If I said, 'Watch him!' he would crouch in threatening silence like one of Napoleon's old guards. If I said, 'Take him!' he would wade in like John L. Sullivan and fight to the death. The old dog and I had many a battle in these parts, some sad ones. The day I speak of it turned cold, and all game went under cover. Lion and I tramped and tramped and found nothing. It looked as if we would have to come into camp empty.

"But late in the afternoon we blun-dered onto a panther's track. It was a big one and a hot one, going toward, the camp. Lion examined it, then looked up and asked; 'Master, what had we better do about it?' I replied: 'The cat is going our way, old boy, so let's jog along.' Lion took the trail and moved on but cautiously for panthers are treacherous and cunning brutes and often get in their finest work where it is least expected, Lion knew this and acted accordingly. We followed the cat, eyes and ears open, Care taken in handling house-hold and soon came to the mouth of a cavern in a ledge of rocks. a cavern in a ledge of rocks. This was one of the cat's dens and into it the beast had gone for a nap. It was near our camp. Lion crept up to the cave, peered in, then came back and looking me squarely in the eyes, earnestly and seriously, said, "Master' it is late, the cat is a big one and has the advantage; let's go to camp and look after him in the morning." Stranger, I'm not chicken-hearted or superstitious. But that dog foresaw what was coming. I wish I had taken his advice.

"But it was getting late and what was to be done had to be done quickly. Putting old Lion on the head I said "Watch him, boy!" and clambered up into the rocks. Below me was an opening and through it I could see a fringe of the cat's hair. Sticking the barred of my gun into this opening I blazed away three times as fast as I could. I did not expect to hit the beast but thought that perhaps the noise and the gunpowder might drive him from his lair. But this panther wasn't built that way. He scratched and spit, and CINCINNATI, OHIO. jumped around a little, and staid where he was waiting for developments. I was puzzling what to do next when I saw Jack and Tom running up puffing and blowing like quarter horses. 'What is up?' asks Jack. 'Nothing is up,' I said, 'a cat's in that den'. 'Yes, and it's going to stay there,' muttered Tom.

"That made me mad. Without further ado I said to Lion, 'Watch him!' Whipped out my knife, held its blade between my teeth, dropped on all crawled. Before me was darkness.

my left side, and shouted, 'Take him Lion!' With a scream and a bound the panther was on me. At the same time Lion was on the panther. Then it was give and take between panther, man and dog. It was soon over. Jack and Tom crawled in and dragged us out. Lion and I looked as if we had been fed through a threshing machine. The cat wasn't much but blood and

"Next morning Jack and Tom carried me home. Nel-she was my wife -had heart trouble. When she saw me, she threw up her hands, wailed, 'My husband!' and dropped dead. * *

* * Freddie and Lion and I were alone. Freddie, he was our little boy. One day while he was playing two rattlers made for him. Lion killed one of the rattlers, but while he was doing so the other rattler struck him in the neck. He killed that rattler also and saved Freddie. Then he died. We buried him along side of Nel. Freddie grew to be a man.

"The war came. Freddie enlisted. He was killed in the Wilderness." The said: "Pardon me, but why do they old man could tell no more. Tears call you 'Panther Jim?" Looking chased each other down his cheeks in big drops. Recovering himself, he asked: "Stranger, do you think dogs have souls? If they have, Lion is up there with Nel and Freddie waiting for Panther Jim."

I pressed his hand and left him, feeling ashamed of myself for having intruded upon his sorrow, but I had learned his secret. It was Freddie and Nel and Lion the old man's soul was looking for in the purple and gold above the setting sun.

PAWNBROKING A H ABIT.

Those Who Drop Into the Practice Generally Become Steady Customers. 'Pawnbroking is a habit," said my friend, who sits under the shadow of the three balls. "Yes, mostly a habit. The patent medicine habit is nothing to it. After anybody has hung up something with me a few times he's pretty sure to become a regular customer. He does business with me just like clock-work after that; always goes broke just so long before pay-day.

"Two of the best people I have are husband and wife, and neither knows that the other ever heard of such a thing as hocking a watch. I know that from the way they acted, and I was pretty much surprised one day when the woman brought in the pawnticket for her husband's watch. She didn't look as if anything unusual had happened, and I sized up the situation and gave her her own watch instead. That was what she wanted. Next day the husband came in with the ticket for his wife's watch. I gave him his own and he never knew the difference. You see, they had hidden their tickets in the same place. They have brought the watches around promptly ever since, which they wouldn't have done by any manner of means if I hadn't had my wits about me. Now, one of those church pawnbrokers down in New York wouldn't have known enough to do that, and would have lost two good customers as well as made trouble in an estimable family. It takes brains to run my business.

Not on the Program. Not long ago, Edmund Russell dawned upon a certain Western city, and the Blanks gave a large reception. Among the plans for the entertainment of the guests was a scene from "Macbeth," rendered by a young woman of local elecutionary fame. The head of the family was not inormed of this especial part of the program. At the proper moment the young woman personating Lady Mac-beth appeared at the end of the drawing room, dressed in a trailing robe of white and bearing a light. She moved slowly forward, an expectant hush falling upon the assemblage. The host looked up, saw, and wholly misunderstood. He hesitated only a moment, then hastened forward with hospitable zeal: "Why, Miss Smith, good-evening. I'm very glad to see you. May I relieve you of your can-

Fortunately.

A few weeks ago an American publisher wrote to Oscar Wilde, asking him for a "story of 100,000 words," for which he offered to pay "so and so." The gentle soul of the artist was disturbed. He did not take it kindly that his wares should be appraised by the yard, like ribbon. He wrote back to the New York publisher: "Dear Sir-I have received your charming letter, and have spent two or three days in delightful contemplation. should like to write the story, but I do not see how I can do so. Unfortunately, there are not 100,000 words in the English language.

Making Hairpins.

Hairpins are made by automatic and very complicated machines. The coiled wire is put upon drums, and becut it to the length required. This piece of wire then slips along the iron plate until it reaches a slot, through which it is pressed into the regular shape. The hairpins are then put into a pan and japanned, after which they are heated in an oven with a temperature of from 300 to 400 degrees.

Business Is Business.

Jacob Tome, the Philadelphia millionaire, began life as a hostler. Some fours, and crawled into the den, rifle time ago a friend of his, who had been in hand. Jack and Tom both said, a fellow hostler in Tome's early days, 'Don't Tim,' but it was too late. On I and who had never risen above that, approached him for the loan of $250. "Soon I came to a place where the He was informed that he could have cavern made a turn.
