FURIOUS FOREST FIRES BURN WISCONSIN VILLAGES.

Worksull Mry, Hot Weather Without Rain Make like Conditions Favorable for a Fearful Cenflagration-Many Hundreds of People Homeless and in Sad Want.

Dispatches from several Wisconsin cities tell of awful devastation from forest fires in various portions of the telegraph wires being destroyed there districts and particulars are very scarce. From Ashland the following is sent Forest fires are producing great suf-Tering and loss throughout this vicin-ity, and railroad companies have never fires. On the Wisconsin Central it is impossible to move trains. Phillips, the headquarters of John R. Davis' Tumber company, a manufacturing town of 2,000 people, is totally destroyed by fire. A dispatch from Fifield, a small station a few miles from Philips, says that 500 women and thildren from Phillips are in the woods there without shelter. They sent a request for food and supplies, as the supply at Fifield is very short. A relief train was started but was obliged to return, as bridges are totally destroyed a few miles south. Communiit is feared that that town is also on fire. Along the Omaha line the fires are raging with terrible fierceness. Shores Crossing a little village eight miles west of Ashland, was destroyed, and the homeless families were brought to Ashland. The railroad bridges near there were destroyed and a fast Omaha Freight and 16 loaded cars were entirely burned. Both the engineer and fire-man were injured and the brakemen

Mason, a small town south on the Omaha line, caught fire. The White River Lumber company's mill with $6,000,000 feet of lumber in the yards were destroyed and when the latest report was received the entire town was threatened. The Omaha bridge across the White River at Mason is burned. Railroad officials say the loss at Mason is fully a million dollars. Homesteaders in the outlying dis-Tricts are all fleeing into the nearest towns, leaving their homes to the fury of the flames. The fire department is carefully guarding the outside limits of Ashland, and the city is not in any immediate danger. News from Hurley states that the town has been conchoped in a dense cloud of smoke all way, with fires on nearly every side. Thirteen Lives Lost.

LATER.—Dispatches from an improvised telegraph station at Phillips, Wis., tell of the loss of 13 lives as a result of the fires at that place. Thirty-nine buildings out of seven hundred stand amid smoke and ashes on the scene of what was the flourishon the scene of what was the flourishing city of Phillips, the county seat of Price county and one of the wealthiest and most prosperous of all the towns in the timber regions of Wisconsin. Three thousand people are homeless except those who have been offered shelter in the neighboring towns.

Worse than all, at least 13 people are known to have lost their lives. All the dead were drowned in Elk lake while trying to escape from the fire, except an unknown man whose body except an unknown man whose body was found in the ruins of the house of F. W. Sackett, editor of the Phillips Times. The property loss cannot at this time be accurately estimated, but it will reach at least $1,250,000. The immense plant of the John R. Davis lumber company is a total loss, amounting to between $500,000 and $600,000. On this property there is an insurance of about four-fifths of the walue of the plant.

Briefly summarized the fires in that Tocality have burned as follows: The city of Phillips is entirely wiped out; the city of Mason is practically de-stroyed, with the White River Lumber company and 30,000,000 feet of lumber; headquarters of the Ashland lumber company, near Shores Crossing, is entirely wiped out; a special train on the Omaha, consisting of 16 cars and the locomotive were all burned, having broken through the bridge near ashland Junction; the camps of the Thompson Lumber company were burned at White River; two bridges on the Wisconsin Central road, both on the Wisconsin Central road, both on the main line south of Ashland. These are the losses specifically. Besides the above the damage to timber and logs scattered through the woods to individual homesteaders, houses and other property, to cut cord wood, etc., will swell the general damage to appalling

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

Señare—185th day.—The conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was agreed to. Mr. Allen presented a resolution directing the attoracy-general te transmit to the Senate full copies of all correspondence which passed between the department of justice and the railroads centering in Chicago from June 10 to the present time. Mr. Platt objected and it went over time. Mr. Platt objected and it went over the content of the manner of the finance committee, who is ill. Called up the conference report on the tariff bill. Mr. Caffrey took the floor and resumed the speech he began the day before, but his remarks did not arouse much interest. He spoke principally as to the justice of the duly on sugar. Hunton of Virginia, and Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania, made brief speeches on the tariff bill, and after an executive session the Senate adjourned. House—The communications were read which passed between the French government and the American embassy at Paris relative to the assassination of President Carnot. The secretary of the United States embassy said that the resolutions of condolence of the House and Senate were read in the French Chamber of Deputies and Senate was made great enthusiasm. The conference report on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill gave rise to considerable discussion, principally on the clause giving the commissioner of pensions $250.000 for making special examinations. The report was agreed to and the House adjourned.

Senate—18th day.—Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin, who was secretary of the interior and later postmaster-general during Mr. Cleveland's first administration, replied at great longth to Senator Gorman's attack upon the President. For two hours he held the floor, amid the wrapt attention of the Senate and galleries diverting his scathing rebuke of the Maryland Senator. He dehounced Mr. Gorman's assault as wanton reckless and unjustifiable, and though he declared that Mr. Cleveland in the interest of sugar must fail, and the further fact foreign commerce, and some twenty or thirty bills reported from this committee were passed.

SENATE.—187th day.—After a week of speeches the Senate agreed to the further conference on the tariff bill asked by the House of Representatives. The test of the strength came on Mr. Washburn's motion that the Senate recede from that portion of the sugar amendment blacing a differential of one-eighth of a cent on sugars above No. 16 Dutch standard. After an hour and a half of debate on the pending points of order, the president pro tem. Mr. Harris, sustained the point of order and ruled the motion out. The decision was immediately appealed from and a motion made to lay the latter motion on the table. Both motions resulted in a tie vote, Mr. Hill and the Popullist acting with the Republicans in the effort to get a direct vote of the Senate on Mr. Washburn's motion. Intense excitement prevailed, owing to the closeness of the vote. In case of a tie the motion is lost, according to parliamentary law. The failure to sustain the chair on the appeal brought the Senate to the direct vote on the Washburn motion. Upon the result hinged perhaps the fate of the measure. But, though the Republicans scored the victory in securing the vote on the Washburn motion also resulted in a tie, and consequently was lost. After these votes on attempt was made to delay matters, and the resolution to agree to a further conference was agreed to without division. The chair then reappointed the conferees, Messrs. Voorhees, Jones, Vest, Harris, Sherman, Allison and Aldrich. House.—There are not a quorum to prevent action on a bill. The message announcing that the Senate insisted on its amendments to the tariff bill and agreed to the request of the House for a further conference was received without any demonstrations. At 5 o'clock the House for a further conference was received without any demonstrations. At 5 o'clock the House for a further conference was received without any demonstrations.

The century mark at 2:20 p. m. the House adjourned.

SENATE.—189th day.—The Senate wore an aspect of peace and serenity in striking contrast to the excitement of the previous week. Vice-President Stevenson had returned and occupied his accustomed seat. Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Allen to provide for the issue of $50,000,000 in treasury notes to be distributed pro rata among the states "for the relief of the worthy poor." It was referred to the finance committee. The report of the conference on the agricultural appropriation bill amnouncing agreement on all the amendments but the one appropriating $1,000,000 for the &x-termination of the Russian thistle, was agreed to. The Senate formally insisted on this amendment and sent the bill back to conference. The sundry civil bill was presented. The House joint resolution further extending the appropriations until August 14 was passed. House.—Beyond the passage of a few unimportant bills by unanimous consent, nothing was accomplished. Mr. Boutelle offered a resolution congratulating and recognizing the Hawaiian republic, but on a point of order it was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

Lynching Too Good for Them. Dan Betts, Sylvester Cisco, John Harter and Boyd Boughton were ar-rested at Grover Hill, O., for assaulting Flora Sweeter, a 13-year-old girl living three miles southwest of Grover Hill. John Harter called for the girl, telling the parents that he would take her to a dance and bring her home at 11 p. m. On his way to Grover Hill he forcibly assaulted her. He then brought her to the livery barn of Sylvester Cisco, at Grover Hill, where the three other men were, and there, between 8 and 12, she was repeatedly assaulted by these four men. Harter and Betts these four men. Harter and Betts then took the girl and drove to a dense wood near town and remained there till noon next day, continuing their cruel treatment. The assaults have prostrated the girl and she can hardly live. Her parents are poor. The citizens swear if the men are released on bond they will suffer lynch law. Four other persons are said to be implicated, but as yet hards. but as yet have not been apprehended.

BIG STORM DOWN EAST.

Several Persons Killed and Considerable

Property Destroyed. Manchester, N. H: The most disastrous storm that visited this locality in years did a great amount of damage. At Lake Massabesic, four miles from the city, the storm was accompanied by a cyclone, which wrecked buildings, blew down large trees and destroyed rauch valuable property. Eighteen or 20 summer cottages were partially wrecked and half that number demolished. There were scores of pleasure boats on the lake when the storm struck, and three went down with a total of eight or 10 lives lost.

Tarrytown, N. Y: Thomas Pickett, his son, Edward Pickett, and James Martin, were drowned. They went out in a sail boat on the Hudson river, and the sail boat on the Hudson river, and as they did not return it is sup posed that during the storm their boat was upset and the men were drowned.

New York: A small yacht, carrying six persons was capsized in the Hud-son river opposite Hastings during a severe storm and three of the passengers were drowned. Newmarket, N. H: During a heavy thunderstorm on Great Bay, a small boat containing William R. Byrne and Michael Carroll was capsized and both were drowned. Another boat met with a similar accident, and its occupant was also drowned.

Fatal Wreck Near Cincinnati.

The St. Louis express on the Ohio & Mississippi railway ran into a freight on the siding at Cochran, Ind., 28 miles from Cincinnati, wrecking the passenger engine and a dozen freight cars. The freight had taken the siding expecting to follow the express, but the switch was left open and the express crashed into the freight, killing the passenger engineer, fatally injuring the fireman and cutting off the leg of a tramp stealing a ride.

The general offices of the railroad lines in the Wisconsin fire districts re-port the danger past and the fires subdued to a point where they will not cause any further damage. Here and there are isolated fires, but they are not in condition to do any harm.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

NEW YORK.—Dun's review of trade says:
The heavy outgo of gold, the fall of the treasury reserve and of the price of wheat to the lowest point on record and the increasing uncertainty about the tariff have entirely overshådowed other industries. Business delayed for months by two great strikes now crowds the railroads and swells returns and gives the impression of revival in business, but it is not yet clear how far there is an increase in new tradite, distinguished from that which has been merely blockaded or deferred. In some branches there has been more activity, but in others less, because events led many to inter that no change of tariff would be made. The internal revenue receipts on whisky suddenly dropped more than haif, and sales of wool greatly increased.
But the uncertainty is not removed and much of the business done seems to be in the nature of insurance against possibilities. Wheat has found in the lowest depths a deeper still and has sold below 55c. making the monthly average at New York the lowest ever known. Corn was stronger with accounts of injury to part of the crop, had the exports are trifling. Cotton declined. Official reports count for nothing in comparison with enormous visible stocks.
Textile industries have been perceptibly stimulated; according to dealers, by disagreements which many suppose may prevent change of the tariff and there has been more buying of cotton goods with slightly higher prices for a few, notwithstanding the closing of some important ruills. In woolens, the goods famine, which clothiers prepared for themselves by deferring orders is such that imperative necessities now keep most of the mills at work and purchases of wool for immediate use are large. But there is no change for the better as respects ofders funning into future, and, indeed, some concerns have withdrawn spring samples on which very low prices have been fixed and will make no effort for trade at present. While scarcity of coke delays resumption of work in many central and western from mills, but as yet have not been apprehended.

About

Knives.

A cheap Pocket-knife can be bought at every Store, but it is not the kind you want.

One dollar is the lowest price that a really good knife can be sold for. This column is placed in this paper to advertise the very best Pocket-knife ever sold. It is J. C. TIDMARSH'S Sheffield Steel Knife.

Never buy a knife only because it looks well. If blades are not the best Sheffield steel they will soon bend, no matter how they will look. Still, you want a fine-looking knife.

The United States law provides that only samples to agents and to the trade will be admitted free of duty. You can, therefore, see the advantage that I have in sending samples to agents over those who deal in Sheffield goods in America.

I am an advertising agent! I am entrusted with a certain amount to spend advertising these knives (the best value ever seen in America at One Dollar each). Now, the knife is its own best advertisement.

Imagine a Pocket-knife (3† inches long) with the most beautifully-grained ivory handle—genuine African ivory—and with two blades of the very best Sheffield steel that will last a lifetime and cut like a razor. The tips of the handles are heavily plated with sterling silver. And then a very nice chamois leather case goes with each knife. Now, would it not be easy work selling this knife at One Dollar each? selling this knife at One Dollar each? I know it would, for it looks as if it were worth two dollars.

And so it is if you compare it with the value offered in the ordinary Store.

Is not this knife its own best advertisement.

You can make $4 per day selling these knives. This is a genuine and straigtforward statement. This is counting that you show it to only twelve buyers every day. And every one that sees it will say it is good value for $1. The knives are sold to you at $8 per dozen; you sell them at $1 each.

I determined to use large sum of advertising money entrusted to me in sending out free samples to those who promise to act as agents for the sale of these knives.

I will send you a free sample, but you must sign the promise at the foot of this column, and make a deposit to show that in asking for the knife you are acting in good faith. The deposit that I ask of you is 44 tents about half the wholesale cost of the knife, and less than one-third what you would have to pay for a knife like it, if you bought one. Send the money by a Postal Order or one-cent stamps for 44cts., and put a five-cent stamp on the letter, which must not weigh more than one-half

The deposit of 44 cents will be placed to your credit, and will be deducted from your first order at the dozen rate.

I am an advertising agent, contractor and publisher with one of the largest Advertising businesses in the world, and solutely guarantee to send, postage paid and duty free, the knife described above free to anyone who signs the promise below, and sends it with the deposit as stated.

Let me advise you not to part with your sample, even if you should lose a sale at $1 by refusing, as it will take time to replace it. I could not send you another even if you sent the full $1. After the sample they can only be supolied to you by the dozen as there is duty on them to be paid.

Any English Banker can give you information about my high standing, or write to the publisher of this paper, who knows that I do a large and straightforward advertising business, and that I do exactly as I say.

I have taken this pace in this paper for three years! The first one answering this advertisement after this number of the paper has come out will, if he likes, have his name printed in this space as agent for these knives. ### SEWING MACHINES POPULAR? BECAUSE LADIES BUY THEM LIKE THEM AND TELL THEIR

Many ladies have used our machines twenty to thirty years in their family work, and are still using the original machines we furnished them a generation ago. Many of our machines have run more than twenty years without repairs, other than needles. With proper care they never wear out, and seldom need repair.

We have built sewing machines for more than forty years and have constantly improved them. We build our machines improved them. We build our machines on honor, and they are recognized everywhere as the most accurately fitted and finely finished sewing machines in the world. Our latest, the "No. 9," is the result of our long experience. In competition with the leading machines of the world, it received the Grand Prize at the Paris Exposition of 1889, as the best, other machines receiving only complimentary medals of gold, silver and bronze. The Grand Prize was what all sought for, and our machine was awarded it. and our machine was awarded it.

ANN ARBOR.

SKETCHES OF OUR CITY.

Outlines and Incidents of Ann Arbor's Founding and Growth. Written Expressly for The Register by Prof. A. Ten Brook. XXXVIII. ASPECT OF ANN ARBOR

IN 1844-6.

In September, 1844, my family took possession of the east university house on the north side of the campus. Professor Williams' family lived in the house next to us. The two houses on the opposite side were occupied respectively by Professor Whiting and Hon orable Alpheus Felch, then one of the judges of the supreme court of the state, he having removed to this place from Monroe in 1843. On the east side of State-st. there were no houses; unless it were a little one far north on the descent of the ground towards the river. On the west side of this street there were a few houses on this street itself, but these marked the eastern limit of the village. The ground lying between this street and the old cemetery was rentenanted and untilled and was known as "the common." A house built by an official of the University, Patrick Kelly, the janitor, may be deemed an exception to my remark about the the vacancy of this common. It is not really so. The house stood on ground which would not for some years be in the village. It is standing now on N. University Avenue and forms the front of a stuccoed house on the corner of that avenue and Twelfth street.

This so-called "common" had been a part of the Rumsey farm, of which was also the University campus. All had been under cultivation. The remains of a peach orchard still tood in my garden and front yard and yielded us for several years heavy burdens of fruit of a choice kind.

The first house east of us was on the Fletcher farm, so-called from Chief-Justice, William A. Fletcher. It was still owned at the time of which I write by his monomaniac and divorced wife, who occupied the house alone so far as human beings were concerned; but she kept in it her cow and her hay. When several years later it was taken possession of by authority, money was found sticking around in its crevices and doubtless delivered to distant heirs; for she had no children.

The Fletcher farm was bounded westward by the University campus. My earliest recollection of it is of a field of rye, its extent north and south being the same with the University grounds. In the joints of its worm fence grew white and red oak sprouts, which the observing reader will recognize as the originals of a line of oak trees, which now adorn the east side of East University Avenue.

As to the campus itself, the regents allowed Patrick Kelley to grow two successive crops of wheat upon it, that it might be brought into an appropriate condition for a college campus. The crops were harvested and marketed and the ground remained about as it for him to contradict a lady and heard of for more than forty years, and a sketch of the man cannot be deemed out of place.

The place held by Patrick he deemed about equal to that of a professor and about as much as ours. He felt his ly worth the money. oats. He read the books of the library. He rang the bell according to his convenience, rather than by his clock. If the bell, he went back and relighted it. If he met any one he always had some words with him. I remember well the vigor with which he assailed the administrative labors of Lord Castlereagh in conversations with me. Soon after my arrival on the ground, I began to insist on the bells being rung by the clock. It was hard work, but was brought to pass as nearly, perhaps, as old habits have ever been reformed. A story may be here thrown in which will have an application all around, that is, to janitor, students and professors. We had an arrangement by which the members of the senior class delivered in turn orations on Friday evenings at 5 o'clock P.M. before the students assembled for prayers. At evening prayers I alone of the professors was usually present. One evening a young man of marked ability for an undergraduate of that day, or this, was called upon the platform in his turn, for this was all the concern I had in the matter, assuming as I must do, that the oration had passed the ordeal of the professor of rhetoric. The orator, though young, had been ordained to the Methodist ministry, which he long afterwards adorned. He was quite at his ease on the platform. His oration was a eulogy on some great man whom he did not name. As the terms he empoyed advanced in eulogistic fervor, or varied in their pictures of worthy deeds, the hearers would fix the name in conception, General Cass, for instance, and then have to change it for one beyond the limits of Michigan, wonder all the time increasing as to whose name would finally come out, the hearers became ready for an explosion when the orator pronounced the following as his last words: "And generations yet unborn will still arise to pronounce with veneration the name of Patrick Kelley."

The oration, of course, had never been in the hands of the Professor of Rhetoric and the young man was called rity, is building a chateau composed by that professor and received a rebuke; but his standing in the Univer ceilings, the doors, the exterior, the sity remained as ever before.

BATTLING ANTS.

An English Scientist's Account of Warring Insects in America.

Most of my readers, I doubt not, have read the curious observations of Sir John Lubbock upon ants and their ways, especially in the matter of communication between the members of an ant colony. I have been reading a most interesting account of what Mr. James Weir saw in the course of a battle royal between two rival ant species. The two species were the Lasius niger, or blacks and the Lasius Flavus, or yellows. The latter ants were herding their cows, which are the aphides, or plant lice, from which the ants obtain a sweet secretion, milking the aphides pretty much after the fashion of the human dairymen. There was a whole army of the rival ants (Lasius niger) approaching the dwelling place of the flavus tribe.

Mr. Weir tells us the nigers were marching in battle array, with a skirmishing party in advance of the main body. When the blacks were about ten or twelve feet off the yellow encampment the scouts or pickets of the latter discovered the approach of the enemy. Home the pickets hurried to give the alarm. and instantly the yellow horde issued forth from its nest and ranged itself in battle array in front of the aphides, the possession of which seemed to be the cause of the blacks' attack. Then out went the yellow skirmishers to anticipate the fray, and in a few moments a battle royal was raging on both sides.

The attacking force outnumbered the defenders by about three to one. Mr. Weir gives the number of the blacks at 1,50) and that of the defending yellow tribe at 500. The latter were the larger and stronger, but the blacks, or attacking party, were much more active and agile. The mode of attack was notable. The yellows went for their opponents with their big jaws. Each seized a with one bite severed the body in

The mode of attack on the part of the black soldiers was different. They imitated rather the tactics of light horsemen. The black seized its yellow opponent by one of the legs, and held on viciously and tenaciously, like some insect bulldog. Thus hampered in its movements, the yellow ant would struggle flercely, but a second black would mount on the disabled foe held by the legs and then begin to bite through the back, probably getting Don't Dose for Skin Troubat the nervous system, which lies on the floor of the body, and ultimately dividing the yellow victim through and through. Only when the yellow had given up the ghost did the bulldog black which had seized the feet let go its hold.

Ironwood Strikers Submit.

At a meeting of the Miners' union held at Ironwood the strike was declared off. About one thousand men have been working for the past week and a rush of union and non-union men for places would have been made whether the union had declared the strike off or not. The military companies have left. It is now six weeks since the strike was instituted, and the men go back under practically the same conditions as before. Owing to the lateness of the season not more than half the strikers will be able to get work, and the companies refuse to discharge the men working.

She then set fire to herself, and when her brother, attracted by her screams, discovered her, she was a blazing pillar of fire. HIS SECOND WIFE.

Bad Taste Exhibited by Don Carlos, the "Reeking," "Desiccate," and "Lurid" Spanish Pretender.

Don Carlos has been guilty of sinaunt, the comtesse de Chambord. It | them. was the favorite home of the late duchess, the spot to which she withdrew with her children after she had been forced by ill-treatment on the part of her husband to separate from him. Nor was he permitted during her lifetime to set his foot on the gent, unpleasant odor.' property, which is on the Tuscan coast and stretches down to the sea-

That he should bring to this spot, hallowed in the eyes of his children by memories of the late duchess, the new wife whom he has married after a little more than a year's widowhood, is thoroughly in keeping with his character. I hear that as soon as the honeymoon wanes he is going to take his bride to live permanently in the magnificent palace which he owns on the grand canal at Venice. There, too, the pretender shows questionable taste, for it is this very palace, which has been the scene of so much depravity on his part, that the royal personages visiting Venice were out of sheer self-respect forced to abstain from from the real meaning can be traced. taking any notice of his presence

I may add that he has entirely lost that magnificent voice which he once possessed, and the tones of which used to be compared to those of d'Artagnan as described by Alexander Dumas in "The Three Musketeers.," He now speaks only in a whisper. This loss of voice is due to an operation performed a few years ago upon

CAT HUNTS A NEW FAD. Cruel New York Dudes and Terrier Dogs on Nocturnal Expeditions.

"The gilt-eiged youths of Gotham have adopted a new means of nocturnal amusement that is as brutal as they think it delightful," said a New York broker. "The latest fad is cat hunting. You are familiar, of course, with the crusade against cats which the women of New York started some time ago from humanitarian motives. They regarded every cat that prowled around the city as being homeless, and, therefore, tired of life, so they went around catching them and put-ting them to death by means of anesthetics. The young bloods have followed their example, but in a different manner. Homeless felines are their objects for annihilation also, but they use bull ter-riers and fox terriers instead of chloroform. You can imagine what a fight there is when a vicious dog of either of the species named tackles a cat who recognizes that it must battle for its life. The young men who pursue this brutal pastime make regular engagements with each other for a cat hunt, and really dress for it. They wear old clothes and rubber-soled tennis shoes so that they may keep up with their dogs and not attract policemen with their noise in running. I heard two well-known young men at the Brunswick one night recently gloating over their experiences of the night before and describing to an ingreat nght that occurred when their dogs attacked a cat on the steps leading into Mrs. Paran Stevens' residence, and the cute way in which they escaped from the police, who were attracted by the noise of the battle. I know all this is utterly depraved and shocking, but it it true, nevertheless."

Death of a Noted German Manufacturer. Reinhard Mannesmann, Sr., the greatiron manufacturer of Remscheid, Rhenish Prussia, near Elberfield, died a short time ago. Mannesmann was born more than eighty years ago. In him the German nation loses one of its oldest ironmasters and manufacturers. He was the creator of the German file industry, which drove the English files from the continental markets. In the several universal expositions at Paris he received gold medals from the international juries. With his son he invented and manufactured the machines by which seamless tubes | Illustrated ===== are rolled from solid blocks of metal without the use of mandrels. For twenty-five years he was president of the Remscheid bank, and his house was a center for scientific men of all kinds. In labor disputes the workingmen always chose him as their repre-

Doubtless most people have at some time during their lives been obliged to take quinine. Disguise it as you will, in capsules or gelatine covers it is a bitter dose. In Africa, however, it is an article of daily use, and is placed on the table as regularly as bread. The natives do not need it, because they are born to the climate, but quinine is the white man's shield from malaria. I took six grains of quinine every day of my two years' stay in Africa, just in order to keep well, and in my family, which consisted of my wife and little daughter, we used, on an average, an ounce every six weeks.

Oldest of Iron War Ships.

The Warrior, the oldest armor-clad ship in the world, built entirely of iron, is about to be renovated and prepared for service abroad as a guardship at one of the coaling stations. She was launched by the Thomas iron works company at Blackwell, December 29, 1860, and commissioned for the first time in August, 1864, by Captain A. A. Cochrane, for service in the channel. She is to have new boilers certainly, and a new secondary battery of quick-firing guns.

"Reeking?" one will say. "Why, reeking means dripping with moisture, soaked with wet.

Another will say that it means "slippery, slimy; as with filth."
"Reeking with filth. Having a pun-

If you can get a bet that the word does not mean anything of the kind, take it. It is sure money. If he won't bet you can have almost as much pleasure in noting his surprise when you tell him that "reeking" means 'smoking, steaming." A chimney can reek, or a new pipe can reek. When a horse reeks with moisture it is because its flanks smoke with steam. Jean Ingelow writes:

No flame did flash or fair blue reek. Rose up to show me his place.

That is the surest catchword of the three. "Desiccated" is pretty good, though. Nine out of ten will nstantly say that the word means: 'Chopped up in little bits. Smashed up in small pieces." In this word as in "reeking," the process of change Anything very wet would reek in frosty weather, so the wetness was assumed to be the real characteristic of reek. Pretty much the only article in common use to which the adjective "desiccated" is applied is e coanut prepared for use in cakes and pies. It is chopped up that it may be thoroughly dried and "thoroughly dried" is the only proper meaning.

"Lurid" is a word a little better known. Ask a man what color lurid is and he may answer correctly, but the chances are he will say "red. flaming, orange, or bright yellow." Of course, lurid means smoky or dull London fog is lurid; thick, suffocating smoke is lurid. Lurid and livid are almost synonymous. "Lurid flames" are flames almost choked with smoke. A lurid sunset is not a brilliant one, but one dull, and gray, and cheerless.

Headache Powders.

The habit of taking "headache powders" is increasing to an alarming extent among a great number of women throughout the country. These powders, as their name indicates, are claimed by the manufacturers to be a positive and speedy cure for any form of headache. In many cases their chief ingredient is morphine, opium, cocaine or some other equally injurious drug having a tendency to deaden pain. The habit of taking them is easily formed, but almost impossible to shake off. Women usually commence taking them to relieve a raging headache and, finding it successful, soon resort to the powder to alleviate any little pain or ache they may be sub-jected to, and finally, like the morphine or opium fiend, get into the habit of taking them regularly, imagining that they are in pain if they happen to miss their regular

Those who have made a study of bird habits say that birds of almost all sorts are rather the friends than the enemies of farmers and gardeners. Not only do the song birds by destroying insects earn their right to eat a few berries, but even the crow that generations of farmers have scared and killed, is said to prefer insects to corn, and often to be in the very act of destroying pests when farmers suppose him to be maliciously bent on undoing the work of the

RECKLESS WASTE OF LIFE. Few of the Latest Discoveries of Hygienic

Science Yet Utilized. An interesting and to a certain waste of life is going on among us all the time, says De orest's Magazine. The number of deaths from causes preventable by means well known to science is shown to constitute almost the entire death list of one of the leading cities of the country, where, after a death rate of 697, there were only twenty-five deaths recorded from old age. Seventeen of these deaths occurred from typhoid fever, a disease which should never exist in a civilized country. In the French and German armies, where a modern system of treatment prevails, only one typhoid patient in fifty dies.

Pulmonary diseases carry off 249 persons on this list, and yet it is asserted that even in cases where children inherit a tendency to consumption there is no need for it to develop if proper precautions are taken in time regarding exercise, breathing and habits. Stomach troubles claim 155 more victims, and are attributable entirely to carelessness in eating and drinking—a proper regulation of diet, as it is claimed, being all that would be necessary to prevent every one of them. This reduces the death rate from a little over nineteen to about six per cent, and, with the natural addition to the length of those lives reported to have been lost through old age, would probably bring up the average sum of human years to 175 or even higher.

The fact is that few of the latest discoveries of science are yet utilized to benefit humanity. seldom call upon the doctors until their condition has become chronic, and then, to save expense, they rareundergo thorough treatment. Then, again, we go on eating and drinking what we know is the last thing we should put in our stomachs, in utter disregard of the laws of diet. We habitually drink water that is often as certain a poison as strychnine or alcohol; we live under sanitary conditions which render perfect health an impossibility, and, lastly, we load our lives with burdens which, while assisting in no way to our betterment, sap the very roots of our existence and make life melancholy pilgrimage. Who shall rear a temple to the goddess Hygeia and make Methuselahs as common as roses in June.

A Man Fish. An amusing feature of an aquatic exhibition at the Chicago Athletic club recently, was the angling contest. Professor Robinson, the club's swimming instructor, put on a strong leather harness which fitted closely about his back and neck, and entered the water. J. M. Sellers attached a hook to the harness. Then the man fish commenced to wriggle, and the angler began to play his catch scientifically. He had fifteen minutes to bring the professor within reach of his six foot gaff. Robinson made a game effort. Several times he went to the bottom, but the angler skilfully gave him all the line he wanted. After an especially vicious pull the man fish succeeded in snapping the line asunder, thus winning the contest. This contest, while hardly new, is, as far as known, the first of the kind which resulted in a victory for the "man fish," the angler, on other occasions, gaining the upper hand.

Judging from the present indications the attendance of the various regiments of the state militia at the state encampment at Island Lake, which opens Aug. 12th, will be considerably larger than last year. The official sheets of the state census for this county, which have just been issued from the office of the secretary of state, give Washtenaw county a population of 43,516 against 42,210 in 1890 and 41,694 in 1884. This shows an increase in population in the past ten years of 1,822. Dexter township looses 93, Scio 301, Webster 89, Lima 14. The report shows a loss in nearly all the townships in the county, the gain being in Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti.

The product of the creamery is below that of last year. Chas. Sanford is running it in accordance with the demands and prices. The product now is about 1800 pounds per week. Work on the seminary building is progressing with reasonable speed, and barring accidents or other hindrances it looks as if the lower rooms at least may be ready for use at the beginning of the school year. It will be a glad day to Ypsilanti, when the noble building stands again complete, and its bell rings out the hours as it did before the fire. Meanwhile we should like to know the vandal who set the fire, for set on fire it was without doubt, either by accident or design.

THAT BLUE BROCADE:

goods, Aunt Ju-dith! Just the most delicate blue that is almost a green, all shot with the most delightful wavering silver lights. Can't I dance at the opening of the Cosmopolitan club?

"No," returned Aunt Judith. "I've no money to waste on new gowns."

"But surely you do not wish me to look shabby at this very grand affair." "Wear that last new gown you got at Christmas-the heliotrope chiffon."

"Oh - that!" disdainfully. "I've worn it half a dozen times, and chiffon does look so dreadfully mussy if it isn't fresh."

Mrs. Risby rose. She was middleaged, stout, red-faced. She wore a black alpaca dress, a long, old-fashioned cable of a watch-chain, and a cameo brooch the size of a small sauce

"Stay at home, then," she advised. "You forget," Letha Maturin reminded her aunt, "that the catch of the season is to be present. Willis Vifquaine is young, rich, handsome. I think his place-Rosemere-is one of the most beautiful in this part of the country. He has been abroad ever since he graduated. All the girls are crazy to prove the conquering heroine. If I could only have a new gown of that blue brocade, I haven't a doubt in the world I could reign at Rosemere, if I chose."

Mrs. Risby's eyes twinkled with amusement.

"And what gives you such confidence, my dear?"

"Well, in the first place, his father and mine were partners in that great store that Willis now owns-the one we might now be deriving an income from, if poor papa had not gambled away his interest in it. The fact that our fathers were so nearly associated in business, and such warm friends, would make him find me particularly interesting."

"Well? And the second reason?" "Oh, the second and all the others are-myself."

"There is no denying, my dear, that the second is very charming, indeed," laughed the old lady, as she took herself away. Letha stood several minutes looking at her reflection in the long cheval glass. She nodded and smiled. Charming in truth!

"It's a shame!" she declared: "I can't set my good-looks off with that blue brocade!

"It is, indeed," echoed a sympathetic voice-a sweet voice, and low.

An arm stole around her waist. little curly brown head nestled against her shoulder. Two dark, brilliant eyes also regarded the face in the glass with admiration.

scheme. You must have that blue brocade, and go." Bright and early the following morning Tessie went down town to the enormous store in which her father had been interested several years before. She succeeded in seeing the manager, asked for work, and was refused. "But I thought," pleaded Tessie, naively, "you might employ me, as my father, Alexander Maturin, used to be a partner in the firm."

The manager looked at her with awakened interest. "Is there any one here who can

He knew the girl's name and social position and was willing to oblige her.
"I will, if possible, Miss Maturin. I must speak to the manager first."

Before she went home that evening she had the satisfaction of seeing the piece of blue brocade set aside for her. Her aunt and Letha exclaimed at the fact of her having sought and found work.

"I know there is some reason back of it," declared Mrs. Risby; "but you are such a sensible little thing, Tessie, have it for the I can trust you." The story of the girl who was working to earn a handsome dress got out in the store. It finally came to the ears of Mr. Willis Vifquaine.

"Miss Maturin! I remember she used to come to our house before I went to college. The old fellow left the children penniless, I understand. The girl promised to be a rare beauty."

And he took the first opportunity of walking by the lace counter, with a view of renewing his youthful acquaintance.

aisles at the unusual visit of the handsome young proprietor of the great establishment.

"Miss Maturin?" he questioned, pausing at the lace counter, and looking *ainly for a yellow-haired beauty.
"I am Tessie Maturin;" replied the little maiden addressed.

He lifted his hat.

Tessie turned rosy, and let him hold her soft fingers a moment. "I remember you now, though I was very young when you went away."

"May I call?" he questioned eagerly.

He did call several times to the satisfaction of Letha. Tessie noticed how impressed he was by her extraordinary charms. "He is the only man I ever saw who was good enough for her," she assured herself, trying to ignore a persistent little ache at her heart. "And when he sees her in the blue brocade-Her idea of his absolute subjugation at sight of such a vision could not be expressed in words. At the close of her sixth week of faithful work Tessie tendered her resignation, paid for the blue brocade, and went home in triumph with the precious parcel under her arm. She flew into the house, and laid it in Letha's hands.

"Now, you shall go in style to the opening of the Cosmopolitan club!" avowed Tessie.

Letha kissed her, and said she was the dearest sister in the world, and that she would remember and repay the kindness when she was queening it at Rosemere. Whereat Tessie ran off to her own room, and there shed a few absurd tears. The eventful night came. Letha was a superb picture in the bluish, silvery gown, waterlilies at her bosom, and her mother's diamonds in her hair. Tessie would have thought herself fully repaid as she sailed away, if it were not for a fiercely-fought fancy that seemed to her disloyal

About 11 o'clock, when she was putting fresh bows on Letha's slippers, and her aunt dozed in the corner, a ring came at the bell. Tessie opensa it. Mr. Vifquaine, his unbuttoned mackintosh displaying elaborate evening attire, walked in.

"Oh!" gasped Tessie, "I thought you were at the dance!"

"I was. And I saw your sister in the gown you worked to get for her. I supposed you were earning that for yourself, Tessie. She looked magnificent. But I found the affair a bore, because the girl I loved wasn't there."

Not one word could Tessie utter. She was conscious that her housegown must look shabby to him after the grand dresses at the club; and that her hair, which had loosened, was tumbling around her shoulders.

"She is here," he went on, looking down upon her, quizzleally, tenderly. "I wonder," taking her in his arms, "If she will give me a kiss, and say: 'I love you!'"
And Tessie—happy little Tessie!—

On January 30, she was in attendance when the prince of Wales came into the room and remarked: "For shame, Miss Russell! "Sir," replied Miss Russell, "for a granddaughter of Oliver Cromwell, it is humiliation enough to wait upon your sister."

In the last analysis probably everything is dirt. But there are wonderunpromising to look at; but what a magazine of possibilities there are in coal tar after it has passed through the inquiring hands of the chemist! One of the latest uses to which a coal tar derivative is applied is as a substitute for quicksilver in the bulbs of thermometers. This sub-stance is called tulnol. It contains no water, can stand a much lower temperature than quicksilver without freezing, and when exposed to warmth expands with great regularity. Besides possessing these qualities, it is cheap; and as it is much lighter than quicksilver the tube of the thermometer can be made much larger than is now usual, and thus it will not only be much easier to read the record, but greater exactitude in registration will be secured. The dark blue color of tulnol is another element which will contribute to the ease of reading the thermometer.

Growing wheat is a vegetable that is not readily affected by a nipping freet. In fact, it is a hardy plant, and thrives when the temperature is several degrees below the freezing point. It was hard work for the young man, but every time he hungered for a wad of nicotine his mind pictured the form of his fair one parading down the street with her face looking like a pan of dough, and he desisted. HE GOT HIS "75 CENT."

The Superintendent of Lincoln Park and

His Setting Hen-It is generally conceded that Superintendent Pettigrew, of Lincoln park, has an eye to economy in expenditures, and in negotiating for the park he is credited with usually getting the best at the lowest rates. But a certain Lake View hen fancier, late from the fatherland, got the better of him the other day. The knowledge that Lincoln park was in need of a setting hen having reached said Teuton's ears, he straightway waddled down to the park with the desired fowl tucked snugly under his arm, says the Chicago Times. Accosting the animal-keeper, he offered his treasure for sale, fixing the price at seventy-five cents. "I must ask the superintendent," said the keeper, and while the old German waited outside the superintendent was consulted in regard to the matter. Mr. Pettigrew, remarking something about the amount of "gall" possessed by a man who would demand 75 cents for an old setting hen, settled upon 50 cents as the highest sum he would add to the debit account of the park in exchange for the bird. When given rear. the superintendent's ultimatum the old Teuton exclaimed:

"Let me go in see that man mit de specks on."

He was granted admission to the and looking the superintendent directly in the eye, he began:

"Say, mister, your animal-feeder tell my son-in-law you want a settin' hen. I brings her all de vay mit me down here und I asks you 75 cent. He says you no give me but 50 cent. Now, mister, I scharge 50 cent to carry her all the vay under mine

"Clt, clt, ' said the hen as her possessor clasped her closer to his breast and continued:

"You see, mister, I feed her all winter, cost me somedings, und she no profit to me much. Little while ago she begin lay me eggs und now she want to set. I keeps her und she lay me eggs und hatch me schickens—two, dree dollars this summer—den I kills her in fall and she makes me dirty cent meat for de table. You give me seventy-five cent or I takes mine hen back mit

"Here, Mr. Clerk," said the superintendent, holding his sides, "give the man his seventy-five cents quick." Then the dignified park official threw back his head and roared so loudly that old Mage, in apprehension of impending danger to Jennie and the babies, sprang up in his cage and shook his mane de-hantly. "Clt, clt," said the hen as she rassed into the possession of Lincoln park, while the victorious Teuton tramped homeward to the merry jingle of the quarter and half dollar in his breeches pocket.

In Their Own Language.

A personage almost as widely known in the ecclesiastical world as his most reverend master was the late archbishop of Canterbury's coachman. He served Dr. Tait also before his elevation to the archiepiscopate, while as yet he occupied the see of London. Scores of stories have been told of the peculiarities of this individual, and the following, among others, was often related with the keenest relish by his grace: One day when, as the bishop of London, his lordship was returning from some meeting in the city, the carriage became blocked with some cabs, and the coachman freely indulged in an old habit by swearing lustily at the various drivers. The bishop heard him, thrust his head out of the window and sternly re-monstrated. "Beg your pardon, my lord," was the smart reply of the unabashed jehu, "but I heard you tell them 'ere gents as was ordained last Sunday that if you don't speak to people in their own natural tongue you will never get 'em to understand you."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Country Like a Boy. Old Uncle Johnnie Irish, of Schley county. Georgia, is perhaps the fleetest-footed man in the state of his age, and he is now 70 years old. He walked, or rather ran, from his home to Buena Vista, twelve miles, for the purpose of gerting the contract for carrying the mail from Buena Vista to Oglethorpe on foot. The mail on this route goes three times a week and the distance is thirty-six miles, which would make that many miles to be covered on foot every day except Sunday, but Uncle Johnnie thinks he can make it

He lives fourteen miles from Ellaville, and says he has often made the trip in two hours. On one occasion he was going to Ellaville to meet a priest, who was to pass at a certain hour on the train. On the road he passed a man in a buggy, who offered the pedestrian a seat with him in the buggy. Uncle Johnnie thanked him very kindly. but said he was in a hurry that morning, and he trotted on up hill and through sand beds and left the

He seldom walks when he is on the road, but trots, and makes six or seven miles an hour easily. His advantage over horse travel is that his gait is steady and travels hills office, and, ambling up to the desk and sand just as he does on level roads. He says he can cover five miles in half an hour.

He is a lively old gentleman, and as spry as a cat. He can relate many funny experiences concerning him-self. He says he used to pull the plow while his wife held the handles, and on one occasion he took a notion he would have some fun and began to whicker and paw the dirt with his feet and ran away with the plow. He does not pull the plow any more now, but has risen to the dignity of plowing with a steer.

Brace the Nerves. Sedatives and opiates won't do it. These nervines do not make the nerves strong, and failing to do this fall short of producing the essential of their quietude—vigor. And while in ex-treme cases—and these only—of nervous irritation such drugs may be advisable, their frequent use is highly prejudicial to the delicate organism upon which they act, and in order to renew their quieting effect increased and dangerous doses eventually become ne essary. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an efficient substitue for such pernicious drugs. It quiets the nerves by bracing, toning, strength-ening them. The connection between weakness of the nervous system and that of the organs of digestion is a strong and sympathetic link. The Bit-ters, by imparting a healthful impulse to the digestive and assimilating func-tions, promotes throughout the whole system a vigor in which the nerves come in for a large share. Use the Bitters in malaria, constipation, bilious and kidney trouble.

A False Maxim.

The loungers around the only store in a little New England village were greatly amused at something that happened one warm afternoon last August. A tall, lank, barefooted man came into the store with a gailon pail filled with blackberries. which he exchanged for three quarts of molasses. He carried a stout threw the stick across his shoulder. He reached the platform in front of the store, when a shining new pin at his feet caught his eye.

"See a pin and pick it up, All day long you'll have good luck," he drawled out and stooped over to pick up the pin, when the molasses crawled out all over his back and neck. Straightening himself hurriedly the man said: "Waal, I never thought much of that air proverb, an' I think less on it now than I ever did."-Youth's Companion.

CLIFF DWELLERS.

At Seventy Years He Goes Around the Their Strange Customs and Manner of

At a special meeting of the Washington Geographical society. Mr. Carl Lumbolz delivered a lecture on "The Cliff Dwellers of Mexico." These natives, he said, are mostly Christians, but during the last few years there has been a great decline toward barbarism, there being now out of the whole 30,000 as many as 3,000 pagans. It is the opinion of most people, he said, who are not familiar with these people, that their caves are burrowed out of the cliffs by their own hands, but nature has provided them with abodes in the sandstone, which are their homes in winter, the only artificial addition to these holes being stone walls which they make themselves, building them across the opening as barriers against invasion by their neighbors. These caves are the winter residences, small, wooden huts being used outside in the sum-

A strange custom of these people. Mr. Lumboltz said, is their reluctance to visit and their lack of hospitality. It is considered a criminal offense. for a man to enter another's house, even on a friendly errand or visit, and an insult for one to take particular notice of another's abode, their conversations being carried on at a distance from their doorways. He went on to describe the industry of the race, stating that corn, pepper and tobacco are their principal vege-table products. Their method of fishing consists of poisoning the wa-ters with a bark, which stuns the fish, but does not make them unfit to eat. As is the custom of the North American Indians, the women are the toilers, while the men merely have the executive cares of the family upon their shoulders, an event which does not appear to be of any great weight, since the parents never correct their children, who would consider any punishment a declaration of a family revolution.

However, Mr. Lumboltz said, honesty is the motto of every one of these strange people, there being no stealing or cheating among them. Their business transactions are all by barter, money not being used as a medium of exchange. The men are models of physical development, often making trips of 800 miles in five days carrying messages to dif-ferent cities. The average life of a native is 100 years or over, there being no wear upon their physical systems or worriment on their minds. The women always propose matrimony, because they are the real bone and sinew of the family.

Birds and Trees.

It is a remarkable fact, says a naturalist, that, notwithstanding the voluminous literature that has been written on birds and their habits, no writer has noticed the preference certain species give to certain trees. Jays and rooks are found in the greatest number in oak trees; finches, in lime trees; and blackcaps among laurels. The nightingale is always found in the greatest numbers in nut groves; while the thrush evinces a decided preference for birch and ash. The beech is the favorite tree of the woodpecker; and the numerous families of tits are generally found in the greatest abundance among the blackthorn.

On Lake Titleaca.

A triumph in engineering is reported from the mountains of Peru, where a twin-screw steamer of 540 tons, 170 feet long and thirty feet wide, has been successfully launched on Lake Titicaca, the highest navigable waters in the world, more than 13,000 feet above the sea. This steamer, which belongs to the Peruvian government, and is to be used for freight and passenger traffic, was built on the Clyde, then taken apart in more than a thousand pieces and shipped to Mollendo by sea. It was then carried to Puno by railway and transported over the mountains on the backs of llamas and mules, and put together by a Scotch engineer.

Sealed Letters Thrown Overboard.

The practice of throwing overboard from ships letters inclosed in sealed bottles is centuries old. ### TALES THEY TELL.

A stained glass window representing the Virgin Mary had been put into the church of A- in remembrance of Mrs. Brown, a wealthy benefactress of the congregation.
