EX-GOV. BLAIR DEAD.

WAR GOVERNOR OF MICHIGAN DIED AT JACKSON.

Drifted Calmly From This Life into the Great Iteralty-A Brief Sketch of Michigan's Grand Old Man-Village of Lakeview in Ruins From Fire.

Ex-Governor Austin Blair, died at his home in Jackson. Like a tired child sinking to rest on his mother's breast the distinguished orator, lawyer, scholar and statesman entered his ternal sleep, after being ill several days. His last hours were painless.

days. His last hours were painless. Only the family were present when the ex-governor died.

Austin Blair was born in a log cabin at Caroline. Tompkins county. N. Y., Jan. 4, 1818. The first 1; years of his life was spent upon the farm. Upon graduating from Union college Mr. Blair read law for two years in the office of Sweet & Davis, at Oswego, N. Y., and was admitted to the bar in 1841. In June of that year he came to Michigan. settling in Jackson, but soon afterward removed to Eaton county, where he was the same year elected county clerk. He served only a part of the term, returning to Jackson early in 1844, where he has since resided. Mr. Blair was a natural orator, and his love for public speaking led him to take an active part in politics, his first efforts in this line being during the campaign of 1844, when he espoused the cause of Henry Clay, the great leader of the Whig party, and during which he gained a state reputation as an orator.

In 1845 he was elected a member of the state legislature, at which session he assisted in revising the general statutes. He also made an able report in favor of abolishing the color distinction in relation to the elective franchise, thus becoming one of the first to advance Negro suffrage. He also assisted in the work of abolishing capital punishment. In 1848 he left the Whig party on account of its refusal to indorse the anti-slavery sentiment and affiliated with the free soil movement, in which he was an earnest and indefatigable worker. In 1852 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Jackson county. When the Republican party was formed under the oaks at Jackson. Mr. Blair was one of the most prominent participants, and in November of that year he was elected to the state senate on the Republican party was formed under the oaks at Jackson. Mr. Blair was one of the Mepublicans of Michigan that year.

Mr. Blair was chosen governor of Michigan in 1860, and was re-elected in 1882, faithfully choice of the Republicans of Michigan that year.

Mr. Blair was chosen governor of Michigan in 1860, and was re-elected in 1862, faithfully and honorably discharging the arthuous duties of the office during that most momentous and stormy period. Retiring from the office of governor in 1865, poorer by many thousands of dollars than when he entered it, but with an untarnished record, he was in 1866 elected a representative in congress and was re-elected twice, serving six years during the trying times of the reconstruction and restoration of the ucion. In 1872 he left the Republican party and again became a candidate for governor on the Liberal Republican and Democratic ticket. but was defeated. This practically ended his political career, and since that time as long as his health permitted he attended strictly to his law practice.

The people of Michigan are proud of the record made by Gov. Blair during the trying times of the civil war. In selecting officers for the regiments, history shows that he acted wisely, and a number of the officers appointed by him gained a world-wide fame by their bravery and devotion to duty. Among those appointed by Gov. Blair was Phil Sheridan.

During the past three or four years Gov. Blair had suffered a great deal from ill-health, but up to two years ago he gave his attention to his law practice.

Ex-Gov. Blair leaves a widow, for whom also but up to two years ago he gave his attention to his law practice.

Ex-Gov. Blair leaves a widow, for whom also there is a warm spot in the hearts of old soldiers, on account of her untiring devotion and aid in time of war; also four sons, Charles A. and George H., attorneys in Jackson, Fred J. Blair, a department clerk in Washington and Austin T. Blair. His religion was of the broad type. He believed emphatically in the golden rule, and followed its precepts to the letter.

Gov. Pattison, Hon. W. F. Harrity, chairman of the Democratic national committee; Attorney-General Hensel, Capt. Wm. P. Hendrie, of the Lehigh Valley system; Thomas Bradley and David Brodhead, all of Pennsylvania and all Democrats, were aboard the steamer Saranac from Chicago when they were met in Lake St. Clair by three yachts loaded with Michigan Democrats, headed by Hon. Don M. Diskinson, Hon. Spaces O. Fisher. Assistant Secretary of State Edwin F. Uhl, ex-Lieut.-Gov. Strong, and James O'Hara, Democratic candidate for attorney-general. The Pennsylvanians were taken aboard the yachts and conveyed to the Old Club house at St. Clair flats, where a reception was tendered with a big dinner on the side. Speeches were made by the guests and their entertainers, and the former were then taken to Detroit and seen safely on board the Saranac again.

Town of Lakeview Destroyed.

The entire business portion of Lake-view was destroyed by fire at an early morning hour. Thirty-five buildings are in ruins, and the loss will aggregate between $150,000 and $200,000. The fire started at 11 p. m. in the building south of the Montealm house, burning all the buildings on both sides of Main street as far south as Read's blacksmith shop. Both hotels, the postoffice, Macomber & Bale's large dry goods store, C. M. Northrop's general store, two drug stores, the Enterprise office and many other stores were destroyed. The village fire depart-ment could make but little headway against the furious flames, which licked up everything as they rushed through the streets.

Farmer's Fatal Quarrel.

Henry Hill, a farmer, about 10 miles Henry Hill, a farmer, about 10 miles from Oscoda, was probably fatally stabbed by another farmer, Thomas Paul. Hill's horse got into Paul's premises. Paul put the horse in his stable and sent word to Hill to come and get it. Hill's wife came, but Paul wouldn't let the horse go without the payment of $2. Hill then went after the horse himself, but Paul followed and stabbed him twice. and stabbed him twice.

Berrypickers Narrowly Escape Cremation.

Hundreds of people who were pick-ing blackberries in the swamp of over 4,000 acres northeast of St. Louis, were obliged to fly for their lives, on account of fire. Otto Mey, of Forest Hill, and his party with difficulty escaped with their lives. While running their horses one fell down. They were obliged to leave the animal and flee.

All but $12,000 of the $60,000 required as a bonus toward the building of the Port Huron & Lexington railroad has been subscribed.

Levi Gardner, a section foreman on the Lake Shore road, was struck on the hip at Springport by a freight engine and knocked 20 feet. He was not badly hurt.

Errors have been discovered in the Michigan census figures recently given out. The population of the state is now given as 2,241,000, an increase of 147,111, or 7.03 per cent in four years. The cities have increased 109,760, or more than two-thirds of the entire

JAPS DECLARE WAR.

SURE TO BE A STRUGGLE NOW IN THE EAST.

Japan Takes the First Decisive Step in War Exists with China-Japan Makes

Tokio, Japan: The Japanese gov-ernment has informed the representatives of the foreign powers here that a state of war exists between Japan and China. This is regarded as equivalent to a declaration of war.

Washington: There is surprising lack of information of an official nature regarding the events in the China-Japan trouble and the surmise that official dispatches have been obstructed is now a conviction. The notice given by Japan that a state of war exists is regarded here as equivalent to a declaration of war, or at least it imposes the same obligation upon neutral nations. The United States, for instance, can sell to either China or Japan arms and munitions of war and supplies, but they must be delivered at the risk of the purchaser, and any vessel carrying them is liable to seizure. So by this stroke Japan doubtless has seriously embarrassed China in her efforts to supply herself with warlike equipment in other countries.

Just what the effect will be on the Chinese treaty ports cannot be foretold now. Japan has taken the ground that they are practically foreign set-tlements and therefore has disclaimed any intention to interfere with them, regarding them as outside the zone of hostile operations. China, however, has persistently claimed the right, under the treaties opening the ports, to close them in the time of war and will now proceed immediately to close the more important, beginning with Berlin: The Chinese minister here Shanghai, perhaps, by obstructing the Japan's Apo ogy to England.

Tokio: The Japanese government has instructed its minister in London to apologize to Great Britain for the fring upon and sinking the Kow Shing while she was flying the British flag. The Japanese minister has been instructed to inform Great Britain that the commander of the Japanese cruiser did not know that the Kow Shing was a British vessel until after the fight.

Capt. Galsworthy, of the Kow Shing, and a number of others of that transport were rescued by the boats of the Japanese warship Naniwa.

England Will Remain Neutral. London: The earl of Kimberly, upon receiving from the envoy of the Tokio government, the official notification that Japan had formally declared war against China, declared that Great Britain remained neutral in the matter, although the British gov-ernment would immediately take steps to safeguard British interests in the

So far as the sinking of the transport Kow Shing, flying the British flag, is concerned, the envoy was informed Great Britian awaits the statement of the English captain of that steamer before making any reply to the apology offered by Japan.

The Feeling in Russia.
St. Petersburg: The Russian newspapers are unanimous in saying that whatever the result of the war between China and Japan Russia will not tolerate any diminishment of Korean territory or alienation of Korean independ-ence. Russia, it is added, will not permit any interference upon the part of Great Britain or any other power, if such interference endangers Russian interests.

CONFLAGRATIONS AT DETROIT.

Three Big Fires Cause the Loss of One Life and Property Valued at $125,000. Detroit was visited by three destructive fires in one day, entailing a total damage of more than $125,000. The saddest feature of the day, how-ever, was the death of one fireman and ever, was the death of one fireman and the serious injury of five others from falling walls. The dead man's head was crushed in by bricks, and he ex-pired five minutes after being rescued from beneath the debris which covered

The first fire consumed the Michigan Central flour sheds at noon. The second and largest fire, which was attended by fatal results, took place at 3 o'clock, when the E. G. Richards & Co.'s planing mill, on Franklin street, and the lumber in the yard of Hunton, Hyles & Weeks adjoining it were totally destroyed. The third fire, which originated from the previous one, was the four-story building of the American Fibre Belting company at 371 Atwater street. It started at 6 o'clock, and that building and several smaller structures were destroyed. The first fire consumed the Michigan smaller structures were destroyed.

$2,000,000 FIRE IN CHICAGO. Over 40 Acres of the Lumber District

Burned,-Four Lives Lost. The lumber district of Chicago was The lumber district of Chicago was visited by one of the most disastrous fires in its history, and the loss will probably foot up $2,000,000. Eleven large establishments were entirely burned out. The burned district is about six blocks square from east to west and three from north to south. The greatest portion of the district bounded by Blue Island avenue, Lincoln street, the river and Ashland avenue. coln street, the river and Ashland avenue was burned over, and 40 acres of lumber yards were left as a big field of embers.

During the fire the wind suddenly changed and the flames caught several engine companies unprepared and the men were compelled to run for their lives. The fireboats Yosemite and Geyser had close calls but ran through the flames which leaped out over the slip, and escaped unharmed. The total number of men thrown out of employment by the fire is 2,200, and the destruction was so complete that it will be many weeks before most of them can be given work by the firms which suffered.

Later reports show that four deaths were caused beside a number of persons being injured. The dead are: Lieut. John McGinn, of the fireboat Geyser, byrned; died at county hospital. William Wollenfell, struck by cap blown from Engine 35; knocked into river and drowned; body recovered. Unknown man, knocked into river and drowned. Unknown boy, 17 years old; burned to death.

More Blazes. Chicago: The lumber district was visited by a second fire which for a time threatened to rival in destructiveness that of the previous day. Before it was subdued it had wiped out the yards of the John Spry Lumber Co., A. J. McBean, cedar posts, and P. Farrell, cedar posts. In addition to the lumber yards, the wooden bridge over the Chicago river at Ashland avenue was totally destroyed. The fire was on a piece of land 250 feet long and half as wide lying between two loading slips for vessels. It is directly east of where first the fire was checked. The total loss is $100,000.

A large eight-story building at No. 158 West Vanburen street was cleaned out by fire while the lumber yards were blazing. The building was occurred pied by a number of small concerns and a loss of $80,000 was sustained. Lieut. Cunningham, of hook and lad-der company No. 16, was fatally injured by a falling wall, and Capt. Sullivan, of engine company No. 34, seriously wounded by falling glass.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York.—Dun's review of trade says:
An important change in the state of business is near at hand. Congress will act on the tariff question, one way or the other within a week. If it passes the pending bill, or if it falls, in either case the definite basis for future business will enable many to act who are now waiting. Whether the one course or the other would stimulate the greater increase, it is certain that either would give relief from present paralyzing uncertainties, and cause some increase in business at least for a time. So much business has been deferred during the past year and merchandise stocks have been so reduced, that the mere approach of a decision, without certainty what it is to be, has encouraged large preparation for increased business. In spite of outgoing gold and sinking treasury reserves, small railroad earnings, some injury to crops, and increased trouble in the coke regions, the tone and the outlook are more hopeful. Recovery in iron manufacture is hindered by greater trouble in the coke region, where many of the new colored hands have quit and gone back to the south, and the strikers have decided to continue the struggle. The failures the past week, were 219 in the United States against 438 last year.

New York.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: While little significance is attached to the moderate improvement in trade at San Francisco. Pittsburg and Baltimore, when it is added that clearing house totals for July report 28 cities with larger aggregates than in July last yeur, contrusted with the June report, which contained only eighteen cities with aggregates larger than those in June a year ago, it is perceived that there are influences at work at the interior favoring an increase in the volume of business. Wheat has advanced in sympathy with corn, on increased orders and reports of crop damage from abroad, while corn's sharp advance is due partly to exaggerate denotions of damage from drought. There is little likelihood of the corn crop being smailer than in either of the two pre

Although Wayne has not yet chosen was only secretary of that convention, but he was chairman of the one we had Saturday to elect Lenawee's delegates to the Second District congressional convention to be held in our town on the 16th. Yes, and he was chairman of a very lively convention, too. The excitement began when a resolution was introduced instructing the delegation to caucus and agree upon the name to be presented by Lenawee to the congressional convention. There was a hot fight on the resolution, but it was finally adopted by a vote of 89 to 68, and then a hasty adjournment was taken to avoid further wrangling. The trouble didn't end there. You know we have two candidates in our county, Grant Fellows, of Hudson, and H. C. Smith, of Adrian. The Smith people seemed to have no use for the resolution, and finally accepted 'Doc's' suggestion that they wait until the morning of the convention before caucusing while some of them declared that they would go into no caucus, but would vote as they pleased. Doc Smith was accused of running the convention in the interests of General Spalding, of Monroe, and of having made a deal whereby he was to get Monroe's support for state senator in return. He denied the latter charge but didn't say he wasn't in favor of Spalding. Things were warm there for a while. Even if Lenawee unites on one man there will be five candidates in the field when the convention meets-Spalding, of Monroe, ex-Congressman O'Donnell, of Jackson, and Capt. E. P. Allen and A. J. Sawyer, of Washtenaw. There's bound to be some music in our district this season.-The Politician in Detroit Tribtagion spreads. We hear on every hand dolorous predictions. The times were Never so hard. Trade is hopeless. Real estate will never recover. Manufacturing is dead. The business of this nation will never revive. This Nation is on the high road to destruction. One is almost tempted to use expletives in answer to these depressing predictions. As a nation we are sick, but not by any manner of means hopelesly sick. We have been too energetic, rushed too much, have indulged too largely in credit, over speculation has been the rule, stock speculations and gambling are altogether too common, the chilaren have all tried to start in life where their fathers left off, we have in a word as a Nation run a muck for the almighty dollar, and now pay day has come at last, and the inevitable clearing house must do its work. We are somewhat crippled, but we are not ruined or in any danger whatever of destruction-In this Nation we are developing new ideas and theories, both social, financial and governmental, and of course make many mistakes. The ignorant, oppressed and undeveloped masses of the old world have here been turned lose in an atmosphere of freedom that is entirely new, and it will take several generations for them to become assimilated so as to work properly in the new harness. In our rapidly developing state, we are constantly changing conditions both as to internal affairs and our relations to foreign nations, so that the policy of yesterday will not quite fit today, and we must be patient with legislators who are strggling with new problems under ever varying conditions. But as a Nation we cannot be kept down for any great length of time. I think our people do not keep in mind, several important facts in regard to this country. All of this country east of the Mississippi river and some portions west, is the most productive of any now occupied by civilized men. The soil is unusually productive and the climate very favorable. We have the theremometer at twenty below zero in the winter, and ninety-five degrees or more above zero in the summer months. This gives the soil great recuperative power and we can raise in this region even some tropical fruits. We can produce almost double the variety of products, and much more per acre than any of the countries of Europe. Then, too, the country is not more than half developed and we have a large annual imigration of strong and vigerous adult laborers with some money.

Knives.

A cheap Pocket-knife can be bought at every Store, but it is not the kind you want.

One dollar is the lowest price that a really good knife can be sold for. This column is placed in this paper to advertise the very best Pocket-knife ever sold. It is J. C. TIDMARSH'S Sheffield Never buy a knife only because it looks well. If blades are not the best Sheffield steel they will soon bend, no matter how they will look. Still, you want a fine-looking knife.

Steel Knife.

The United States law provides that only samples to agents and to the trade will be admitted free of duty. You can, therefore, see the advantage that I have in sending samples to agents over those who deal in Sheffield goods

I am an advertising agent! I am entrusted with a certain amount to spend advertising these knives (the best value ever seen in America at One Dollar each). Now, the knife is its own best advertisement.

Imagine a Pocket-knife (31 inches long) with the most beautifully-grained ivory handle—genuine African ivory —and with two blades of the very best Sheffield steel that will last a lifetime and cut like a razor. The tips of the handles are heavily plated with sterling silver. And then a very nice chamois leather case goes with each knife. Now, would it not be easy work selling this knife at Ore Della cash? selling this knife at One Dollar each? I know it would, for it looks as if it were worth two dollars.

And so it is if you compare it with the value offered in the ordinary Store.

Is not this knife its own best advertisement.

You can make $4 per day selling these knives. This is a genuine and straigtforward statement. This is counting that you show it to only twelve buyers every day. And every one that sees it will say it is good value for $1. The knives are sold to you at $8 per dozen; you sell them at $1 I determined to use large sum of ad-

SKETCHES OF OUR CITY.

Outlines and Incidents of Ann Arbor's Founding and Growth. Written Expressly for The Register by Prof. A. Ten Brook.

In 1844, there was nothing but the University buildings and farming lands east of State street, no buildings on the east side of State street and building had just begun on the west front of that street. In what is now the southern part of the city to the northward of Allen's creek was a large brick-yard and the buildings forming the village lacked yet some distance of having reached this yard. The populous district, now forming most of the second ward was then farming land and the other things being equal. third ward, was the Hiscock's farm. What is now the fifth ward was then business activity to the north side of the a reason for everything. river. Lund & McCollum were carrying on a large mercantile establishing a thriving work. The Lower town his watch to find the "tick." had then about its present extent. The foregoing description shows how circumscribed was that part of the village known as the Upper town. As already indicated, State street was its eastern limit, Allen's creek its western, except that two roads, the one now Huron street, the other Miller avenue, had some houses beyond the indicated

To retrace a Sunday morning walk to church may as well as ought else indicated an aspect of the village of that day. My wife and I might have been seen, that is, if their had been anybody to see us, issuing about 10 o'clock in the morning from the front door of the eastern house on the north side of the University square, traversing a path along the west side of the old cemetery and descending into the wooded ravine on the eastern side of which now stand the magnificent hospital buildings. This ravine threaded, we came to the river road, now known as Fuller street, pursued it till we came near the only house we were to encounter until within a few rods of the church-that is, the Kellogg farm house which still stands at the corner of Fuller and Observatory streets-there wheeling about to the left we crossed the river and were soon at the church on Wall street.

It will be perceived that a moderate ambition was felt by those whe laid out and named the sreets of the Lower town. The main thoroughfare through the place was called Broadway. The first street coming into from the southeast was Wall street. But the example of the great eastern rival was not followed in the building of the church. In the eastern city Trinity church is built on Broadway at the head of Wall, so that he who walks up the latter can look upon its magnificent facade. But that there was no point of view from

In our return from church we generally took the way of Wall and Broadway, so as to have the company of two or three fellow-pilgrims. If, however, took the left by way of State street, we a child rocked to sleep in his father's still had to make the whole remainder of the way alone; so we sometimes came around by way of Detroit and Huron streets.

On a Sunday afternoon of 1845, or 1846, sitting at my window, I saw a flock of wild turkeys coming from the southwest, touching the common near the junction of state street and north University avenue, move on, keeping their direction till they passed out of their families. There, when a case sight in the ravine north of the old cemetery, having traversed, doubtless, the entire extent of a line which would now divide the city into two nearly equal parts. The prairie fowls used at that time to fly over the town back and forth between some swamplands lying on the death the health officer made his northwest of the town and the extensive section of swampy lands lying to the southeast. But this class of occurrences were seldom repeated after the period here refered to.

As to architecture, the good houses on the fingers of of one hand. The house built by John W. Maynard, in which his family still lives, on Division street, was there in 1844, as was that also of Robert S. Wilson, corner of Division and Ann streets, and nsw owned by Mr. Wahr. William S. Maynard had a fine place, now a boarding house, on Main street. George Miles, afterwards one of the judges of the supreme court, had built the house on the corner of Huron and Division sts., and now owned by John Sheehan; built as a one story house and afterwards improved to its present condition successively by William Sinclair and Henry W. Rogers.

As to trees, the owners of property had left standing many of the original buroaks, where these were not in the way of the progress of improvement, and people were beginning to set out maples and elms. I myself set out in front of the house occupied by my family two elms and a linden which are now probably the largest transplanted trees in the city.

The population of Ann Arbor at the time, of which I here write, was not far from 2,500. In 1816, the place obtained a city charter, which diminished rather than increased its population, since the than increased its population, since the hibited from keeping fire-arms of Lower town refused to be reckoned in any description in their houses. A Danuille girl tells the Advocate the following with regard to waltzing: "No one waltz, even when danced with the same partner, is exactly the same. It is always a new sensation. The music is not in the same key, and the waltz does not touch the same chords of one's soul. If I dance twenty waltzes in the evening I have twenty different thrills of pleasure. Single-Handed and Without Firing a Shot or Being Seen.

The residents of Staten island, during its occupancy by the British in Revolutionary times, were profew of ther, nevertheless, says the Argonaut, succeeded in concealing guns, and among these was a young man named Housman. One morning, after the fall of a light snow, the young man was out with his gun in quest of rabbits, when a sudden turn in the path brought him in sight of two soldiers. The two parties saw each other simultaneously, and each stopped. Housman thought of the loss of his gun, and possibly of his life; but the sense of danger was but a stimulus to his coolness and dar-ing. He suddenly turned his back on the soldiers, and stepping around the turn, waved his hand, as if beckoning to some one. "Hurry up!" he shouted; "here are two Britishers. Three of you go round to the right, three to the left, and the rest follow me. Hurry up before they run away!' and fearing there might be a small army about to surround them, turned and fled. They even threw down their arms to facilitate their flight. What report they made when they reached their quarters is not known, but a detachment was sent out to capture the young man and his army. Their surprise and mortification may be imagined when, at the turn in the path, they could find but the tracks of a single individual.

The duke answers in surprise: "What have you to complain of? Seventy-four is only a number."

"That's just it. It is the very number which I bore when in jail, and I am not going to allow it to be degraded by having to have a servant dubbed with it."

Everybody had to give in to that argument, it was the law. The play was stopped there and then. I have never been able to ascertain what further befell the charming 132, Count 18 and Duke 53. I have not been able to sleep at night through speculating on the subject.

Emperor William as a Matrimonial Agent Emperor William of Germany has shown his versatility in many ways, but it was not until a few weeks ago that he made his debut as a matrimonial agent. The debut was successful. Recently a young man and two women from Berlin went to Potsdam to view the park of San-Souci, the favorite one of Frederick the Great. They lost their way, however, and were obliged to accept the assistance of a soldier who was fa-miliar with the grounds. He showed them everything of interest, and finally bade them farewell at the station. But one of the young women had taken a fancy to the private, inches square. and began to long to see him again. The Ink Plant.

In Colombia there grows a plant whose popular name is the ink plant. Its juice is a ready made ink. At first the writing looks reddish, but it becomes deep black in the course of a few hours. It will not harm steel pens; and letters written with it, if soaked in water, even for a long time, will be quite legible when dry. The plants are poisonous, however, so that this natural ink will never take the place of the common or finger staining sort in daily use.

HIS VISIT CUT SHORT. An Indianapolis Lady's Solicitude for the Cleanliness of Her Friends A certain lady of Indianapolis who had never been used to the luxury of life until after her husband made a large sum of money in the real estate business, moved into an elegant house which had, amoung other conveniences, a fine bath room, It was her pride, and every visitor was informed about the bath room. Guests who came from a distance were greeted with: "Now, I know you are tired and dusty after your long journey; just go right up to the bath room and you can have a refreshing bath at once." This worked well in most cases, but one day she made a mistake. She went to the door one warm summer afternoon to find a young gentleman friend of her husband's from Louisville, and she took it for granted that he was going to stay all night. So her first words after shaking hands with him were: "Now, you are tired and dusty after bath room; a bath will refresh you so." In vain the young man tried to expostulate; she had him by the arm and started him up the stairway before he could get in a word. In half an hour he came down and took up his hat and stick. "I thank you very much," he said; "I enjoyed the bath very much." Then he started for the door. "Why, where are you going?" asked the hostess. "To catch my train," he answered; "I only had took half an hour, so I must hurry to catch the Chicago train." It cured the lady of showing off her bath

Everybody in town would be talking about it inside of twenty-four hours, and your store would get a reputation for selling good machines cheap that would be worth hundreds of dollars to you."
"That's not a bad scheme," said the

I'll take it off your hands. But I'm no hog," he added, cheerfully. "I'll let it stay in your window till to-morrow morning.

"Wasn't that rather an unhandsome trick?" asked the silent partner, after the disinterested friend had gone away.

"No," reflected the dealer. "That machine has been on hand two years, but it's worth every cent of $47.50."

ONE ON THE BAND.

The Cable Car Gripman Knocks Out the Tooters.

There are more ways than one of embarrassing a brass band. The story of the man who rendered the wind instruments of such an organization useless by sucking a lemon in full sight of the performers has often been related and the resultant watering of their mouths fully explained. But the gripman of a Chicago cable train has discovered an equally effective method of allaying the pain often caused by the notes of a street band. The other day a brass band of six pieces, all weighing several pounds, and operated by an equal number of bespectacled German musicians with inexhaustible lungs, paused in front of a saloon and proceeded to annoy the neighborhood with the discordant strains of a see-saw waltz. The usual crowd of small fry gathered and the band was making the welkin ring when the gripman aforesaid came along on his car. The band and saloon were both on the corner, and there the gripman stopped to let a passenger on. Usually gripmen do not stop to let passengers on, preferring to see the passenger endanger his neck by catching the car on the fly, but on this occasion the band presented too great a temptation. After he had stopped right behind the band the gripman grabbed the bell-rope of his gong with a firm hand and began to pull it with all his vigor. It was a particularly brassy and resonant gong, and its continuous clanging fairly drowned the music of the band. The big leader was mad clear through. Removing his trombone from his face he rushed out into the street and shook his fist at the gripman, telling him in German just what he thought of him. But the big gripman laughed and kept up his ringing until he forced the musicians down a side street on the run.

PERIL IN TEA.

Excessive Use of the Beverage Often

A report upon insanity in Ireland, which has just been issued, enumerates among the causes of mental failure, the innutricious dietary of the poorer population, tending to produce anæmia and constitutional weakness, which favor the development of scrofulous and neurotic diseases, and the immoderate use of certain nervous stimula s, particularly tea and to-

"While the moderate use of properly prepared tea," the report adds, "is regarded as innocuous, or even beneficial in its action on the nervous system, its ill effects when decocted or over-infused on persons who make it their staple article of dietary are dwelt on by almost all the resident medical superintendents in their several reports. Undoubtedly the method of preparation adopted and the excessive use of this article of diet, now so general among the poorer population, tends to the production of dyspepsia, which in its turn leads to states of mental denression highly favorable to the production of various forms of neurotic disturbance.

"The excessive use of tobacco, also, especially among the young, whether by smoking or chewing, in the opinion of certain of our medical superintendents, acts, though perhaps in a minor degree, injuriously on the nervous centers.

In many parts of Ireland it has been found that bread and tea have been substituted for porridge and milk, and for potatoes also; that the tea is generally of an inferior quality, and the method of preparation is to put a quantity in the teapot early in the morning and to allow it to stew durwhere meals are served are known by the simple but suggestive picture of a crossed knife and fork against the name of the station. On entering the dining room the traveler sees that it is furnished with a number of small tables, each with the cloth spread, but destitute of dish or food or any arctcle whatever. In the center of the room is a big table on which are knives, forks, plates and napkins. The traveler helps himslef to these articles, and presently the different viands which go to make up the repast are brought in and placed on the big table. The guest helps himself to each of the courses as they come along, no surprise being felt if the hungry wayfarer helps himself to a portion of every viand. He then takes a seat at one of the tables, and leisurely eats his meal. For this well-cooked and bountiful repast the sum of forth cents is charged.

Post Office Methods.

In the early part of the century the British postmaster-general received suggestions of several methods for conveying the royal mails besides steam locomotives. Among others was one made by a royal engineer, who advised that the mails should be enclosed in shells and fired from one stage to another. A good bombardier would be able to drop a shell within a few feet of a mortar or cannon, which would be required to pass it on to the next stage.

A Close Observer.

The examiner wished to get the children to express moral reprobation of lazy people, and he led up to it by asking them who were the persons who got all they could and did nothing in return. For some time there was silence, but at last a little girl, who had obviously reasoned out the answer inductively from her home experiences, exclaimed with a good deal of confidence:

"Please, sir, it's the baby!"

FRAUDS IN WILLS.

The Daring Trick of a Disinherited Elder Son.

"One of the most daring tricks I ever came across," said a New York attorney, "was the case of a man who deliberately impersonated a lawyer's clerk and persuaded a very sick man to sign a will without reading it, and which disposed of his property in direct opposition to his wishes. It was a case of a family dispute and the old gentleman, who was quite wealthy, had decided to disinherit his eldest son and leave the property to a younger one. Being warned by his doctor that he had only a day or two more to live, he sent and got a new set. instructions to his attorney to draft his will and send it down promptly for signature. While the lawyer was preparing the document a representative of the eldest son arrived with a paper, which he said was the will prepared by the sick man's attornev. The will was signed without hesitation and duly witnessed, and when two hours later the lawver's clerk arrived with the genuine will he was not allowed to enter the house. being warned off, the premises by the housekeeper. On his return to the office his employer saw at once that a fraud had been committed, and he hastened to the house to have it set right. In the meantime, however, the sick man had become unconscious, and died without being able to execute a will after his own wishes. The bogus will was upset, but the fraud could never be sufficiently proved to convict the man suspected of concocting it, and he inherited quite a large sum of the money as next of kin."

THE OYSTER GOT EVEN.

He Embraced the Duck's Bill and the Bird Died.

The meek and lowly oyster can sometimes become a revengeful as well as a dangerous antagonist, as an unwary duck found to his cost a day or so ago on the eastern shore of the Chesapeake. This careless duck, belonging to the tribe known as "fishermen," was swimming about in search of food off the shores near Claiborne when he espied an oystera nice, fat, juicy oyster he was-with shell widely parted, feeding, doubtless, on the simple and rather intangible diet upon which an oyster is supposed to feed.

The duck, true to his greedy instincts, dived for that supposed juicy morsel, and was about to swallow him whole, without salt or pepper even, when the angry passions of the oyster arose, and, snapping his shells together, caught the unsuspecting duck's bill in a vise-like embrace. The duck rose to the surface, shook his head, mumbled apologies through his tight shut mouth, but the bivalve's heart was hardened, and he held on. Soon the constant load pulling down his head and growing weightier and weightier began to tire the duck, and his neck arched lower and lower until finally it sank into the water and he was drowned.

A deckhand on the steamboat Tangier saw the duck floating with his head submerged and picked him up. The oyster was still clinging to his victim with a relentless, deadly grasp, and the tragedy that must have been enacted as described was revealed. But the duck and the slaver were brought to Baltimore on the Tangier and proved quite a curiosity.

GILDERS IN AMERICA.

That Sent Master Workmen Here.

It is a tradition among the gilders of New York that they owe their peculiar skill to the redecoration of Windsor eastle at the command of George IV. Every available gilder of London was busied for a long time in gilding the palace, and when the work was done many of them found that their places in the trade had been taken by apprentices. Unable to find work at home, many came to America, and some established themselves in New York. These men inches, nine feet seven inches and taught their art to Americans, and nine feet-one rhinoceros, an elethe gilders of this country are now among the best in the world. A Curious Freak of Lightning. The old adage that "lightning never often been disproved. Here is an instance to point: In the summer of 1884 the farmhouse of Henry Axtell, in Chemung county, New York, was struck by lightning three times in one day. First it split the chimney from top to bottom, ruined stove and pipe and bored several large holes in the floor. An hour later a "bolt" struck the same house and tore a milk beach, upon which several cans of milk were setting, all to pieces. The same evening a third flash entered the roof and tore the legs from Making Hairpins.

Hairpins are made by automatic and very complicated machines. The coiled wire is put upon drums, and becomes straightened as it feeds itself to the machine. It passes along until it reaches two cutters, which point the ends at the same time that they cut it to the length required. This piece of wire then slips along the iron plate until it reaches a slot, through which it is pressed into the regular shape. The hairpins are then put into a pan and japanned, after which they are heated in an oven with a temperature of from 300 to 400 degrees.

LITERARY NOTES.

Seribners Magazine for August is a Diction Number, as has been the custiom for seven years. It contains six complete short stories, by H. C. Bunner, T. E :Sullivan, William H. Shelton, W. Graily Hewitt, Octave Uzanne, and Harrison Robertson, the author of one of the most famous stories ever published in Scribner's, "How the Derby was Won." All these stories are disdiagnished by an individuality and delicate fancy that make them of unpenal quality, even for the high standard of short fiction in American magarines. Chas. Scribner's Sons, New Outing for August opens with a stronge piece of fiction, 'The Chain Domingo with her first husband, of Destiny," by Edith Robinson. Other notable features of an excellent mamber are: 'The Ascent of Mount tonished at the ardor of her dissipa-Hood," by Earl Morse Wilbur; "The tion. Land of the Bread-fruit," by F. M. Zurner; and "The New York Yacht Cleb" a history of fifty years, by Capt. A.J.Kenelay. The editorial and record department is very interesting and complete.

The Atlantic Monthly for August presents to its readers contents of waried and unusual interest. Theodore Roosevelt speaks a timely word to the college gradute in a paper entitled The College Graduate and Public Life. Perhaps one of the most important contributions to this issue is a discussion of Some Eviles of Our Consular Service, by Albert H. Washburn. Heaghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

The biographical sketches given by Littell's Living Age is one of its most attractive features. Recent issues give us two or three of special interest. No. 2610 contains, under the title of "The Wicked Cardinal," a delight of Napole. In that extraordinary fully readable article on Cardinal de Retz. A paper that will be, perhaps, more extensively appreciated, is a long and valuable sketch of "Handel: Man and Musician," by Frederick J. Crow-

Jacob Tome, the Philadelphia mildionaire, began life as a hostler. Some time ago a friend of his, who had been a fellow hostler in Tome's early days, and who had never risen above that, approached him for the loan of $250. He was informed that he could have it upon producing proper security. This demand for security incensed Mr. Tome's hostler friend, who, turning to him, said: "Why, dang it, Jake, weren't you and I hostlers together?" and received the reply: "Yes, and you're a hostler still"

She has left a pleasant memory behind her, in spite of the irregularities of her private life, which she did not take sufficient care to conceal.

The Princess Pauline, wife of Prince Borghese, was perhaps the most beautiful woman of her time, and she hardly dreamed of giving prominence to any other advantage than this one. She had been to Santo Gen. Leclerc. In spite of poor health she was none the less beautiful.

It remains for me to speak of Caroline, the wife of Murat and queen of Naples, who bore a great resemblance to the emperor. Less beautiful than Pauline, although endowed with more seductive charms, she possessed the art, without being any more scrupulous than her sisters, of showing a greater respect for the proprieties; besides, all her tastes vanished in the presence of her ambition. She had found the Naples crown somewhat too small for her head and greatly coveted the Spanish one, but in the end she became resigned to her fate, and wore with good grace the one which had fallen to her lot; it may even be said that she did so with no little amount of dignit,

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

His Dinner.

"I see you have had a visit from George Francis Train," said a grizzled old newspaper man at the National in Washington. "I never hear his name that I don't think of an incident in his remarkable career many years ago, when he was in his prime and enjoying almost unlimited power. When the Union Pacific road was being built and had nearly reached completion, Train took a large excursion party of Eastern people out West to examine the enterprise. At Omaha, which was then the most primitive kind of a town, Train gave the party a dinner at the only hotel in the place.

When the guests were seated the erratic host discovered that one of the panes in the window behind his chair was broken out, and he ordered a waiter to stand in front of it and keep the draught from him. The servant refused, whereupon Train called the head waiter, who also declined to be used as a pneumonia screen. The philosopher grew angry and sent for the proprietor.

"What will you take for this infernal old rookery?" he demanded. The boniface named $10,000. Train scratched off a check for the amount, threw it to the astonished proprietor, secured a receipt and then called up the head waiter.

"'Stand in front of that hole in that window or get out of my service,' he directed. The head waiter took up his place as a breeze buffer without any further objections."

Forests of the Upper Peninsula Giving Out-Canadian Timber Instead. Michigan is still the first pine lumber-producing state. although, owing to the general business depression, there was a marked decrease in the output during 1893. The maximum of production has been reached, however, and the upper peninsula mills that cut lumber and shingles are already drawing heavily on Canada for material, no less than 205,000,000 feet having been rafted across the lakes last season. The pine timber in the Saginaw region is already thinning out, and during the present season it will probably yield no more than 250,-000,000 feet, not enough to keep the mills on the Saginaw river busy. On the west shore of the lake, south of Manistee, the pine timber will soon be practically exhausted, and the supplies that have made business for the railroads are also decreasing rapidly. There is still a great deal of hemlock and hard wood timber standing, and this must take the place of the pine. As showing what a great industry Michigan has in its lumber an expert gives the following figures: Of the total product of the Northwest last year, 7,599,748,458 feet, Michigan produced 3,147,996,147 feet, or nearly one-half; and in shingles the state's product was 1,832,027,550 out of a total for the Northwest of 3,421,168,900. By degrees Carl became more and more indespensable to his imperial patron, and when the latter ascended the throne he kept his humble friend beside him, glad to have one at any rate who possessed intelligence without knavery and in whom he could place implicit trust, both as regards

It is to Carl that the sultan is indebted for his skill in carpentering and wood turning, and were his oriental majesty ever deprived of his throne by a Russian invasion, or, what is still more probable, by an insurrection on the part of the fanatical Sofas or ecclesiastical students who infest Constantinople, he will be able to earn a very decent livelihood as a

Not on the Program. Not long ago, Edmund Russell dawned upon a certain Western city, and the Blanks gave a large reception. Among the plans for the entertainment of the guests was a scene from "Macbeth," rendered by a young woman of local elocutionary fame. The head of the family was not inormed of this especial part of the program. At the proper moment the young woman personating Lady Macbeth appeared at the end of the drawing room, dressed in a trailing robe of white and bearing a light. She moved slowly forward, an expectant hush falling upon the assemblage. The host looked up, saw, and wholly mis-understood. He hesitated only a moment, then hastened forward with hospitable zeal: "Why, Miss Smith, good-evening. I'm very glad to see you. May I relieve you of your can-

How Tolstol Pablishes.

Count Tolstoi has repeated his publie declaration that he does not give any one the exclusive or even the preferential right of publishing his works and translating from them. "I offer it indiscriminately," he says, "to all those publishers who find the publication of my works or their translation desirable." This statement is called out by the fact that he often receives requests for an exclusive right of publication, and that certain foreign publishers ascribe to themselves this exceptional right and contest it with others.

The Little Girl Thought She Had Found

As the train from Kansas City came into the Union depot at Chicago, a fashionably dressed gentleman and lady stood just outside the gate, evidently waiting for a friend to come off the train. Between them, and holding the hand of each, stood a little girl not over 5 years old.

"Mamma, is brother coming this time?" she asked with the eagerness of a sudden inspiration.

The mother shook her head sadly, then glanced into her husband's eyes. In an instant more the child dropped the hands which she was holding and darted through the gate before her parents or the gateman could stop her. When the former reached her she had thrown her arms around the neck of a manly little fellow about a head taller than herself, and was sob-

"Oh, brother, did you come back? Mamma didn't 'spect you 'tall. It'll just 'sprise her.'

Meantime the little fellow struggled to free himself from her embrace and protested:

"Le' go! I ain't your brother. I don't know you an' I don' want to be hugged."

"Yes you be, brother. In Tootsey an' you do knows me," b. isted the little girl, and her small arms refused to be shaken from their grasp about his neck.

Through their tears her parents explained to the father and mother of the little boy that a few months ago they had lost a child closely resem-bling the boy whom "Tootsey" had mistaken for her brother, and had explained to her that "brother had gone away." As the children were forci-bly separated the grief of the little girl drew tears from all who crowded about the weeping group.

"Won't he never, never come back, mamma?" were the last words heard by the bystanders as the father carried her up the central stairway in his arms.

DID NOT WISH TO BE EMPEROR. Old William I Was Quite Content With the Throne of Prussia.

Rev. Dr. Bernard Rogge preached the sermon in the Versailles palace Jan. 18, 1871, when the German empire was proclaimed, and ever since he has been krown throughout Central Europe as the consecrator of Germany. In a lecture given by him in Vienna early in this month he told of a remarkable interview which he had with the king of Prussia three days before the great ceremony. King William requested him to make the sermon short and exclude from it as far as possible all references to the house of Hohenzollern and its head. "For I have not done it," said old William. "God in his providence accomplished it. I shall find it difficult to accustom myself to the new title of emperor. My own wish was that at my advanced age I might avoid the honor, although my son might be called to accept it; but matters have turned out in such a way that I can no longer do anything but take it."

When received on the same day by the crown prince, later Emperor Frederick, Rogge got a few more instructions as to the nature of his sermon. The crown prince pointed to the great hall where the ceremony was to be held and remarked:

"When I first saw the palace on the 19th of last September I said to myself: 'There is the place where the founding of the German empire will be proclaimed.""

Ten Big Cigars in Two Hours the Record

A smoking match was given recently by the Giftnudel smoking club in its rooms in Manteuffel street, Berlin. The prize was a solid silver cigar case and 200 cigars. The entrance fee was $1 and the conditions were that the contestants should smoke only the cigars provided at the expense of the club and should remain in plain view of the referee as long as they were competing for the prize, no contestant being allowed to take food, drink or medicine during the match. The prize was to be given to the contestant who smoked down to one-inch butts the largest number of cigars in two hours. There were seventeen entries. Herr Knopf, who smeked without pause from start to finish, was declared winner. He reduced ten large cigars to ashes in the allotted time, while his closest competitor smoked but seven and one-half. At the end of the first hour ten smokers retired from the match and left the room. None of them returned. Of the seven others three were pale and perspiring profusely when the referee called 'time." Knopf felt well and professed his willingness to begin at once another two-hour match, but his challenge found no takers. He says that he is ready to smoke against anybody in Berlin for 500 cigars a side, the length of the contest to be fixed by mutual consent between one and a half and five hours.

It Was His Wife's.

"I have read with much amuse ment," says a friend, "the accounts of various queer occurrences in some of our churches, and I want to tell you of an amusing thing I saw happen in one of the largest churches in Utica, N. Y. The min ster was preaching a sermon which drew forth the deep sympathy of his hearers and caused the tears to well up in his own eyes. He reached for his handkerchief and shook it out preparatory to wiping away the affecting tears, when a long, white, woman's hose took the form of the supposed handkerchief. Imagine the mirth of the congregation and the horror of the dignified speaker, whose handkerchief got mixed with his wife's stockings."

husband and wife, and neither knows that the other ever heard of such a thing as hocking a watch. I know that from the way they acted, and I was pretty much surprised one day when the woman brought in the pawnticket for her husband's watch. She didn't look as if anything unusua had happened, and I sized up the situation and gave her her own watch instead. That was what she wanted Next day the husband came in with the ticket for his wife's watch. I gave him his own and he never knew the difference. You see, they had hidden their tickets in the same place. They have brought the watches around promptly ever since, which they wouldn't have done by any manner of means if I hadn't had my wits about me. Now, one of those church pawnbrokers down in New York wouldn't have known enough to do that, and would have lost two good customers as well as made trouble in an estimable family. It takes brains to run my business.

FRAUDS IN WILLS. The Daring Trick of a Disinherited

Elder Son. "One of the most daring tricks ever came across," said a New York attorney, "was the case of a man who deliberately impersonated a lawyer's clerk and persuaded a very sick man to sign a will without reading it, and which disposed of his property in di-rect opposition to his wishes. It was a case of a family dispute and the old gentleman, who was quite wealthy, had decided to disinherit his eldest son and leave the property to a younger one. Being warned by his doctor that he had only a day or two more to live, he sent instructions to his attorney to draft the house! Husband his will and send it down promptly for signature. While the lawyer was preparing the document a representative of the eldest son arrived with a paper, which he said was the will prepared by the sick man's attor-The will was signed without hesitation and duly witnessed, and when two hours later the lawyer's clerk arrived with the genuine will he was not allowed to enter the house, being warned off the premises by the housekeeper. On his return to the office his employer saw at once that a fraud had been committed, and he hastened to the house to have it set right. In the meantime, however, the sick man had become unconscious, and died without being able to execute a will after his own wishes. The bogus will was upset, but the fraud could never be sufficiently proved to convict the man suspected of concocting it, and he inherited quite a large sum of the money as next of kin."

THE OYSTER GOT EVEN.

He Embraced the Duck's Bill and the Bird Died.

The meek and lowly oyster can sometimes become a revengeful as well as a dangerous antagonist, as an unwary duck found to his cost a day or so ago on the eastern shore of the Chesapeake. This careless duck, belonging to the tribe known as "fishermen," was swimming about in search of food off the shores near Claiborne when he espied an oystera nice, fat, juicy oyster he was-with shell widely parted, feeding, doubtless, on the simple and rather intangible diet upon which an oyster is supposed to feed.

The duck, true to his greedy instincts, dived for that supposed juicy morsel, and was about to swallow him whole, without salt or pepper even, when the angry passions of the oyster arose, and, snapping his shells together, caught the unsuspecting duck's bill in a vise-like embrace. The duck rose to the surface, shook his head, mumbled apologies through his tight shut mouth, but the valve's heart was hardened, and he held on. Soon the constant load pulling down his head and growing weightier and weightier began to tire the duck, and his neck arched lower and lower until finally it sank into the water and he was drowned.

A deckhand on the steamboat Tan-gier saw the duck floating with his head submerged and picked him up. The oyster was still clinging to his victim with a relentless, deadly grasp, and the tragedy that must have been enacted as described was revealed. But the duck and the slayer were brought to Baltimore on the Tangier Ann Arbor and proved quite a curiosity.

GILDERS IN AMERICA.

Circumstances in the Reign of George IV That Sent Master Workmen Here.

It is a tradition among the gilders of New York that they owe their peculiar skill to the redecoration of Windsor castle at the command of George IV. Every available gilder of London was busied for a long time in gilding the palace, and when the work was done many of them found that their places in the trade had been taken by apprentices. Unable to find work at home, many came to America, and some established themselves in New York. These men taught their art to Americans, and the gilders of this country are now among the best in the world. The trade languished for a time in the face of cheap processes and cheap materials, but the taste for first-rate gilding, whether it be picture frames, goods. For catalogue and price or furniture or walls, has never really The trade has been split up into

The fire department at Berlin has a fire engine, the carriage of which is constructed entirely out of papier mache.
