BACKED OUT.

SOME OF THE COUNCILMEN OBJECT TO BUYING A ROAD ROLLER.

Although it was ordered some weeks ago by a unanimous vote—Ald. Koch leads the opposition—two others join him in the move—likely to be other obstructions placed in the way—the council does some other business.

Meeting of the Council.

The regular meeting of the council was held last Monday night. All the members were present. The first matter to come up was a communication from the mayor appointing Arthur Crawford special policeman in the vicinity of the A. M. E. church. The rows that have taken place in that vicinity recently necessitated such a move. Following this was a lot of routine business relative to sidewalks, etc. The city clerk reported that but two bids for the city printing had been handed in. It developed later that Ald. Brown had two more bids in his pocket from the Courier and Argus. So far as can be learned the bids are all alike or practically so. No action has yet been taken upon them. The most interesting business of the evening was the report of the junketing committee and the discussion that arose upon its report. The committee reported in favor of the purchase of the Pitts road roller at $2,950 and the Austin store crusher at $650. The committee recommended that the board of public works enter into contract for these machines. Here the council ran up against a snag. Ald. Koch moved to postpone the matter. He said that the people of Ann Arbor were not ready for the additional expense, that it would take all the money the city had to buy the machines and then their would be no funds with which to operate them. Aids. Laubengayer and Coon supported Ald. Koch in the blocking process. The matter, however, finally went through with only three dissenting votes and the city will soon have a road roller and a stone crusher—unless some one devises some other scheme to stop the council. It is claimed there is talk that an injunction will be sworn out to stop proceedings.

The committee on lighting reported in favor of advertising for bids for lighting the city for five years. The report was amended so as to ask for bids of four sorts, as follows:

- 1st—96 lamps all night, 265 nights.
- 2nd—96 lamps all night, 365 nights.
- 3rd—96 lamps to 12:30, 265 nights.
- 4th—96 lamps to 12:30, 365 nights.

This was then unanimously adopted. The bond committee reported that the bond offered by the State Savings Bank was signed only by directors of the bank. The committee recommended that different bondsmen, or additional bondsmen be asked for. The report of the committee was adopted. The question of sprinkling the various parks was brought up in the report of the committee on parks. It was referred back to the committee for further consideration. The board of public works was authorized to cut the grass and weeds on Felch Park. The question of opening North State-st. across the Mich. Cent. railroad tracks was again called up. It developed that the land over which the street, if opened, would pass had been acquired by the railroad and that the only way to get at the matter would be to institute condemnation proceedings. As this will take some time, it was decided to have the board of public works at once repair the bridge across the tracks. One of the amusing things that came up during the evening was the resolution of Ald. Maynard that the city officials accept the challenge of the county officials to play a game of base ball. After considerable humorous discussion the resolution was adopted. It reads as follows:

WHEREAS, That inasmuch as some of the County officers have assumed or even intimated that they can or over could play ball. Therefore, be it Resolved, That this council do now challenge said county officers to a game of ball for blood and the supper, to be played on Monday the first day of July, A. D. 1895, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., and further that the honorable mayor be invited to act as umpire at said game.

An Appeal to the Churches.

The following letter has been addressed by Frances E. Willard to Christian ministers of all denominations:

Private letters which I have myself seen, from a number of American residents in Turkey, of unimpeachable character, have fully confirmed the worst reports of the recent massacre of Armenian Christians by the Turks and Kurds. This is only a climax of a systematic course of heart-sickening oppression and persecuting extending over many years.

It is only under the pressure of arousing Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Award.

ed public opinion that governments take action. After the Bulgarian massacres, four hundred public meetings of protest were held in England. I would therefore earnestly urge that every Christian minister devote one Sunday evening meeting to a consideration of the situation of the Armenian Christians in Turkey, and that the meeting pass resolutions of protest, similar in general tenor to those lately adopted by the Evangelical Alliance.

Ministers intending to preach on the subject, or anyone wishing to secure the passage of resolutions by any club or society, can be supplied with documents and data, free of charge, by addressing Mrs. Isable C. Burrows, 141 Franklin-st., Boston, Mass.

Let us "remember those in bonds as bound with them."

MAY RESORT TO LAW.

THE LEWIS HEIRS CLAIM A PART OF THE LEWIS COLLECTION.

The Lewis Art Collection, That is, the Bulk of it Has Arrived in the City—Several of the Most Valuable Pieces Did Not Come However—Several Pieces Valued at About $50,000 Claimed By the Lewis Heirs—The Exact Meaning of the Lewis' Will Making the Gift in Dispute—It May Lead to a Law Suit—The Gift Valued at $300,000.

Lewis Art Collection Here.

The Lewis Art Collection reached Ann Arbor last Thursday. It was brought on a special train that consisted of several carloads. The collection has been disposed of for the present by being stored in whatever available places could be spared for it about the University buildings. This collection is one of the most valuable gifts the University has ever received. It will, however be of little, or no use to the institution until a building suitable for its proper display can be erected. Where the means to erect a building suitable for this purpose will come from and when they will be forthcoming are questions it may take years to answer. It is hoped, however, that another Waterman may rise up to meet our pressing need. The collection that was brought here last week was not all of the art collection that the late Mr. Lewis had gathered at his home in Coldwater. A number of the most valuable pieces were left at Coldwater, one of the legatees of the estate refusing to let them go. He claims that those particular pieces, which consist of several valuable paintings, were not a part of the collection, and were not in Mr. Lewis' gallery proper, but were hung upon the walls in his home and were not included in his bequest. It is claimed on the other hand that the provisions in the will making the gift cover these particular pieces and that there can be no question as to the title to them being in the University. The matter will very likely be taken into the courts before a settlement can be reached.

Six Scholarships.

News has been received that Henry Phillips, Jr., of Philadelphia, has bequeathed to the University real estate in that city, the income from which shall be used to provide for six classical scholarships at the U. of M. The report comes through the Times-Herald of Chicago and is not definite as to whether Mr. Phillips is dead, or when the proceeds from the property will be available. Mr. Phillips was not an alumnus of the University. He stipulates that the scholarships shall be given to students who spend at least one-fourth of their time in the study of Greek and Latin. Mr. Phillips was secretary of the American Philosophical Society.

A rather peculiar call came to the fire department at about 11 p. m. Monday. Somebody had set fire to the dead part of the old oak standing at the corner of Liberty and Maynard-sts. The tree would have been killed but for the timely response of the department.

The Ann Arbor Organ Co. has decided to place some stock upon the market for the purpose of enlarging its capacity to turn out instruments. It is obliged to do this to keep up with the demand for Ann Arbor Organs. Here is a chance to make a good investment.

THE PIONEERS.

PAPER READ BY MRS. DEXTER STANNARD BEFORE THE PIONEERS SOCIETY.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen and Pioneers of Washtenaw County:

The history of Washtenaw County and its early settlers, claims our thoughts today. We put aside the cares and responsibilities of busy life and go back to those early days, when old Washtenaw was young. Some of the events of those times are amusing, and some are pathetic, but now, all are history.

Pleasant Washtenaw! with enphonic name, which we dwell upon with lingering fondness, with the beautiful river Huron which has brought to us, and to our children days of restful, and healthful, recreation, wonderful river, clear as crystal and as lovely as a dream. Bryants' song to the Green river may well apply to the Huron. Listen to a few lines:

Oh loveliest these the spring days come,
With blossoms, and birds, and wild bees hum;
The flowers of summer are fairest there,
And freshest the breath of the summer air;

And sweetest the golden autumn day,
In silence and sunshine glides away.

My childhood's early days were passed near the river Huron and to me it is the river of all the world, and the hills of Washtenaw have pleasant memories too. As a little girl on my bay pony, Dolly, I cantered over the hills and through shaded woods, and as an older girl, I galloped away on my father's cream saddle horse to Washtenaw's beautiful lakes. My earliest recollections are of sitting on the style and watching men chop down, and dig out pear trees, and level the road bed for the Michigan Central railroad, and putting down the strap rail, right through our pear and apple orchard, the pear trees were in the way and were taken up everyone of them. We were living in the house near the river, it was the first frame house built in Dexter. To this house my mother came as a bride, not sixteen years old. The wedding trip was most romantic, she was married in a large log house on the Mathews place in Webster now owned by Mr. Backus. The bride was seated upon a pillow, which is a cushion attached to a saddle. The groom in the saddle upon a large, white horse, his bride sitting upon the pillow behind him, and thus they journeyed and following an Indian trail fording the Huron river traveling three miles to the new home of the bride. The bridesmaid, who was the bride's sister Hannah was on the bridal trip, sitting behind Mr. Calvin Smith, who was the "best man" at the wedding. It was a happy and hopeful bridal party as ever started for a bridal trip in Pullman cars.

The first 4th July was a grand celebration and picnic on the bank of a pleasant lake in Webster. The neighborhood coach and four, which was a two wheeled cart and a tall, light yoke of oxen loaded with baskets of refreshments and the older women. The men, and younger women enjoyed a morning walk. It was a merry company by the lake that day. Patriotism was at its high, loyal and true to our country, was every soul. But the lake must be Christened, what shall the name be? 'Tis Independence day and then three cheers went up to heaven for "Independence Lake."

My grandmother, Bond was very fond of reading, they had four books, the Bible, "Baxter's Saint's Rest," "The Scotchish Chiefs" and "Thaddeus of Warsaw." The log-house was not quite finished, a blanket was hung up for the front door, a large brass kettle was on the front piazza, the hour was late, and grand-mother was enjoying the most interesting chapter of her book, when to her horror, some inquisitive wolves commenced playing with the brass kettle. We know animals like music, and the musical ring of the handle as it fell upon the kettle, seemed to please the

SUFFER HEAVY LOSS.
OHIO TOWN HAS A DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION.
Thieves Loot the City After Settling the Fires—Insurance About Half the Actual Loss—List of Firms that were Burned Out.
Greenville, Ohio, June 18.—As the result of a fire last night which started in a stable at the rear of the Winter block, the large wholesale store of Westfield Bros. is in ruins, as are the steam laundry, Daily Tribune and Courier newspaper offices, the Methodist Episcopal church, Deutsche Umschau, Dr. Matchett's office, the large livery stable of H. E. Davis on the north side of Third street and the home of Mrs. William Sullivan, adjoining. The fire was the work of incendiaries, and in the excitement thieves looted the town. Two ineffectual attempts were made to set fire to other buildings in different parts of the city.
Two persons are reported injured. They are Charles Dalrymple of the Mozart store, and Dell Daugherty, a member of the city fire department. The latter's injuries are in the head and are of a serious nature. The losses and insurance are about as follows: Mozart store, loss, $100,000; insurance, $15,000. Westfield, wholesale grocery, loss, $30,000; insurance, $20,000. Dr. Matchett, loss, $5,000; no insurance. Methodist Episcopal church, loss, $5,000; insurance, $2,500. H. E. Davis, livery stable, loss, $2,000; insurance unknown. Daily Tribune, loss, $4,000; insurance $3,500. Steam laundry, loss, $5,000; insurance, $3,500. Courier, loss, $2,000; insurance unknown. Mrs. William Sullivan, loss, $3,500; uninsured. Mrs. Emie Farrar, loss, $2,500; insured. The entire loss at a conservative estimate will reach $225,000.

WILL PUNISH TAYLOR.
South Dakota Officials Deny that He Will Be Leniently Dealt With.
Deadwood, S. D., June 18.—State Treasurer Phillips has received advices that W. W. Taylor, ex-treasurer of South Dakota, would be surrendered to the authorities at Pierre tomorrow. Governor Sheldon and Treasurer Phillips both declare that the stories so freely published in eastern papers within the last few days to the effect that a compromise had been effected with the defaulter and his bondsmen which practically allows Taylor to go free and retain the greater part of his stealings, is absolutely without foundation. Taylor will be compelled to make restitution in full and no action on his part or the part of his bondsmen to this end will mitigate the degree of his crime or lessen his punishment.
The governor and Treasurer Phillips are both authority for the statement that the state will not lose a cent that property of sufficient value to more than cover Taylor's defaultation has been turned over to the state by Taylor and his bondsmen, and that notwithstanding this the case against him will be pushed with as much severity as though it had been undertaken against a less prominent criminal.

DEDICATE A MONUMENT.
Event of Old Colonial Days Remembered at Louisburg.
Louisburg, C. B., June 18.—On March 24, 1745, 150 years ago, several ships sailed out of Boston harbor carrying the yeoman soldiery of the New England colonies to the French island of Cape Breton. After a siege of forty-seven days, noted for its hardship and suffering, Louisburg was surrendered by the French commander to the English, led by Sir William Pepperell of Maine.
Through the efforts of the Society of the Colonial Wars a handsome granite monument was dedicated this morning on the spot where Pepperell took the keys of the fort from Duchambon. Quite a large delegation from the different chapters of this society was present at the dedication. The shaft is a Tuscan column, surmounted by a cannon ball of victory, standing on a pedestal which are inscriptions which commemorate the event. The height of the monument is twenty-nine feet.

Cattle Have Hydrophobia.
Omaha, Neb., June 18.—Over forty head of cattle belonging to Fred Ernst, a farmer in the northeastern part of Adams county, have been shot. They all showed symptoms of hydrophobia. In January a cow was bitten by a mad dog. It died and was not buried, being hauled to some out-of-the-way place. The dogs in the neighborhood consumed the carcass. Nearly every dog in the district has, in consequence, been shot, and the community is alarmed over the serious condition and fear further loss of stock.

Responsible for Elbe Disaster.
London, June 18.—The board of trade, after examining thoroughly all the reports regarding the sinking of the North German Lloyd steamship Elbe on the morning of Jan. 31, which resulted in the loss of about 370 lives, has ruled that the mate of the Crathie, the British steamer which ran into and sunk the German steamship, was responsible for the disaster. Consequently the mate's certificate was suspended.

Bunker Hill Day.
Boston, Mass., June 18.—Bunker Hill day was celebrated on a larger scale than usual this morning. There was a grand street parade under the auspices of King Solomon's lodge of Free Masons, and in the evening there was a banquet, at which Gov. Greenhalge presided.

Governor Atkinson Improving.

President Goes to Gray Gables.
Washington, June 18.—President Cleveland, accompanied by Private Secretary Thurber, left Washington this morning for Gray Gables.

TAMMANY REORGANIZES.
Braves Discussing the Probable Outcome of a Special Meeting.
New York, June 18.—Tammany hall presented a scene of activity today, the braves having gathered from all parts of the city to discuss the probable results of the special meeting held this evening. This extraordinary activity is part of an attempt on the part of the organization to recover the prestige which it lost at the last election, when the Parkhurst reform wave carried everything before it. It is proposed to put into effect the plan of reorganization proposed by ex-Mayor Grant—the appointment of 100 prominent democrats, Tammany men, democrats of no organization, and even state democracy men. This committee will supervise the work of reorganization under a plan which contemplates "riddance of the one-man power." It is proposed to form an organization so liberal in its character that there will be no excuse left for the maintenance of any other democratic organization in the city. It is whispered, however, by those in a position to know that the reorganization scheme is only a bluff to influence public sentiment and that Dick Croker will return from England in the fall and take the reins as of yore.

HARLEM SHIP CANAL.
Formally Opened for Traffic Yesterday—Interesting Features.
New York, June 18.—Amid the booming of cannon from two of Uncle Sam's warships, the screeching of whistles from river craft, and the cheers of thousands of spectators a flotilla of nearly 200 vessels entered the Harlem ship canal and a new waterway was thrown open to commerce at noon today. It was a great day for Upper New York. The joining of the waters of the Hudson and East rivers was celebrated as no similar event has been celebrated since the Erie canal was opened in 1825. The weather was perfect. There were crowds of people on the bridges that cross the canal and at all points commanding a view of the unique marine display. In addition there was a land display which had many interesting features.

Condition of Foreign Crops.
Washington, June 18.—The condition of crops in foreign countries is attracting much attention and the reports thereon to be issued by the agricultural department within the next few days will be quite full. The main reports on the outlook for good crops in Great Britain are most flattering. In France the greater part of May was unusually cold, but rain has fallen and spring sowing is doing well and the wheat crops are estimated at 290,000,000 bushels. Average crops are expected in Germany, Austria-Hungary and Roumania, but Russia presents a very unsatisfactory condition of affairs. Good crops are expected in Italy, Belgium and Spain, but the outlook for Sweden and Norway is gloomy.

Heavy Slump in Wheat.
Chicago, June 17.—The slaughter of the bulls on the board of trade continued today and July wheat, which sold a few days ago at 82 3/4c, made a slump to 74 3/4c. The change of sentiment has been most radical and those who were buying it most confidently a few days ago at 82c and above seemed to be selling it just as confidently today below 74c. Crop advices are conflicting, but the crop boomers apparently have the advantage, although some dispatches reaffirm all the calamity which has been previously reported. July sold early at 74 3/4c, fell irregularly to 72 3/4c, reacted to 73 3/4c and closed at 73 3/4c.

Killed by His Pupil's Brother.
Nashville, Tenn., June 18.—David Burnett, a school teacher of O'Brien county, was shot and killed by Lee Chambers. The cause of the shooting was decidedly unclear. Burnett recently delivered a lecture to his pupils, in which he stated that they should love their teacher. Among those attending the school was a 15-year-old sister of Chambers, and she reported to her brother the nature of the lecture. Thereupon Chambers got out his revolver, and, finding Burnett, killed him. Miss Chambers is a remarkably pretty girl.

Several Men Injured.
New Orleans, La., June 18.—At 10 o'clock this morning a boiler exploded in the Union cotton press, corner of Terpsichore and South Peters streets. A number of men were injured, among them being Mr. Frankenburg, a son of one of the owners of the press.

Temperance Women Meet.
London, June 18.—The ninth annual meeting of the British W. C. T. U. opened in Queen's hall this morning. The principal feature of the session was the address of President Lady Henry Somerset. She paid a graceful tribute to the visitors from America.

Many Delegates at Omaha.
Omaha, Neb., June 18.—This morning at the Y. M. C. A. hall the twenty-seventh annual convention of the National Council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was opened. One hundred and fifty delegates are present.

MANY PIANO DEALERS

advertise most astounding things. It is nothing for them to sell pianos below cost (in their advertisements). They do the largest business at the smallest expense of any firm (in their advertisements). The pianos that they sell are the only ones that the judges at the World's Fair considered worth looking at (in their advertisements). Their pianos are the only ones that improve with use and never need tuning (in their advertisements). It is astonishing what wonderful pianos there are, and what wonderful firms sell them, if all they claim in their advertisements be true.

THERE IS NO MAGIC

Killed in the construction of the Clifford Piano. First-class material and workmanship, careful supervision, experience, intelligence and earnest endeavor are all that is necessary to produce a first-class piano. All of these are combined in the construction of the Clifford. The result is a source of pleasure to the manufacturers, is satisfactory to us as dealers, and has excited the most favorable comments among musicians. If you wish to know more of this piano, call and examine them. They speak better for themselves that we can for them.

BRIEF ITEMS ABOUT MICHIGAN PEOPLE AND THINGS.

Free Silver Men Organize a Secret Society to Push Their Interests in the State.—Lightning's Fatal Work at a Camp Meeting near Ravenna.

A Secret Free Silver Movement.

There has been organized at Grand Rapids a secret organization, the object of which is to promulgate the doctrine of free silver coinage. The supreme organization is made up of seven executive officers and an advisory board. The executive board is as follows: Sybrant Wesselinus, Geo. D. Boston and A. F. Schafer, of Grand Rapids; Jas. M. Turner, Lansing; Chas. B. Chase, St. Louis; and C. Waterbury and J. T. Mathews, Ithaca. Some of the members of the advisory board are: C. Sligh and ex-Congressman Richardson, Grand Rapids; Geo. P. Hummer, Holland; C. P. Black, Lansing; H. S. Pingree, Detroit; ex-Gov. Luze, Coldwater; S. O. Fisher, Bay City, and A. B. Webber, Ionia. The regular sessions of the subordinate bodies are to be secret, but open sessions will be held for debates, etc. The organization is known as the "Honest Dollar Club," and is for the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

Killed by Lightning at Camp Meeting. The Free Methodist camp meeting at Ravenna opened with a sad occurrence. During the afternoon rain began falling and the people took to the tents for shelter. Suddenly there was a flash, followed quickly by a deafening crash. It was the only lightning of the day, and it struck a tent, instantly killing Mrs. Burleson, of Wayland, but left no mark upon her. Her sister, Mrs. Hilliard, was seriously shocked, but will recover, and her son, aged 21, was badly burned about the hip. Sixteen others were badly shocked.

Shot and Killed an Indian. Geo. Love, a prominent farmer near Elk Rapids, shot and killed an Indian squaw named Solomon, aged 90 years. The woman's ponies had been bothering him for some time and he locked them up. The squaw came and demanded them, but Love told her to pay damages or leave them alone. She paid no attention to this. Love warned her to get out and shot her when she failed to obey. Love was arrested.

A Mad Mother's Awful Deed. Mrs. Herman Becker, aged 34, and two children, a boy and girl, aged 4 and 5, were found in a little back cellar at their home at St. Louis with bullet holes in their heads. It is claimed that Mrs. Becker was not of sound mind, and there has been trouble in the family of late. She left a letter, saying that she was sick and so were the children, and they must die.

Is it a Murder? Mrs. Benjamin Henderson, aged 60, of Highland Station, was found in a dying condition by her husband on his return home from work. There were marks on her throat as if made by the fingers of a strong man. She was seen by neighbors several times during the day. A trampish looking man who was seen leaving the house by the back way is suspected.

Woman's Press Association. The annual meeting of the Michigan Women's Press association was held at Lansing, with the president, Miss Emma E. Bower, of the Ann Arbor Democrat, in the chair. Children and Matches. Three small children of a farmer named Craig, living two miles north of Greenville, went to the barn to play and build a bonfire. The youngest child, 5 years old, was burned to death. The other two were badly injured while attempting to rescue the other. The barn was destroyed.

An Old Pioneer Burned to Death. Lewis Winters, an old pioneer of Newton, Calhoun county, was burned to death. The supposition is that children set fire to a pile of brush near the fence, and the old man, in fighting the fire to save the fence, became exhausted, fell over into the fire and was burned to death.

WE WANT TO TELL YOU

Why Your Back is Lame—Why it Aches and Pains, and How to Cure it.

Do you know what it is to have a back that is never free from aches and constant pain, a lame back, a sore back, an aching back, in fact, a back that makes your life a burden? What have you done for it? And does it still keep you from the happiness that perfect health brings to all? We know full well if such is your condition a cure for it will be a blessing you no doubt desire. Plasters won't do it, but may assist in bringing strength. Liniment won't do it; for, while it may give temporary relief, it does not reach the cause. The cause, there's the point; there's where to make the attack. Most backaches come from disordered kidneys, therefore you must correct their action if you would be cured. Read the following from D. D. Cook, whose address is No. 18 Michigan Street, Grand Rapids. He says:—

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and wish to say it is a truly great medicine. Thirty years ago I had nervous prostration while in the army, where I served for over four years. I think it was during this service that the seeds were sown which have caused all my trouble. Severe bilious attacks bothered me, and at such times my kidneys were worse. It is almost impossible to describe the pain which so often lamed me. I have been so lame that to stand up after I had been sitting down required a great exertion. Walking was at times an impossibility, even at night I did not rest, being forced to get up during the night. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and wondered if they could make an almost lame man well. I got some, and soon after taking them began to feel their good effects. I used them for some time, my lameness all left me and I have not felt it since. Doan's Kidney Pills have done me an inestimable amount of good." For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

NOW THEY FOOLED CHARLEY.

Louisville Friends Play a Practical Joke That Is Not Bad.

Friends of Charley Leffert, a popular young railroad clerk, are telling a good story at his expense, says the Louisville Commercial. They say that last Sunday night he took a young lady to church. When they entered the church a few drops of rain had fallen. Charley had no umbrella. When church was over several wags in the neighborhood stood in front of the church door with their umbrellas raised. This gave the congregation who were about to leave the church the impression that it was raining. The people in church were afraid to venture out, although the stars were shining brightly. Of course, Charley and his girl were among those who anxiously waited for the rain to cease, but the wags hung about the door with their raised umbrellas, and no one ventured out. Then to do the proper thing Charley gave a little boy a dime and chased him to the nearest drug store to telephone for a coupe. The coupe arrived in due time and Charley pushed his way through the crowd. When he reached the pavement and looked up the stars shone bright and beautiful, but it was too late to dismiss the coupe. His ride of three squares on a beautiful night cost him $1, and now some of the church people say Charley was putting on style.

"Where Are We At?"

This question perplexes the whole business world. People interested in the Northwest can find where they are at by consulting an Atlas containing fine up to date maps and much valuable reference and descriptive matter, sent to any address for 15 cents in stamps by F. Leaps of a Mountain Sheep.

No; the mountain sheep does not leap from great heights, and land either upon his horns or his feet. He knows the strength of his material too well to try it. His horns and skull might successfully withstand the shock, but the weight of his body would break his spinal column in two or three places, to say the least of it. It is true that when hard pressed a herd will sometimes plunge down a terribly steep incline, sliding and bounding from point to point, until they plough into the "slide-rock" below; but as to leaping over a sheer precipice, I never saw any one who even claimed to have ever witnessed such a thing, says an authority. The old rams often fight by butting each other terrifically, and often splinter, or sometimes break off the ends of their horns in that way.

Too Many Pictures.

Are the works of the best modern literary artists improved by illustration? Can an artist with his brush or pen add anything to the well developed characterization of our successful novelist? In other words, is it not the literary art of a master amply sufficient to portray all in his book that is charming or thrilling or pathetic or humorous? I believe that it is, and also that it is a literary crime for the average illustration to inject into the pages of a great work of fiction, of whose creative forces he can know no more than the reader. Some of this sort of illustration is amazingly clever, but most of it is just the opposite. To distinguish the pictorial opportunity in a book manuscript is a work requiring rare distinction, and too many of our illustrators, with the approval of the publishers, take their cue for a picture from such inadequate and puerile suggestion as that conveyed in the familiar climax of love stories: "And she fell on his breast and wept tears of unutterable joy."—Slizey Falls field, in Lippincott's.

Tornado, Cyclone and Wind-Storm Insurance.

Anybody is likely to have his house or barn destroyed by a cyclone, wind-storm or tornado. It cost but a mere pittance to be insured against danger from these sources. Call upon W. K. Childs, in the County Court House for rates. 20 cents on a thousand dollars per year is certainly low enough. You can afford to pay this merely for the satisfaction of being insured. 9017 olves for they played their brass-band most of the night. But my grandfather did not enjoy the serenade, as much as some people enjoy midnight music, under different circumstances, and she waited anxiously for the musicians to come to the tune which begins: "Oh, we're going home," but they finally went, as day-light began to dawn on the eastern sky. Mrs. Luther Boyson was my mother's cousin and there were widow Bond with two daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Mathews were hospitality made at home when they first came to Michigan in the year 1827, arriving the eighth day of May. In August they moved into their own home surrounded by all the novelties and inconveniences of a new country, baking bread out of doors, a bake kettle with sudden storms on the fire, etc. Mrs. Boyden gave my mother an old hen and some eggs to set under her. We, of these times of plenty cannot know how rich the Bond girls felt with this addition to the family flock. When the hen hatched her chickens the girls went to bring them home, when half way they were stopped by a large black snake lying across their path. He raised his head but did not give the right of way, Millicent struck with a stick. He turned and gave fight. Like a true Yankee girl she marched into the combat, sticks were spoken again and again, the dust flew, and warfare raged until at last the girl of 15 had killed a snake which measured 9 feet long, and Miss Millicent was complimented for her courage killing such a monster.

The long front piazza of my father's house was the church and Town Hall for the community. There my father preached many an excellent sermon, as he stood on the front steps, and the beautiful grassy lawn sloping away to the river bank was a fine Auditorium, well ventilated, and healthy. There the 4th of July oration, could well boast "Our Glorious Country," "The Land of the Free, and Home of the Brave," here, were both a beautiful, free country, and brave women and men. My father, and good father, besides being judge of the court, was editor and proprietor of "The Emigrant" our first paper. It was printed in Ann Arbor. My father was also post-master and my mother was "sworn in" as deputy post-master in 1823, a wing, of one room of her house being set apart for the post-office. Once a week my father rode to Ann Arbor, on his fine white horse, with saddle bags strapped to the saddle behind him, filled with letters, to edit and print his paper and bring back the mail for our neighbors, far and near. From that printing office several general awkward boys were started on life's journey to become notable men, the Rev. Louis Noble was one of them.

Sometimes it was necessary for my father to remain in Ann Arbor over night, to attend court. At such times my mother would accompany him in the morning and return in the afternoon carrying the mail to the post-office. She was a spirited horse, but was a fine horseman, and a fearless rider. The court was in session and my mother was to return alone, but was detained by a severe storm. As my father placed his young wife in the saddle, he patted the nervous horse and bade him be careful saying, "you will soon be home." Away the horse and rider like an arrow from the bow-string following the Indian trail over the hills, and through the dark woods. In a deep ravine the horse sprang aside, snorting with fear, as the very eyes and hot breath of a hungry panther were upon the rider's face. It was a wild race between the trembling, terror stricken horse, and the fiery eyed, panther. With the sight of the lights in the windows at home the panther gave up the chase, and the horse foam covered, and tired, was led away to the stable, and the rider, bravely carried herself as the fastest mail carrier west of Detroit.

The Indians had a camp near the junction of Mill Creek and the Huron river, and were very friendly bringing cranberries and venison to exchange for potatoes, pork and bread, and for the children they brought little boxes made of birch bark worked with porcupine quills, brightly colored, and the boxes were filled with new maple sugar.

The leather saddle bags, in which my father carried the mail back and forth between Dexter and Ann Arbor sixty-eight years ago, are now safely cared for, and my mother says they are to be given to the Washtenaw Historical Society. My mother often talks of those friends and old times. She writes:

"Tell them I am almost home, and that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed to us through Christ Jesus."

On the gold spectacle case, which my grandfather in Boston used always to carry was engraved these words, "Generation follows generation, as wave follows wave." I feel the force of this as I look at these before me, who can say with my dear mother, "I am almost home."

TO SPARE HIS DOG.

Being a Brief Account of Why Mr. Goslington Took Up German. "It will by no means do to assume," said Mr. Goslington, "that because dumb creatures do not respond promptly to our kindness they are insensible to it. This truth was brought home strikingly to me once in the case of a dog I once owned. That this dog was not impervious to gentle treatment was clearly shown by the fact that when you patted it on the head it would wag its tail; thereby showing that it not only understood the kind treatment but that it was pleased with it all through. But I observed that when I spoke to the dog when it was not looking at me, it paid no attention. This was surprising, and at first rather disturbing, but the dog seemed in other respects so kindly that I did nothing about it. "One day when a German friend of mine was visiting me, and when I had called the dog with the usual result, I asked my friend to call him to see if he would mind him any better. He did call, and naturally enough, being a German, he called in German. To our great surprise the dog turned and came joyously bounding toward us. The simple fact was that the dog understood the universal kindness of touch and eye, but the only spoken language he knew was German, from which country, as I subsequently learned, he had been imported only about ten days before I bought him. "The only question now was whether I should teach the dog English or whether I should learn German. I thought it would be easier for me to learn a new language than for the dog, and that is how I came to take up the study of German." - New York Sun.

W. G. Skinner is one of the best known men in Wakefield, Mass. He is a war veteran and everybody's friend. He says: "I had rheumatism and was in poor health a long time. Indications pointed towards the accumulation of impurities in the blood and germs of disease. I was constipated and had no appetite. I evidently needed a good blood purifier and decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It made a change all through my system, gave me an appetite and worked effectively on my blood. I am now perfectly well, my blood has been put in good order, thanks to Hood's." W. G. SKINNER.

By special request the Rev. Gibson preached a sermon for the Maccabees in the M. E. church Sunday evening. It was on the occasion of the 14th anniversary of the establishment of the order. The church was crowded with an appreciative audience. The Rev. gentleman handled his text in a masterly manner and convinced his audience first of the necessity of providing for his family and second that for the order of Maccabees was one of the cheapest and safest investment. His arguments were based on Scripture and decidedly convincing. After the general collection was taken up, the finance keeper of the Maccabees took up a special collection amongst the members of the order and realized a handsome sum which was presented to the minister. During the past year two brothers of the Maccabees "Shuffled off this Mortal Coil," and their families realized one of them $1000 and the other $2000 and all they had paid into the order was $800.

The prime of life in a man of regular habits and sound constitution is from 30 to 55 years of age; of a woman from 24 or 25 to about 40 years of age.

In 1630 no gentleman, either in England, France or Germany, thought for a moment of going abroad without his cloak, even in hottest days of summer.

About 1641 the apron was an indispensable part of every lady's wear. It was made of all sorts of costly materials, and was generally bordered with fine lace.

The widow's cap is as old as the days of Julius Caesar. An edict of Tiberius commanded all widows to wear the cap under penalty of a heavy fine and imprisonment.

Donizetti wrote sixty operas; of these comparatively few are well known, but their melodious character is likely for a long time to preserve them their great popularity.

Cambrie was first introduced into England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The first piece imported was presented to the virgin queen to make a ruff for her neck.

STUB ENDS OF THOUGHT.

A young man should fight on the right side, regardless of the size of the army.

The characteristic of genius is not to be faultless, but to have qualities enough to cause faults to be forgiven.

Some men's affection for their children is similar to the feeling they have in raising an unusually large cabbage.

Apparently the heads of some people were given them merely as convenient bumps upon which to do up their hair.

Nearly every man who attends a theatrical performance imagines that he attracts the attention of the leading lady.

The world will do one of two things—give a man an opportunity to earn a living, or, failing in that, give him a living.

There are not many men who will steal openly, but nearly every man will take advantage of another man's carelessness.

Some girls will dance all night with corns on their feet and say it's too lovely, but will groan like a soreheaded bear if their mother asks them to wash the dishes.

Somehow a man feels much worse the day after he has lost an hour's sleep on account of the baby than he does the day after he has lost five hours' sleep at the club.

Great writers, like great inventors, always find something else than what they are looking for. They are like Columbus, who thought he had found the Indies when he discovered America.

LIFE'S LITTLE IRONIES.

The Indians will very soon be, on the average, the richest people in the country. Some tribes of them are now worth several thousands per head.

LITTLE THINGS.

France is the greatest wheat-growing country in Europe, not excepting even Russia.

"Crocodile tears" are alluded to by several Latin and Greek authors, it being a superstition among the ancients that the crocodile after killing a man ate all his body but his head, and shed tears over that before eating it also.

Sir Robert Ball, the astronomer royal for Ireland, is said to believe that the time is approaching when posterity will be able to construct machinery that will be operated by means of glasses, with heat obtained by the direct action of the sun's rays.

The love of display, apart from the art of self-adornment, is nothing but a survival of the patriarchal days, when the women were compelled to make their dress or their ornaments an exponent of the wealth of the man whose private property they were.

A Novelty in Bicycles.

A novelty in bicycles went up Broadway last week, says the New York Sun. A young colored man rode it and showed off its fine points in a way that attracted a great deal of attention. Instead of being stationary the handle bar could be moved backward and forward. Every time the rider pulled the bar back the bicycle shot forward in a way that showed that it had some sort of a rowing machine attachment which worked in conjunction with the pedals. There were the ordinary pedals on the bicycle, and the rider used these the greater part of the time, but every now and then when the rider got in a ticklish position among the trucks, cable cars and other vehicles he would give the handle bar a yank backward and the wheel would dart ahead.

Ratio of Sickness.

The ratio of sickness rises and falls regularly with death rate in all countries, as shown by Dr. Farr and Mr. Edmonds at the London congress of 1860, when the following rule was established: Of 1,000 persons, aged 30, it is probable 10 will die in the year, in which case there will be 20 of that age sick throughout the year, and 10 invalids. Of 1,000 persons, aged 75, it is probable that 100 will die in the year, in which case the sick and invalids of that age will be 300 throughout the year. For every 100 deaths let there be hospital beds for 200 sick, and infirmaries for 100 invalids.

The Best Signal-Light System.

The best night signal lights are those invented by Lieut. Very, of our navy, and named, after him, Very's signals. They consist of a white, a red, and a green star, each fired into the air from a pistol, so that by firing one, two, or three of them in quick succession, and in different orders, with a pause between the groups, different letters or signal numbers can be made until a sentence is complete. They can be easily read from vessels twelve miles away. —St. Nicholas.

An Unusual Proceeding.

At a colored church in New Providence, Ga., there was an unusual proceeding on a recent Sabbath. Somebody it was asserted, had picked the pocket of the preacher's wife, and the congregation had to submit to a close search. The lady's purse was undiscovered.

JAMES NALL & CO.

Their Woodward Ave. Establishment and Stock.

It is needless to offer any introductory for James Nall & Company, for their firm has been identified with the leading furniture houses of Detroit for many years, being established in 1851 and incorporated in 1874.

JAMES NALL

In this firm James Nall has associated with him two of his sons, Edwin B. and Louis A. Nall, and all are deeply interested in the management and prosperity of their establishment, which is located at 256 Woodward avenue, and occupies four floors, all of which are of easy access by way of elevators.

They are the representatives for Detroit of several of the leading manufacturing plants of the United States in sideboards, buffets, tables, cabinet novelties and bedroom furniture. For these they are recognized headquarters, controlling and having the exclusive sale of the choice things and special designs made exclusively for them.

They extend a cordial invitation to have you call and see a brand new stock, direct from the leading factories of our land. Four floors filled with the choicest novelties of the leading factories, and all now under one roof. They will be pleased to have you call and look at all the new things, just opened, whether you wish to purchase or not.

They are making a specialty of their sideboards, which are purchased in car-load lots directly from the leading manufacturers, thus enabling them to sell at a very reasonable price.

The second floor is tastefully arranged with cabinet novelties, book cases, desks and dining-room furniture, upholstered chairs, sofas, leather couches and lounges.

On the third and fourth floors will be found all the latest styles of bedroom suits, including white enameled, iron and brass bedsteads and dressing tables.

This firm are agents for the best patent extension dining tables on the market, which indeed are very much superior to the old style. In their patent table there is no storing away of leaves and no trouble whatever in drawing the table out. The leaves are always in place and the arrangement is very simple. The tables are very massive, being made of oak and highly polished, and would, indeed, be a handsome acquisition to any dining-room.

In connection with their well-established furniture business, Mr. James Nall will continue the sale of his real estate, with headquarters at the office of their store.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

OHIO PROHIBITIONISTS.

The State Convention Presided Over by Rev. H. H. H. G. Moore.

The Prohibition state convention of Ohio, with 700 delegates was held at Springfield. The temporary organization was made with the Rev. Henrietta G. Moore, of Springfield, as chairman. She is probably the first woman to be chairman of a state political convention in the United States. She spoke for nearly an hour, and said the mission of the Prohibition party is to secure the offices so as to overthrow the liquor traffic, enfranchise women, secure government control of all means of transportation and communication, to silence all monopolies, to establish a financial system that will issue money to the people in sufficient quantity for all their needs, remonetize silver and make all money legal for all purposes. Among the nominations made are: U. S. senator, R. S. Thompson, of Springfield; governor, Seth H. Ellis, of Springfield, Warren county; lieutenant-governor, J. W. Shurtz of Mansfield; attorney-general, W. C. Bates, of Columbus, and supreme court judge, John T. Moore, of Jackson county.

THE SULTAN BOWS DOWN.

Accedes to the Demands of the Powers Regarding Armenia.

Constantinople: The sultan, learning that the British cabinet had met to consider Turkey's reply to the plan of reform in the government of Armenia, submitted by Great Britain, France and Russia, telegraphed to Rustem Pasha, the Turkish ambassador in London, instructing him to ask the British foreign minister to postpone a decision in the matter. The earl acceded to the request. REVIEW OF TRADE.

Dun's says: It is no longer a question whether business improves. Not for a long time have reports from all parts of the country been so uniformly favorable. The daily average of bank clearings in June is 24.8 per cent larger than last year, though 11.4 per cent less than in 1892. The most potent influence has been the receipt of more favorable advices regarding growing crops. Labor troubles are getting out of the way, wages in many establishments are rising, and with the iron industry just now leading, there is general improvement in manufactures. The monetary condition also helps. The time draws near when, with good crops exports will bring gold hither, and though foreign operations in stocks and bonds have been insignificant this week the effect of previous transactions has not been exhausted. The diminished receipts of money from the interior indicate better business, especially at the west, and the volume of commercial loads steadily rises and is now fair for this season even in a good year.

The federal jury at Duluth in the $1,250,000 damage suit of Alfred Merritt vs. John D. Rockefeller, the Standard oil king, returned a verdict of $940,000 against Rockefeller. Merritt alleged that Rockefeller and his agents defrauded him to the extent of $1,250,000 in a Mesa mine deal.

The common council of Jackson decided to call a special election on July 8 to vote on the proposition to bond the city for $50,000 to provide additional fire protection for large manufacturing in the suburbs.

Louis Daves, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids, was found dying in an alley in that city minus his pension money which he had received that day. It is thought he was drugged and robbed.

Mrs. Cousins sustained probable fatal internal injuries, and a triple fracture of her arm. Mr. Cousins was also badly injured internally, and his recovery is doubtful. They are each nearly 70 years old.

When Will Davidson, clerk in the county treasurer's office at Bay City lighted the gas in the vault, an explosion followed. One of the windows was blown out. Davidson was burned about the head and hands, and Deputy D. Hawkins lost his hair and mustache, besides being burned on the face and hands. Register of Deeds Lew Andrews was burned on the hand. The papers in the vault were scorched. A leaking gas jet caused the trouble.

Fred Plate, a colored man from Battle Creek, made a balloon ascension at Marcellus. He hung on the bar when the balloon rose, but after it had gone to a little height the gas began to escape. He could not use the parachute, as the distance was not great enough for it to spread before reaching a clump of trees. He caught hold of a limb, but it broke with his weight and he fell some distance to the ground. He was terribly injured and died two hours later.

Fire started in the stock barn of F. E. Tallmadge, the well-known horseman of Saginaw, and spread with great rapidity. There were 12 horses in the stalls, of which eight were rescued. The four burned were the stallion Panama, valued at $5,000, having a record of 2:21 1/2; Punch, a trotting gelding, worth $450; Standard, brood mare, $400, and a trotting gelding for which Mr. Tallmadge had refused $250 during the day. A lady in this city watches the reports of the health of Queen Victoria with great interest. She is a native of England, was born the same day the English sovereign was, and has fully made up her mind that death will come to herself at the same time the Queen dies. Both are now 77 years of age.

Our popular young lawyer, James Waters, did a very clever act on Sunday. Having been successful at court he decided to take immediate possession, but to do it in a quiet way. A few of his immediate friends were led into the secret and when the Sunday morning services at the church in Norvell were over, the organist began playing a march and the piucky James and Miss Cora Halladay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Halladay marched up the aisle arm in arm. The minister tied the knot in a few words as possible and Mr. and Mrs. A. James Waters left the church for the bride's home south of town, where a dinner was served to invited guests. Monday morning the happy pair took the train for Detroit. Of course they will reside in Manchester.

CHELSEA HERALD. Died, at his home on west Middle-st., Sunday, June 9th, 1895, Mr. Joseph Beach, aged about 64 years. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the house, Rev. C. L. Adams officiating.

Philip Kensch has a hand saw that money cannot buy. Twenty-nine years ago Mr. Kensch helped to build the brick house which B. Hawley recently vacated on railroad street, and while at work there lost his saw, but supposed someone had taken it. Last week when the Glasier Stove Company had the building demolished to make room for their factory, the workmen found the saw in the cornish and returned it to Mr. Kensch.

CHELSEA STANDARD. A very charming wedding was solemnized Tuesday, June 11, 1895, at 9 a. m., in St. Mary's church, when Mr. Anthony Neckel and Miss Margaret Kensch, both respectable young people of Chelsea, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

Mr. Webster is a member of the K. O. T. M. band and went with the Macabees to Jackson on the excursion Tuesday. The band was just starting out from the Michigan Central depot to the fair grounds when a horse driven by a woman became unmanageable and ran through the band, the horse striking Mr. Webster several times. He was carried into a hotel and a physician called. On examination no bones were broken, but his back was found to be badly injured and he was considerably bruised otherwise. He was brought to Chelsea on the special train in the evening, and is now resting quietly at his home.

ASLEEP AS SHE WALKS. An Unusually Pronounced Case of Somnambulism in Denver.

Anna Rossman, a beautiful woman about 22 years old, was found walking the streets of Denver in a somnambulist condition on a recent afternoon, says the Rocky Mountain News. An Italian fruit vender noticed the strange conduct of the young lady near the corner of 15th and Arapahoe streets. She walked into the drug store at the mining exchange, the police were notified and the patient was taken to her home. The case is a very peculiar one, and has before been brought to the attention of the police department during the past two months. On account of the family, all mention of the matter has, until this time, been suppressed. It is evident, however, that the somnambulist tendencies of the unfortunate woman have become chronic and the peculiar features of the attack are attracting the attention of physicians. Miss Rossman formerly lived in Pueblo. There she attracted attention by her strange performances, walking about the streets apparently awake, but really asleep and totally unconscious of where she was going. Removing to Denver, the same conduct was continued, and the family then went to Cheyenne. They again came to this city and settled at the place where they now reside. It is claimed by the friends of the afflicted woman that she is possessed of supernatural powers, is gifted with second sight, and that other strange phenomena are within her control. In these spells she would attract but little attention were it not for the fact that she is utterly oblivious of passing objects and walks before carriages, street cars and other vehicles with recklessness. Otherwise her appearance is that of a person in possession of her normal senses. A little over a month ago she was found at the union depot, and Yardmaster Pierce discovered that she was not aware of where she was. A carriage was called, she was taken to the police station, and afterward to her home. Again on the 7th of March she was found in a similar condition at the Glenarm hotel. One day when Dr. Johnson, the police surgeon, was in a restaurant, Miss Rossman walked in and the waiter thought that she was intoxicated. Grasping the situation, Dr. Johnson left his meal, took the patient's arm, and quietly walked with her to her home, Miss Rossman being all the while utterly oblivious of the notice she was attracting from bystanders. The young lady had come from Cheyenne just before her latest sleep-walking experience, and walked from the depot to the place where it was found that she was still asleep. No information could be gained as to what she had been doing at Cheyenne or whether she had made that trip in a somnambulist state. When the ambulance came to the fainting exchange Miss Rossman was taken quietly to the conveyance and realized nothing of the situation until her home was reached. She then awakened out of the deep sleep, but gave no particulars as to her sudden visit north. She is a beautiful blond, has the sympathy of all who know her in the unusual affliction which has befallen a woman who is said to be possessed of a bright mind. When these fits have passed away she knows nothing of what has transpired.

If all wives and mothers could fully realize how apt each one is at all times to be bereft of the protector and support of themselves and their children they would be more fully able to appreciate the real benefits of a life insurance policy. As an investment it is as safe and profitable as a savings bank while in case of accident or fatal illness the return is much larger. Persuade your husband to lay by something in a life insurance policy and be protected in case of misfortune which sickness or accident may bring. A policy in the old reliable New York Life Insurance Company is unequalled for protection and investment.

The Sybarites. In the south of Italy there was once a flourishing Greek colony called Sybaris. The town was well situated for commerce, the surrounding country was very fertile, the climate was the finest in the world, and for some centuries the Sybarites were industrious and enterprising, carrying on a profitable trade with other countries and reaping up immense wealth. But too much good fortune finally proved their ruin. Little by little they lost their habits of labor and thrift, and instead gave themselves up to pleasure. Finally leaving all kinds of necessary work to their slaves, they laid aside the cares of life, and spent their days in eating and drinking, in dancing and in listening to fine music, or in attending the circus and watching the feats of acrobats or performing animals.

Rough on His Feelings. Tit-Bits: "No," said the man who was shot in the head by his friend while they were out shooting, lost the greater part of an ear and was scratched considerably, "I don't mind the wounds so much, but it breaks my heart to have my head mistaken by my most intimate friend for a rabbit."

ADDRESSES TO WOMEN.

By Dr. Hartman, President of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, Ohio.

In a lecture to women recently Dr. Hartman concluded his remarks, in substance, as follows: No one better knows than Dr. Hartman how much the women suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex. No one knows better than he does how many of them suffer with such diseases. Patiently, hopefully, wearily, and often silently, they eke out a miserable existence year after year. No martyr in poetry or heroine in romance makes a more touching appeal to the human sympathy than the woman burdened with the cares of a family, trying to carry the extra load of some tormenting and ever-present female disease.

Dr. Hartman's sympathy for such is undoubtedly and his willingness to help them limited only to his power. To all such he would say: Write him, giving him a careful description of your symptoms, and he will promptly advise you what to do, and to correspond with you until you are well. He will direct every detail of the treatment by letter without charge. The medicines he prescribes you will be able to get at the nearest drug-store.

No woman should neglect this opportunity for relief. Every married woman should have a copy of the Woman's Hand Book and Guide to Health. Sent free to any address by The Peru-nu Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio.

BUST OF SHAKESPEARE. The Interesting History of the Davenport Head of the Poet.

When Lincoln's Inn Fields was still a rural suburb, where aristocratic and wealthy people lived, says the St. James Budget, there stood on the southern side, or "on the back side of Portugal Row," close by an old inn called the Grange, a famous tennis court, together with one of those great and stately "inns of court" from which the name of that locality was obtained. Early in the year 1660, or late in 1659, Sir William Davenport obtained possession of the tennis court—then called Gibson's—converted it into a handsome and roomy theater, which a contemporary, Pepys, called the "the finest playhouse that ever was in England." Over its two chief entrances recesses were made to accommodate busts, and these, apparently, were those of the manager's godfather, and his predecessor as poet laureate, Ben Jonson. At that time many of Shakespeare's younger friends were still alive, and so were old actors who had been the poet's fellow players, and so was Shakespeare's youngest daughter, and his granddaughter, and old playgoers who had seen the poet play. To all of these Shakespeare's bust would be attractive, and many of them doubtless often paused on their way past, into or out of the theater to look up at it. Presently came the reign of opera in the Italian style and comedies in the French style, and Shakespeare was again neglected. The men who remembered the mighty poet were becoming very few, the stories that were told of him were being fast forgotten, and the busts over the theaters were no longer the objects of interest they had been. In 1683 Sir William Davenport died. Sir William had looked his last upon the beloved bust above the theater door, and after his death he gradually grew less and less of Shakespeare and his works and more of dancing and singing and coarse buffoonery. If, then, Shakespeare's plays were contemptuously neglected, what wonder is it to find his personal relics equally disregarded? When in 1714 the Duke's theater ceased to be a playhouse and became a barrack, the busts over the entrance remained. They were portraits of men unknown; and when (probably about that time) the entrances were bricked up, they were lost to sight altogether. When the building was deserted by the military it became an auction-room and warehouse, and afterward, in 1737, Messrs. Copeland and Spode converted it into a pottery warehouse. In 1845 the old building was removed for the erection of the College of Surgeons, and in 1848, when its last remains were also removed, the long-forgotten terra cotta busts once more saw daylight. Before their real value and importance were discovered the workmen had thrown down the bust of Jonson and utterly destroyed it. From this fate the Shakespearean bust was preserved by Mr. Clift, whose daughter afterward became the wife of the late Sir Richard Owen, to whom it was bequeathed, and from whom, thanks to the kindness of his son, Rev. Mr. Owen of Richmond, and Sir William Flower, it has now become the most valuable of the many valuable Shakespearean relics in the library of Stratford-on-Avon. There we may hope its continued existence will never again be endangered by that ignorance and careless indifference through which we had so narrow an escape of losing it altogether.

"I am an old soldier of the Rebellion. A year ago I was in bed all winter with chronic rheumatism. Three doctors failed to give me relief. Two bottles of Burdock Bitters put me on my feet. It is worth its weight in gold." W. P. Knapp, Litchfield, Hillsdale, Co., Mich.

DANGER FROM LIGHTNING.

Is it Increased or Diminished by the Presence of Many Telegraph Wires?

There is a somewhat widespread impression that the use of so much wire for telephone and other electrical purposes in cities and towns largely increases the danger of lightning strokes. The action is based upon the concentration within certain limits of a great quantity of conducting material, which, it is assumed, attracts the electricity, and thereby increases the danger of it. While it is true that the increase of conducting material increases the attraction, it is not true that it increases the danger. As a matter of fact, it decreases the danger, for the more surface electricity has over which to spread, the more readily and quickly it is carried to the earth. A house with a metal roof is not often struck by lightning, for while the metal may attract the electricity, it also gives it room to spread out, and its force is thus dissipated. This fact was demonstrated by Franklin with his kite long ago, and lightning rods are put on buildings to give storm clouds a means of discharging their electricity into the earth. This discharge takes place without the report that we call thunder, for electricity makes no noise unless it meets some resisting medium. It is a well-known fact that there is less danger from lightning in cities than in the country, and this is due to the general use of iron, steel and other metals in city buildings. The buildings are tall and would seem, therefore, to be specially attractive to the lightning; indeed, they are often struck, but the metal in them dissipates the force of the fluid and carries it harmlessly and quietly to the earth. The effect of telephone wires upon atmospheric electricity has been under official investigation by the German department of telegraphs, and statistics from 900 cities show that the danger from lightning strokes is four times as great in towns that do not have the telephone as in those that have it. The conclusion of the whole matter, therefore, is that an abundance of wires gives protection from lightning, instead of increasing the danger.

You're an Easy Prey. With your flesh reduced below a healthy standard, for consumption and other scourful, and dangerous diseases. And it's for just this condition that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is especially valuable.

If you're thinner than you ought to be, whether from wasting diseases, defective nutrition, or whatever cause, the "Discovery" will surely bring you up to the healthy standard. By restoring the normal action of the deranged organs and functions, it accrues every natural source and means of nourishment. As a strength-restorer and flesh-builder, nothing like this medicine is known to medical science. Filthy cod liver oil and all its disguised compounds can't compare with it.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness and headache.

RUSSIAN MILLERS. They Are Endeavoring to Capture Our Flour Markets.

Russian millers have decided to make a determined effort to capture some of the great flour markets of the world. In welcoming the members of the milling trade at the congress of flour millers, which was opened at St. Petersburg on Jan. 25 and remained in session for about eight days, M. Kovlovsky remarked that the minister of finance trusted that the main item on the agenda would not be lost sight of. He referred to the most practical way of promoting the export of flour from Russia. Grain was a precious raw material, and was one of the richest of the empire, but the country would never reap the full value of its harvests until some means could be found of utilizing all the grain raised by the native farmer. That, he said, might be asking very much, but it was the ideal to keep before them, which they should never lose from their sight. The government is backing the enterprise, and will make a reduction in transportation rates to assist in its accomplishment. The query at the convention was: If the United States could do so well why not they? True they saw that the United States enjoys advantages which have not fallen to the lot of Russia, but on the other hand, Russia enjoys three advantages which the United States have not, referring to the excellence of their raw material, to the cheapness of labor and to the proximity of their foreign markets. Before the Americans managed to make their flour known in the markets of Europe millions of dollars were spent in the aggregate, and Russia feels that if their millers were determined to make such sacrifices, that they, too, would reap a reward similar to that of the millers of the United States.

About Knives.

A cheap Pocket-knife can be bought at every Store, but it is not the kind you want.

One dollar is the lowest price that a really good knife can be sold for. This column is placed in this paper to advertise the very best Pocket-knife ever sold. It is J. C. TIDMARSH'S Sheffield Steel Knife.

Never buy a knife only because it looks well. If blades are not the best Sheffield steel they will soon bend, no matter how they will look. Still, you want a fine-looking knife.

The United States law provides that only samples to agents and to the trade will be admitted free of duty. You can, therefore, see the advantage that I have in sending samples to agents over those who deal in Sheffield goods in America.

I am an advertising agent. I am trusted with a certain amount of advertising these knives (the value never seen in America at $1.00 each). Now, the knife is my own best advertisement.

Imagine a Pocket-knife (3 1/2 inches long) with the most beautifully-grained very handle—genuine African ivory mand with two blades of the very best Sheffield steel that will last a lifetime and cut like a razor. The tips of the handles are heavily plated with sterling silver. And then a very nice chamois leather case goes with each knife. Now, could it not be easy work selling this knife at One Dollar each? I know it would, for it looks as if it were worth two dollars.

And so it is if you compare it with the value offered in the ordinary Store.

Is not this knife its own best advertisement.

You can make $4 per day selling these knives. This is a genuine and straightforward statement. This is counting that you show it to only twelve buyers every day. And every one that sees it will say it is good value for $1. The knives are sold to you at $8 per dozen; you sell them at $3 each.

I determined to use large sum of advertising money entrusted to me in sending out free samples to those who promise to act as agents for the sale of these knives.

I will send you a free sample, but you must sign the promise at the foot of this column, and make a deposit to show that in asking for the knife you are acting in good faith.

The deposit that I ask of you is 40c cents about half the wholesale cost of the knife, and less than one-third what you would have to pay for a "KILL" knife, if you bought one.

Send the money by a Postal Order, five-cent stamps for 40c, and put five-cent stamp on the letter, which must not weigh more than one-third ounce.

The deposit of 44 cents will be placed to your credit, and will be deducted from your first order at the dozen rate.

I am an advertising agent, contractor and publisher with one of the largest Advertising businesses in the world and absolutely guarantee to send, postage paid and duty free, the knife described above free to anyone who signs my promise below, and sends it with the deposit as stated.

Let me advise you not to part with your sample, even if you should lose it sale at $1 by refusing, as it will take time to replace it. I could not send you another even if you sent the full $1. After the sample they can only be supplied to you by the dozen as there is duty on them to be paid.

Any English Banker can give you information about my high standing, or write to the publisher of this paper who knows that I do a large and straightforward advertising business, and that I do exactly as I say.

I have taken this pace in this paper for three years! The first one answering this advertisement after this number of the paper has come out will, if he likes, have his name printed in this space as agent for these knives.

The Editor of the Springfield (Ohio) New Era writes, in his paper of June 29, 1894:—"I have received a sample-knife from Mr. Sears, and am very much pleased with it. He is the owner of a very large advertising business in London, and is, I believe, perfectly responsible and straightforward."

Sign your name and address to the following, cut it out and send it with Postal Order or stamps for 44 cents, and you will receive by return of post the beautiful knife as described above.

F. W. SEARS, ADVERTISING AGENT AND CONTRACTOR, WHOLESALE KNIFE ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT, 138 FLEET STREET, LONDON, ENGL.

DEAR SIR,—I faithfully promise on my honor to show the Sample Knife, you have promised to send me one or more of my friends, thereby constituting myself an agent. This will make me "in the trade" as far as Pocket-cutlery is concerned. By this promise I am entitled to a sample of your beautiful Dollar Pocket-knife with chamois leather case, to be sent me post-paid and duty free. I also enclose 44 cents Postal Order or stamps which please hold for me until I send you an order at the dozen rate.

EXTINCTION OF THE BISON.

Only Two Hundred Wild Buffalo Still Alive in America.

In a wild state, the American bison, or buffalo, is practically, though not quite wholly, extinct. At the present moment there are about two hundred wild buffaloes alive and on foot in the United States. To obtain these high figures we include the one hundred and fifty individuals that white head-hunters and red meat-hunters have thus far left alive in the Yellowstone park, posed to be protected from slaughter. Besides these, there are only two other bunches: one of about twenty head in Lost park, Colorado, protected by state laws; and another, containing between thirty and forty head, in Val Verde county, Texas, between Devil's river and the Rio Grande. Four years ago there were over three hundred head in the Yellowstone park, thriving and increasing quite satisfactorily. Through them we fondly hoped the species would even yet be saved from absolute extinction. But alas! we were reckoning without the poachers. Congress provides pay for just one solitary scout to guard in winter 3,575 square miles of rugged mountain country against the horde of lawless white men and Indians who surround the park on all sides, eager to kill the last buffalo! The poachers have been hard at work, and as a result our park herd has recently decreased more than one-half in number. It is a burning shame that formerly, through lack of congressional law adequately to punish such poachers as the wretch who was actually caught red-handed in January, 1894, while skinning seven dead buffaloes! and now, through lack of a paltry $1,800 a year to pay four more scouts, the park buffaloes are all doomed to certain and speedy destruction. Besides the places mentioned, there is only one other spot in all North America that contains wild buffaloes. Immediately southwestward of Great Slave lake there lies a vast wilderness of swamps and stunted pines, into which no white man has ever penetrated far, and where the red man still reigns supreme. It is bounded on the north by the Liard and Mackenzie rivers, on the east by the Slave river, on the south by the Peace river, and on the west by the Rocky mountains. Mr. Warburton Pike says it is now the greatest beaver country in the world, and that it also contains a few bands of the so-called wood buffalo. "Sometimes they are heard of at Forts Smith and Vermillion, sometimes at Fort St. John, on the Peace river, and occasionally at Fort Nelson, on the Liard; . . . but it is impossible to say anything about their numbers." At all events, in February, 1890, Mr. Pike found eight buffaloes only four days' travel from Fort Resolution, on Great Slave lake, and succeeded in killing one. The Canadian authorities estimate the total number in that region at three hundred.

Things of the past with many happy mortals are the tortures of Headaches and Neuralgia which in some instances have been endured since childhood. Their better state, their rescue from a affliction is due entirely to the curative powers of Gessler's Magic Headache-Wafers. The record of this great remedy is unsurpassed. They are a specific for all headaches and neuralgia. The wisest physicians use and prescribe them. The remedy is backed up by guarantees as to its wholesomeness and its positive healing efficiency. They are guaranteed by John Moore.

Rudyard Kipling has explored the recesses of the national capitol with a thoroughness equaled by few Americans, meanwhile dodging newspaper men with a dexterity born of practice. He passed considerable time in the model room under the dome, and visited the vault under the crypt designed for Washington's sarcophagus. He also showed his enterprise by crawling over the roof of the supreme courtroom, which is a thing not often done.

Any intelligent man or woman seeking employment and ambitious to make from $40 to $150 monthly, can secure same by addressing Globe Bible Publishing Co. 723 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa. No capitol required, nor stamp for reply. A young man or woman wishing to earn a few hundred dollars in the next two months preferred.

There was a boy who only wanted a marble. When he had the marble he only wanted a top; when he had a top he only wanted a kite; and when he had a kite, top and kite he was not happy. There was a man who only wanted money; when he had money he only wanted a house; when he had a house he only wanted land; when he had land he only wanted a coach; and when he had money, house, land and coach, he wanted more than ever. Be content with little, for much will have more of the world over.

Physicians have used Spear's wine, and having applied to it the strictest test known to chemistry, they do not hesitate to pronounce it a pure wine of medium strength, and recommend it to be of great advantage to the aged and infirm, also low and typhoid fevers. Spear's wine will be found very superior.

NOBILITY OF THE DONKEY.

He Used to Be Classed Among the Great Ones.

The donkey, who rather undeservedly has come to be considered one of the "naturals" of the animal world, was dedicated by the ancients to Bacchus, while the ass of Silenus was raised to a place among the stars. Apparently he was a more intellectual personage in early days than he is supposed to be at present. Ammonianus, the grammarian, possessed one who invariably attended his master's lectures on poetry, and would even leave the choicest luncheon of thistles to do so. "Wicked as a red ass" ran an old proverb, which the Copts believed in so firmly that every year they sacrificed an unhappy animal of the detested color by hurling it headlong from a wall. In an old book letter translation of Albertus Magnus the donkey figures in the following extraordinary recipe: "Take an adder's skyn, and auripigmentum, and greese of newe bees, and the fat or waxe of an ass, and breake them all, and put them all in a dulle seething pot full of water, and make it seethe at a glowe fire, and after let it waxe cold, and make a taper, and every man that shall see light of it shall seee headlesse." Burton, in his "Anatomy of Melancholy," mentions as a valuable amulet, "a ring made of the hoofe of an asse's right foot carried about." A tract written by a certain "A. B." in 1595, entitled "The Nobleness of the Asse," is exceedingly laudatory of that excellent animal. "He refuseth no burden; he goes whither he is sent without any contradiction. He lifts not his foote against anyone; he bites not; he is no fugitive, nor malicious affected. He doth all things in good sort, and to his liking that hath cause to employ him." But what chiefly fills the worthy author with admiration is the donkey's voice—his "goody, sweet, and continual brayings," which form "a melodious and proportionate kind of musicke."

"I was troubled with quinsy for five years. Thomas Electric Oil cured me. My wife and child had diphtheria. Thomas Electric Oil cured them. I would not be without it in the house for any consideration." Rev. E. F. Crane, Dunkirk, N. Y.

An Amusing Oversight.

An amusing incident occurred at a fashionable wedding in London. One friend, who determined to save her money and credit at the same time, took a broken ear-ring to a famous jeweler of Bond street and ordered the little stone to be set as a scarf-pin for the groom. As she sagely remarked: "It does me no good, and, coming from such a famous establishment, they are sure to prize it and think I paid a lot of money." When the package was returned from the shop the wedding guest failed to examine her proposed present, and merely dispatched it with her card and compliments. Imagine her disgust when strolling through the rooms where the bridal gifts were displayed, to find a dozen people about her offering, and each one smiling. For a moment she hesitated then pressed forward, and lo! there was the precious white satin covered box, bearing the prize name. It is true, but, alas! below: "From the repairing department." And, even worse than all. Resting on the blue cotton beside the pin, was an old broken bit of earring returned by the conscientious firm.

Like a Sieve

The chief function of the kidneys is to separate from the blood, in its passage through them, of certain impurities and watery particles which make their final exit through the bladder. The retention of these, in consequence of inactivity of the kidneys, is productive of Bright's disease, dropsy, diabetes, albuminuria and other maladies with a fatal tendency. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters a highly sanctioned diuretic and blood purifier, impels the kidneys when inactive to renew their filtering function, and strain from the vital current impurities which infect it and threaten their own existence as organs of the body. Catarrh of the bladder, gravel and retention of the urine are, also, maladies arrested or averted by this being promoter and restorative of organic action. Malaria, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and dyspepsia also yield to the Bitters, which is also speedily beneficial to the weak and nervous.

A Fool's Practical Joke.

Norman Gridley, a saloonist of Jackson, asked an old friend, Enos Trefrey, of Parma, to join him in committing suicide. Enos consented to go with Gridley, but didn't believe it was morphine. The dose was placed in two glasses. They bid their friends goodby and Gridley drank his glass, although he was careful to remove the morphine when Trefrey was not looking. Before he could be stopped Trefrey drank his. Gridley was nearly wild and went rushing for a doctor. Trefrey, despite all warning, believed the dose to be quinine. Dr. Gibson worked over Trefrey six hours and he was recovered.

ANNA IS HAPPY.

The Countess of Castellane Is Intensely Devoted to Her Husband. I saw Comte Castellane driving with his wife, says a London cablegram. They looked rather unlike a honeymoon couple, as he was attired in a covert coat and round hat (known here, as a "bowler" or "billy cock" over him), not at all like his usual smart get-up. Perhaps it was done on purpose to avoid suspicion—I mean, publicity. The Castellanes have been staying at the Berkeley, but, I think, left today for Paris. Some one who saw them together at the hotel told me that she appeared quite devoted to him, says Piccadilly in Vanity, and is so yielding and submissive that he is likely to be spoilt entirely.

Evolution of the Railroad.

The first railroad constructed in New York State was the Mohawk & Hudson (now a part of the New York Central), which was formerly opened during the summer of 1831. The equipment consisted of a locomotive "De Witt Clinton" and three pioneer cars of the state coach design. It was the foundation of the magnificent system that now unites the great commercial centers of the East and West. Since its inception, the policy of New York Central has been progress, improvement, expansion. It has grown from 17 miles to over 2,000 miles of shining steel; from one primitive train to nearly six hundred fast express and local trains. It is protected by the most perfect system of block signals in the world, and its trains arrive at and depart from Grand Central Station, the very center of New York City. Instead of the stage coach, you now step into one of the famous limited trains of the New York Central, which has been designated by the press of two continents, "America's Greatest Railroad"—and whirled along its imperial highway at a mile a minute. Everywhere the surroundings bespeak luxury and refinement. There is an air of harmony and comfort pervading the atmosphere that the traveler appreciates. If you want to read, there is an excellent library to select from; if you desire to appease the appetite, it is cheerfully arranged by the chef, and when the symptoms of slumber become manifest, you retire to the privacy of a luxurious compartment for repose.

LEITER ISN'T LITERARY.

That's Why He Thought Howells Was a Reporter.

The Leiters are always willing to give out for publication anything which the public has a right to know. Perhaps that is the reason some people believe the story told about Mr. Leiter's meeting with William D. Howells. According to the chronicler, Miss Leiter met Mr. Howells just prior to the entertainment dedicating the beautiful Leiter mansion, and extended an informal invitation to the distinguished writer to attend the reception. Therefore, Mr. Leiter was not expecting this particular guest when his daughter presented him. "Father," she said, "this is Mr. W. D. Howells, the celebrated writer."

"Glad to meet you, sir," said Mr. Leiter; "well, if you want to write anything about me for your papers at any time, just come to me and I'll give you all the facts. I'd rather give them to you than have you get them wrong."

The National Capitol.

The City of Washington is an object of perennial interest to all patriotic Americans. Not alone because it is the great throbbing heart of the mightiest and grandest Republic the earth has ever known, but also on account of its material magnificence. All Americans take pride in its beautiful avenues, majestic architecture, stately homes, and well stored galleries and museums as things of grandeur and beauty in themselves, apart from the historic interest with which they are invested. It is a hope and aspiration of all "Young America" at least, at some time or other to visit the Capitol of this country.

The Baltimore & Ohio R. R. offers unequalled facilities in aid of this desire. All its through trains between New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the east and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago, pass through Washington. Its fast express trains are vestibuled from end to end and heated with steam. Pullman's latest and best sleeping room sleeping cars are attached to all its through trains. The management of the B. & O. has made vast improvements in the last 10 years, and road is today one of the foremost passenger carrying lines in the country. Through tickets via B. & O. R. R. can be procured at all principal ticket offices throughout the United States.

A Ringer for Lost Children.

Francis George, the Liverpool bell-man, is to retire from the service of the city, after a public career extending over a period of sixty years. It is said that at one time the office of bell-man was worth to the person who held it about $2,500 per annum. In addition to making public proclamations, it was part of the bell-man's duty on all civic occasions to walk before the mayor of Liverpool with a portion of the regalia. It was Mr. George's distinction in that capacity during his long period of office to walk before fifty-three mayors. In these later days the office of bell-man has become practically a sinecure. The duties which he had to discharge have become obsolete, and other means of announcement have superseded that of bell-man. During his long tenure of office Mr. George has received from police officers at the bell-man's house the custody of 130,000 stray children whom he restored to their parents. Latterly this was the old bell-man's chief emolument, each parent paying 12 cents for the recovery of the lost children, and $125 a year was granted to him from the corporation. Now a great deal of ringing for children is done by electric gongs.

GAME COCK AND HAWK.

The Domestic Fowl Comes Off Winner After a Sharp Battle.

Mr. Sanders, living just on the edge of Claiborne, owns a fine young game cock, Anthony, of which he is duly proud, says an Arcadia, La., correspondent. Although Anthony is not fully grown, he is game all over. Sanders has only to hold out his hand, when the cock will mount in his forearm and begin to crow lustily at being hidden. Anthony has established his reputation as cock of the walk in the barnyard, and the other roosters have to betake themselves to the neighbors for protection. The other day Sanders witnessed a very creditable exhibition of Anthony's prowess. Just as he was about to enter the barnyard he saw a hawk swoop down and bury his talons deep down into a big Brahma hen, which at once began to squawk and alarm the whole place. It soon became evident, however that the hawk had miscalculated his strength. The big hen was too heavy for him, and he only stuck hard and fast, unable to extract his claws or to mount with his prey. At this interesting moment Anthony appeared, crowing a valiant response to the Brahma's cries for help. The cock seemed to take in the situation at a glance, and walked into that hawk, giving a one, two, three with his spurs that practically did the business. These lusty blows, however, relieved the hawk of his embarrassing situation to a certain extent, as it set him free of his hold upon the hen. But he was too much played out to fly, though he was quite willing to fight it out with the cock on his own ground. Sanders stood by to see fair play and let the birds have their way. This was Anthony's first foe in the hawk line, and he seemed anxious to get as much practice on him as he could. But in turn the hawk was no fool. He dabbed and scratched like an old stager, and managed pretty often to fight shy of Anthony's spurs. Finally the hawk got jammed up in the fence corner, when the cock took advantage of the situation and gave the death blow, crowing proudly when the fight was over. Since then a hawk cannot come within fifty feet of the earth in Anthony's neighborhood. He seems constantly on the alert for them, and if one passes overhead he throws a challenge that makes the echoes ring, and has frequently been seen to fly twenty feet high to try to strike the bird in midair.

LITERARY NOTES.

The charm of listening to a famous man as he tells of the greatest influence upon his life comes very strong upon one in reading the article in which the Rev. Robert Collyer, D. D., contributes to the June issue of 'The Ladies' Home Journal.' It is the magazine's series of 'The Woman Who Most Influenced Me,' and is at once the daintiest and strongest contribution to it. Dr. Parkhurst, for the first time, writes of woman, suffrage in an article, 'Women Without the Ballot,' which will probably call forth a storm of dissent. Edward Bok writes of 'Girls Who Pose as Tribby,' and of the 'New Woman,' whom he says does not exist. 'The Fashionable White Gown' is pictured and described, and some very practical suggestions for 'Cotton and Woolen Gowns' are given. Eben E. Rexford writes of 'Our Poisonous Plants,' urging that vigorous efforts to exterminate them shall be made all over the country. The Curtis Publishing Co., Phila., Pa.

A notable feature of Outing for June is 'Trotting and Pacing Champions of '94,' a continuation of the series 'King and Queens of the Track.' The author knows every detail of his subject, and his review of the breeding and the performances of the record breakers of last season, forms a most valuable addition to the literature of the light harness horse. Fine full-page portraits of Alix, Jno. R. Gentry, Fantasy, Jno. Patchen and Robert J. accompany the article.—Outing Pub. Co., N. Y. City N. Y.

'Uniform State Legislation' is a subject of a paper just issued by the American Academy of Political and Social Science in its series of Publications. It is written by Frederic J. Stimson, Esq., of Boston, the author of 'American State Laws,' and commissioner from Massachusetts on the Board of Commissioners to establish uniformity of law throughout the Union, and secretary of the National Conference for that purpose.

The paper contains an explanation of the causes of diversity in State laws; an account of the movement to secure uniformity.

This movement to secure uniformity of legislation has been spoken of by an eminent authority as 'the most important juristic work undertaken in the United States since the adoption of the Federal Constitution.'

MENAL TRAVELERS.

They Manage to See Much of the World Without Leaving Home.

Pittsburg Dispatch: 'You would be surprised at the number of mental travelers that are in a community,' said a railroad man yesterday. 'I mean people who travel only in their minds; who, to indulge this mania, make a collection of railroad literature, such as is issued in time-tables, excursion books, pamphlets, etc. You have often heard people talk knowingly of a place which you have best evidence that they have never visited. They can discourse fluently upon the hotels and principal sights of the city, even tell you of the trains and the connections they make, or describe the small stations through which they pass going there. If you have ever known a man or woman like this, then you have met a mental traveler. He might also be dubbed the railroad literature fiend, as this is the title by which he is known among the employees of a railroad office, who look no further into the motives of men than the surface. We have hundreds of such men and women who come to the office after every piece of literature the railroad prints, from the local time-tables to the book descriptive of a southern or western jaunt. Their thirst for this kind of literature can never be satiated; it seems to have the same influence as alcoholic stimulants—the more they get the more they want. We have men who are employed in leading positions in banks and business houses who come to us daily with the question, 'Anything new out?' When the people live in the city they usually call upon us daily, but when they reside in the country their visits are at longer intervals. We have one old man who comes from Westmoreland county who never fails to appear upon the same date of each month. He seems to revel in going through the large batch of time-tables and books that have accumulated since his last visit. He never varies in his mode of procedure. After supplying himself with a sample of each one he comes over to the window, and with his face wreathed in smiles, in the intoxication of his delight, he says, 'How're you, anyhow?' After being assured that our health still permitted us to continue at our business, he always asks, 'Well, kin you tell me how much's the fare to Boston?' When this information is given he invariably remarks, 'Well, that's gd darn cheap, that is.' Then he lapses into a thoughtful mood, from which he breaks by making the assertion, 'Confound me, I'll go down there next year.' Then picking up his grip, he starts off and we do not see him again for a month. He has been going Boston 'next year' to my own knowledge for six years. These mental travelers get more satisfaction out of their dreamy wanderings than the usual tourist of the day who travels not to learn, but to kill time. One man told me that he had never been to Washington in his life, yet was as familiar with the getting there and the city itself as if he had lived there his lifetime. He can talk about the streets and numbers, and can direct people from one place to another with more accuracy than the average Pittsburg policeman can give you information about his town, and sets it all from railroad literature. You watch the time-table racks of a railroad station and note what a high class of people these mental travelers are.'

ONLY A BUNCH OF VIOLETS.

But It Brought Happiness to a Little Cripple and Moisture to Many Eyes.

Seated in the corner of a Broadway car was a frail, little crippled boy, evidently an intense sufferer from a spinal disease. His head and the upper part of his body were enclosed in a network of steel and leather, and an iron brace was tightly strapped to the side of one of his legs. Poverty, too, seemed to be his misfortune. His clothing was of cheap material and bore the stamp of home make, and in every finger of the black cotton gloves worn by his 15-year-old sister, who accompanied him, there was a hole. Her dress was patched in several places, and her hat was a thin, straw affair, trimmed with a band of faded red ribbon; but withal she was wondrous neat and clean. At Twenty-third street a handsomely dressed young woman boarded the car and dropped into a seat directly opposite the pair. Tucked in the folds of her coat was a big bunch of fresh, double violets, tied with a long purple ribbon and their fragrant odor at once pervaded the car. The little boy caught the scent and at once his great brown eyes were thrown upon the flowers. Then he whispered something to his sister, who blushed and told him to wait awhile. Turning his attention again to the violets the lad gazed upon them until his eyes grew bright and round, and every few moments he would draw an extra long breath, as if to take in all of the sweet perfume he could. Soon every one in the forward part of the car was watching him. From the look of admiration there grew in those brown eyes an expression of longing so earnest and deep that it made the heart thrill with sympathy, says the New York Herald.

The young woman, with charming emotions, glanced uneasily at the boy at intervals, and soon the power of those eyes and the soul they revealed overcame her. With a quick tug she drew the violets from her coat, and, with a tear springing to her eye, handed them to the boy, purple ribbon and all. Before the child received from his great joy she sought the platform and was gone.

Nearly all the men sitting near by suddenly resumed interest in their newspapers and some coughed. The women looked straight ahead through the glass, beyond the sidewalk, and much further than the obstructing show windows and doorways. It was not an earthly vision that pictured itself to them; their vision was turned toward their hearts into the tiny corner where fondlest of all hopes and sweetest of sad memories were treasured.

The boy—well, do I need to tell you of his happiness? And sister? Poor sister? she felt so ashamed. But what could she do?

PECULIAR MARYLAND LAWS.

It Was a Crime to Feed a Slave Too Often on Terrapin.

During the early history of the state and even up to the latter part of the eighteenth century some curious acts were passed by the general assembly, especially with reference to the colored population. The Maryland terrapin 120 years ago was not so famous as a delicate species of food as now. Terrapin were more plentiful, too. In fact, they were so numerous and to be had at so little trouble and no expense, that they were used principally for food for slaves, the white people disdaining to grace their tables with them. The practice of feeding slaves on terrapin became so general that the assembly determined to put a stop to such a cruel and inhuman custom as it was then regarded, and passed an act prohibiting owners from feeding their slaves on terrapin more than twice a week under a penalty of 500 pounds of tobacco. An act passed with reference to some of the lower counties of Maryland prohibiting a free negro or slave from owning or using a boat on the rivers without a license recommended by two respectable citizens. For Charles and Prince George's counties a law was enacted forbidding a negro from using a boat to go to Alexandria or the District of Columbia. For violation of this law the free negro was subject to a fine of $50 and the slave to not less than ten nor more than twenty lashes, and the boat confiscated unless permission for its use had been given by its owner. In St. Mary's and other lower counties slaves were not allowed to enter any place where liquor was sold between sunset and sunrise unless armed with a written permit from his master. This, however, was never strictly enforced.

For Somerset and Worcester counties an act was passed prohibiting the issuance of a trader's license to any white man who had a negro partner and forbidding any merchant to employ a negro clerk under penalty of $500. The above state laws, except that relative to the terrapin, although enacted many years ago, are to be found in the code of 1890. In some sections of the state there seems to have been an aversion to geese and hogs for about 100 years. On Jan. 15, 1785, a law was passed by the assembly entitled 'An act to prevent the raising of geese and swine in Elizabethtown, Washington county; Elizabethtown, St. Mary's county, and Charles Town, Charles county.' Any owner or other person having care of 'any of these animals' (the act defined both a hog and goose as an animal) and allowing it to go as large was subject to a fine of 20 shillings, and anybody was permitted with impunity to kill any goose or hog so running at large.

WHY DON'T IT WOBBLE?

The Earth's Balance Must Have Changed Since Columbus.

A New England scientist says there's going to be dikkens to pay if the rest of the United States continues to cart away granite and marble from the land of the Pilgrims and Puritans. 'It is not unlikely,' says he, 'that the equilibrium of the earth is already considerably disturbed, and that we shall shortly feel a pronounced wobble. Of course, if there is to be a wobble anywhere we would prefer it in New England, but perhaps the outlook is not so desperate as at first glimpse. The summer rush of people to the White mountains, Jar Harbor, Newport, and a thousand other New England summer resorts must in a very great degree restore the weight which existed before there were quarries in New England. And there is another thing. It is computed that there were in the Western hemisphere, when Columbus set foot on it, not more than 1,000,000 human beings. There are now, at a very low estimate, 101,000,000. These 100,000,000 of additional persons have increased the weight of the western hemisphere some 5,000,000 of tons, in the roughest of round numbers. Surely there is an opportunity for a wobble in this state of affairs, and we ought to be conscious of it by this time. If there has been no wobble an explanation should be demanded. Some men of science should rise to tell us why we don't wobble. Nothing is more dreadful, says the Buffalo Courier, than the uncertainty when and where the commotion will begin. Probably only those who are holding to the straps at the time will keep their feet.

'Dr. Fowler's Ext. of Wild Strawberry is considered a necessity in our home. It is an excellent remedy for summer complaints, especially with children.' Wm. Reid, 66 Cottage-st., Buffalo, N. Y.

DO YOU WANT TO STOP TOBACCO?

You Can Be Cured While Using It.

The habit of using tobacco grows on a man until grave diseased conditions are produced. Tobacco causes cancer of the mouth and stomach; dyspepsia; loss of memory; nervous affections; congestion of the retina, and wasting of the optic nerve, resulting in impairment of vision, even to the extent of blindness; dizziness, or vertigo; tobacco asthma; nightly suffocation; dull pain in region of the heart, followed by sharp pains, palpitation and weakened pulse, resulting in fatal disease. It also causes loss of vitality.

POOR MEN GO FARMING.

Long Poverty-Stricken to Be Enlarged.

The Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor announced yesterday that in the assignment of lots for farming on Long Island men with families would have the preference. Each worker will have all that he can grow, and can do what he likes with the product of his little farm. The cultivation need not necessarily take all of a man's time, as he can work in the evening and in the morning. Each man is expected to pay back the expense of the tools and seed if he can, but if he is not able to do so the committee will consider it a debt of honor. A superintendent and three assistants are giving all the necessary instruction free. The men who are at work now are very anxious to learn, and their first attempts are very gratifying to the committee. A quarter of an acre is given to each man. There are about thirty men now at work.

A very good offer has been made to the society by a man who lives in the northern part of the state and owns several thousand acres of land. He has offered to give 1,500 acres of land to those wishing to start farming there. The land will be given in lots of five to ten acres to each family. This donation of land is for those men who have taken lots for the society and prove by their industry and perseverance that they are worthy of such a reward. The society has accepted the proposition, and expects that it will induce many of the unemployed in the city to make homes for themselves in the country.

Are you a sufferer from rheumatism? If so, it will be to your advantage to try Schrage's Rheumatic Cure. It never fails. This is more than can be said of any other rheumatic cure in the world. Try a bottle.

FLOWERS FOR SINGERS.

Their Perfume Is apt to Spoil the Voice—Violets Are the Worst.

Miss May Yohe has confided to an interviewer the interesting fact that she cannot bear to have flowers near her when singing, as their perfume utterly destroys her voice. The lady added that she could not account for this 'curious fact.' The effect of flowers on the voice has recently excited a good deal of attention in France, and Dr. Joal, of Mont Dore, has published an elaborate paper on the subject. He relates a number of cases which have come under his own observation in which thickness, huskiness and even complete loss of voice are always caused by penetrating odors. In some persons it is only the perfume of particular flowers that produces this effect; in others the odor of incense or musk, or the smells of the kitchen, tanyard or smithy act in the same way. The bad effect of flowers on the voice is so well known among singers that M. Faure, Mme. Krause and other eminent teachers caution their pupils against having them in their dressing rooms, and a jealous prima donna has been known to secure herself against the possible triumph of a rival by treacherously presenting her with a magnificent bouquet just before she went on the stage. Testimony to the evil effects of flowers on the voice is borne by Mme. Christine Nilsson and other famous singers, and by laryngologists like Dr. Fauvel and Dr. Gouguenheim, of Paris. The flower which has the worst reputation in this respect is the violet, but there is no evidence that it is really more harmful to the voice than other sweet smelling flowers, such as the rose, the mignonette, the heliotrope, the lily of the valley, the gardenia, the lilac, and the tuberose. The explanation of this curious idiosyncrasy is probably to be found in a special sensitiveness of the olfactory mucous membrane to the action, mechanical or chemical, of certain odorous particles. The mechanism is, one speaking, congestion of the mucous membrane of the turbinate bodies, which, it will be remembered, is largely erectile, followed by reflex vasomotor disturbance of the vocal apparatus. Dr. Joal says that the effect manifests itself not only in congestion of the nose, nasopharynx, and larynx, but in paresis of the constrictor muscles of the glottis and spasms of the bronchial tubes. The respiratory capacity, as tested by the spirometer, is notably reduced, and the voice not only loses brilliancy and volume, but part of its compass, and the singer is much more easily fatigued than in his natural state. The moral seems to be that singers who are the subjects of this particular infirmity must banish, not only flowers, but all strong perfumes from their environment if they wish their voices to be at their best; in particular, they must be careful not to accept bouquets from injudicious admirers or rival artists.

Grape Culture in New Jersey.

It is becoming a leading industry of this state, and together with wine making requires large cellars and years of practice. Mr. A. Speer, of N. J., one of the largest producers in the east, commenced forty years ago in a small way to make wine from currants, blackberries and other fruits. He soon turned his attention to grape raising and planted large vineyards of the Portugal grape from which his famous Port Grape Wine and Unfermented Juice are made, which chemists and Physicians say are unexcelled for beneficial effects on weakly and aged persons.

BISMARCK IS ABSIEMIIOUS.

Germany's Grand Old Man Is Compelled to Keep in 'Condition.'

'I am only allowed,' says Prince Bismark, 'to drink three a day—quarter of an hour after each meal, and each time not more than half a bottle of red sparkling Moselle of a very light and dry character. Burgundy and beer, both of which I am extremely fond of, are strictly forbidden to me; so are all the strong Rhenish and Spanish wines, and even claret. For some years past I have been a total abstainer from all these generous liquors, much to the advantage of my health and my 'condition' in the sporting sense of the word. Fortunately I used to weigh over 17 stone. By observing this regimen I brought myself down to under 14, without any loss of strength—indeed, with gain. My normal weight now is 135 pounds. I am weighed once every day by my doctor's orders, and any excess of that figure, I am at once set to work to get rid of by exercise and special regimen. I ride a good deal, as well as walk. Cigar smoking I have given up altogether, of course under advice. It is debilitating and bad for the nerves. An inveterate smoker, such as I used to be, gets through 100,000 cigars in his life if he reaches a fair average age. But he would live longer and feel better all the time if he did without them. Nowadays I am restricted to a long pipe, happily with a deep bowl, one after each meal, and I smoke nothing in it but Dutch Knater tobacco, which is light, mild and soothing. You will see presently the pipe comes in with the pint of red Moselle. It will be a whole bottle today, and you must help me out with it. Water makes me fat, so I must not drink it. However, the present arrangements suit me very well.'

'There Is Danger In Delay.'

Severe Fire at Gallen.

The entire business part of Gallen with the exception of two stores and the postoffice, was completely wiped out by fire. The supposition is that it was the work of an incendiary. The fire broke out at 1 a. m. and it was 3:30 a. m. before a fire engine and help had arrived from Buchanan. Three families were made homeless and eight business concerns are without quarters. Had not the wind changed the rest of the business portion of the town across the Michigan Central tracks would have been destroyed. Dr. L. E. Peck, while fighting the flames from the roof of Lyons' livery barn, fell to the ground, a distance of 25 feet, and had his right arm broken. The total loss is about $21,000.

The Incomparable Chicago & Alton.

In these United States of America at least, and it is highly probable that throughout the entire world, the official record for the safety and welfare of its passengers made and maintained by the Chicago & Alton Railroad cannot be surpassed if indeed it can be equalled. Over its completely rock-bulldozed, dustless roadway between Chicago and Kansas City, Chicago and St. Louis and St. Louis and Kansas City, eighteen magnificently appointed express trains are run on uniformly fast time every day. But in spite of this heavy passenger traffic the official records show that from December 4, 1879 to December 4, 1890, eleven years, there was no passenger, who was in place as a passenger, killed on Chicago & Alton trains. Moreover there was not a passenger seriously injured, to the extent of losing a limb, an eye or a member of any kind during that time.

During the entire period of the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, when it was not an uncommon thing to find the usual passenger traffic of the road increased two, three and four-fold, and special excursion trains were very many, there was not an accident of any kind—a most remarkable record.

Besides being America's most popular railroad, the Chicago & Alton is the Pioneer Dining Car Line, the Pioneer Pullman Sleeping Car Line and the Pioneer Palace Reclining Chair Car Line.

Be sure that your ticket reads over the Chicago & Alton Railroad, when its matches and direct lines can form the whole, or even a part of your journey.

ONE TRADE BUSY.

More Clothes Mending by Tailors One of the Results of Dull Times.

"My trade has been bigger and better in the last two dull years than ever it was before," said a Columbus avenue tailor who follows the useful business of mending men's clothes, to a New York Sun reporter. "Look at the piles of garments upon these shelves awaiting my needle. I never knew of such a rush at any other time since I became a boss in the tailor's trade as that for two years. I have had, and yet have, to give out jobs enough to keep ten men and women at work. People come in here with coats and trousers and vests who never used to do it, and hardly ever had any mending done, or ever thought of a patch. They have been getting out their old stock to be fixed up on account of the hard times. Some of them who would not be seen in here, stand around their garments by a messenger boy or a servant, and I can turn out some things so as to be better than they were when new. I would not give you the names of my customers, but I can tell you that some of them pass for rich. That summer suit belongs to a man who is believed to be a millionaire, and he has worn it for two seasons, and when I send it back to him, he can wear it for two more. Some men whom you'd never suspect of being hard up must be down on their stumps, or perhaps they are practicing economy without any need for it.

"Lots of New Yorkers are mighty foolish about their clothes. They will throw away a coat or a pair of trousers when they are not half worn out. Another thing, new clothes are cheap nowadays, but it is a fact that they are not so cheap as last year's when you can get them mended and cleaned for a dollar or two. Nearly all the merchants in my line are busy, and we have had good times all through the bad years. The extravagant and wasteful people have had a useful lesson."

TORPEDO BOATS.

What European Powers Have Paid for Their Speedy Craft.

A blue book just issued gives incidentally, hidden almost by a mass of other information, the contract price of a large number of the torpedo boat destroyers now being constructed by private firms for the navy. These vessels are about 200 feet long, of about 230 or 240 tons displacement, and with engines of 4,000 or 4,500 indicated horsepower, attained a speed of 27 knots. Messrs. Yarrow, London, have built three of this larger type, the price for each being £37,400. Messrs. Thornycroft, London, have also built three at £36,430 each; Palmers' Ship Building company, Jarrow, get £37,107. Messrs. Thomson, Clydebank, who have some experience of high speed vessels, have done their work most satisfactorily for £34,792; the Naval Construction company at Barrow are to get £33,977, and although their vessels have not yet been tried, there is every prospect of successful issue. By way of comparison it may be interesting to state that the French paid £30,528 for a 27-knot torpedo boat only 144 feet long, of 123 tons displacement, and 2,700 indicated horse-power. The costs are not available for any larger torpedo boats of the French; but it is pretty evident that our craft are built at a very much less rate. The torpedo Aventurier, 151 feet long, of 148 tons displacement, and 1,500 indicated horse power, and 23 1/2 knots speed, cost the French £18,354; our total fleet of ten first-class torpedo boats, 140 feet long, and 23 knots, cost us on an average of £14,491 each. The same parliamentary book states that the contract price of the hull and machinery of the 14,000-ton cruiser Terrible, with Belle-vue boilers and engines, to give 23 knots speed is £543,347. It is being built by Messrs. Thompson, Clydebank. The contract price for the sister ship Powerful, building at Barrow, is £535,252.

Twelve Miles High.

The result of meteorological tests with balloons at immense heights is announced from Bremen this week. One balloon, carrying self-registering instruments, reached a height of twelve miles. The thermometer could not register the temperature, 67 deg. below zero being marked at a lower height. Many tests show that the temperature sinks gradually up to two and a half miles. Above that the fall is much more rapid.

THE RIGHT HAND.

Used More Than Its Mate It Grows Big and Important.

"I wish I were ambidextrous," remarked a young woman who was seated at the glove counter of a Woodward avenue store. "I wear out so many right-hand gloves before those of the left hand that a pair would last nearly twice as long if the wear were more evenly divided between the two."
"Couldn't you begin now?" asked the young woman who was fitting on the gloves.
"No," was the sorrowful inflection; "I've tried, and taken several tumbles in consequence. I always use my right hand to open doors, to swing myself on a street car, to clutch railings, to carry parcels and my umbrella, and hold up my gown, until my left hand has become almost useless. I couldn't save myself from falling with it."
"It is the same with all ladies," said the glovefitter in a tone intended to be comforting.
"Yes, that is the worst of it. I can't see what parents and instructors are thinking of overlooking, as they do, the value of the left hand. My right hand, because of the extra work it performs, is half a size larger than its mate. Have you noticed it?"
"Oh, yes, indeed; we try all ladies' gloves on the right hand first," said the girl as she fitted that useful member.—Detroit Free Press.

Siberian Convicts.

From a report which appeared in the Moscow Listok it appears that last year 11,530 convicts passed through the forwarding prison at Tiumen for the various penal settlements of Siberia. Of this total number of both sexes there were 7,526 men, 1,715 women and 2,239 juveniles. Of the latter the majority are children who voluntarily follow their parents into exile. The report gives the religious confessions of these deportees as follows: 8,831 orthodox Russians, 1,224 Mohammedans, 51 Hebrews, 506 Roman Catholics, 27 Lutherans, 119 Old Believers (ortho dox), 35 Gregorians, 30 Skoptsi and 5 Buddhists. The convicts are now sent by river barges from Tiumen to Tomsk; and therefore escape the terrible hardships of the old highway route. During last year, also, there were embarked at Odessa about 1,700 convicts of the worst class and of both sexes for the penal settlements of Sakhalien.

AN ARTISTIC THIEF.

Ordered by Royalty to Steal, He Stole Royally.

The Grand Duke Sergius, now governor-general of Moscow, once gave a dinner to the ambassador from France, who happened to express the belief that the French pick-pockets were the greatest sleight-of-hand artists in the world.

"I believe," said the prince, "that, unfortunately our own are not inferior. I bet that before you leave my table your watch and other objects of value which you carry will be gone, and that you will not know that you have been robbed."

The bet was taken and the grand duke, a few minutes later, unknown to his guests, telephoned to the chief of police to send the most skillful pick-pocket in St. Petersburg to the palace assuring him that he was not to be punished, and that he would have the value of all he stole. The robber arrived, put on the royal livery, and after arranging with the grand duke to give a sign when he had accomplished his purpose began to wait with the other servants at the table. At last the prince received the signal from the pick-pocket, and, turning to the ambassador asked him the time. The latter placed his hand in the pocket, and there found a cracker in the place of his watch. There was a great outburst of laughter, and the ambassador, to cover his disappointment, reached for his snuff box, but, lo that too, had disappeared. Even his small golden toothpick, which he carried in a little pocket, had been taken. Amid the peals of laughter the false lackey was asked to return the articles which he had stolen. The hilarity of the grand duke was of short duration for the pick-pocket showed two watches two rings and two snuff boxes. His imperial highness, too, had been robbed. It was a remunerative night for the pick-pocket.

Two Men Lynched for Criminal Assault.

John Halls, Jr., and William Royce, the two young men of unsavory reputation, assaulted Miss Laura Bennett and Miss Lillian Draper at Danville, Ill. They were arrested and locked up, and about 3 a. m. were taken by a mob and hanged to the Gilbert street bridge, the scene of their crime. They would not jump and they were both thrown over the bridge railing. They dropped 30 feet and death followed, both expiring in fearful convulsions. The mob was composed of a thousand people, mostly farmers, from near the village of Indianola, where Miss Barnett lived.
