

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

N. N. JAMES SHOTS HIS SWEET-HEART AND KILLS HIMSELF.

Had Been Concealed in the House Two Days—Had a Wife in Ohio—No Cause Known.

For some reason which nobody knows Niles N. James, of Bridgewater township, shot his sweetheart, Miss Martha Minor, and then killed himself. The tragedy occurred Tuesday morning at the home of Charles Gadd, a prosperous farmer, living about four miles southeast of Bridgewater station.

Mr. Gadd is a widower and for the past six weeks Miss Minor had acted as his house keeper. Mr. Gadd was the only one about when the tragedy took place. At the inquest he told the following story:

"I arose at 5 o'clock, lighted the fire and called Martha Minor, who answered, and then I went to the barn to do the chores. I was gone about half an hour. Returning to the house, I found she was not up yet, and went to the stair door and called again. Not receiving an answer, I called still again, and she answered.

"I noticed that her voice was weak and asked her if she was sick and she replied that she was sick. I then started up stairs, asking her if she couldn't get up, and she said no. Then I went to the top of the stairs and looked into the room, the door being wide open, and saw James lying upon his back upon the bed and Martha Minor lying across his chest and head.

"I then ran across the road to the house of my son, Charles, who returned with me, and then we entered the room together, and I asked her if she was shot, and she said 'Yes.' I also asked her if James shot her, and she said 'Yes.' My son Charles was also in the room when the questions were asked. Mary Rogers was also in the room.

"I did not see James move at all, and am sure he was dead at the time. James has been around the place for several days, coming to the house last Saturday between 4 and 5 o'clock. We were at supper, and I called him to the table and told him he had better eat some supper, which he did.

"After supper, Miss Minor and he went down the road together. That was the last I saw of him until this morning. I also state that Miss Minor stated that James shot her while I was at the barn."

Charles L. Gadd, the son of the man in whose house the tragedy occurred, said: "Father came running across the road and told me that Martha and James were killed. I ran to the house, and going up stairs, said: 'Martha, who did this?' 'Sam did; he has been here since Saturday night,' was her reply."

James was about fifty years of age and for two years had been devoted in his attentions to Miss Minor, who was over twenty years his junior.

No one can assign a certain cause for the deed. A lover's quarrel is suggested by some, jealousy by others, and despondency by those who don't agree with the former theories.

Mr. J. V. Amspoker, of Clinton, has known James longer and better than anybody else in this county. He said: "James and I were boys together at Marysville, Ohio. He came to this state after I did and I have known him ever since. He has a wife and two children in Ohio and I think he has never obtained a divorce. I don't know why he should have done this, but it may have been on account of despondency, or because he loved the girl and could not marry her."

One fact makes this idea seem plausible. In a moment of consciousness Miss Minor was asked, "Why did Sam do this?" "It was all God's work," she replied, thus giving reason to suspect that the deed was agreed upon because the two were unhappy.

Miss Minor is said to have been a good girl and to have always borne the best reputation. When the REGISTER correspondent called Tuesday evening she was still alive but unconscious and was likely to die at any minute.

Thieves Caught.

Two men broke into a car on the Wabash at Milan, Thursday and stole four pairs of shoes. On Saturday Deputy Sheriff Fitzgerald, of Saline, got after the men and captured them about nine miles southwest of here.

One of the men had a big revolver and showed fight but was quickly disarmed. The other tried to run but he was tripped up and handcuffed.

The men gave their names as Charles Bardett and George Davenport. Davenport is 27 years old, and claims to have come from the Indian territory. Davenport is 19 and comes from California.

They were taken to Monroe where they waived examination and were lodged in jail.

A Former Ann Arbor Girl.

Miss Bessie Dunster, of Toledo, is becoming well known as an artist. She is a daughter of the late Dr. Dunster, of the University medical faculty. Since a child she has drawn cartoons and illustrations, but only within the last two years has she taken up the work as a profession. Her posters of last season were most favorably commented upon by connoisseurs in that sort of thing, and with the encouragement which she received from those trained to know art when it is presented, she has taken very rapid strides in her work.

For some time she has been at work upon the illustrations of a volume of sonnets entitled "Songs of My Violin," which Mr. Alfred Donaldson, of New York, is to bring out early this winter. Miss Dunster is also under contract with the Current Literature company, and Mr. George W. Cable to draw posters and covers for their publications. Her first work to attract attention on the book stands was the cover of the Inlander. Special covers designed by her were used by the magazine for its Easter and Christmas issues of last year, and although the publication is purely amateur, Miss Dunster's work received the attention of several journals that have their eyes out for budding talent in the realm of art. Also for the Clack Book, the last of the miniature magazines. Miss Dunster has done much commendable work, both in illustrating and poster drawing.

W. C. T. U. Work.

Miss Anna Richards, State Superintendent of the Y. W. C. T. U., addressed the Union at this place last Thursday. She said:

"Sentiment is strong against liquor, and many would think it the height of impropriety to go to a saloon and take a drink, but the same persons will have it stand upon their tables, and never think of refusing the sparkling glass at banquets or when a guest at the table of a friend.

"To be sure, the pleasant surroundings in which the man of refinement and wealth drinks his wine are less degrading than the rough saloon, yet the drink has the same ill effect upon his body, the desire for liquor is cultivated, a habit acquired, and the health and morals of the man who drinks regularly in his own or friend's home, are in just as much danger as are those of the man who drinks at the bar.

"Every man is responsible for his condition physically and morally. He may say it was through the influence of some one else, but he had the power within himself to overcome the evil influences, and if he will not exert himself to overcome the temptations, he makes it all the harder for his children to resist temptation, by bequeathing to them a weaker will and constitution than is their right to inherit.

"Were the drinker himself the only one to suffer, that would be reason enough for him to choose the less dangerous. But his family—which is usually large—must endure the hardships.

"In the city of Ann Arbor there is not a place down town where a person can get a drink of cold water, unless he be fortunate enough to have friends in some of the stores, who keep a tank for their own use. Why could not a drinking fountain be placed on the court house square near the cool spring supply that has been so thoughtfully placed for horses?"

"Will not the city Council look into this matter, and not oblige men to go to a saloon for a cold drink this hot weather?"

Next Thursday being the fifth in this month, the W. C. T. U. will hold their regular meeting at 3 p. m. The ladies promise themselves a little treat in the shape of something cool and refreshing.

OPERA HOUSE SOLD.

Louis J. Lisemer the Purchaser.

Ann Arbor will be surprised to learn that the opera house block has changed hands and that Editor Louis J. Lisemer is now the owner. Negotiations which were completed last Saturday night had been carried on so quietly that few persons suspected that any change was going to be made. The block has heretofore been owned by the White estate, of Utica, New York, and is a very valuable piece of property. The opera house itself has, however, been very disappointing to the people of Ann Arbor for many much needed repairs have not been made, and the whole management has been a subject of much criticism. Now, however, there is prospect of a great change. Mr. Lisemer will proceed at once to renovate the old house, make many improvements and produce a theater of which Ann Arbor may be proud.

THIEF ENTERS THE HOUSE OF A. M. CLARK.

Chased Out by a Lady—Captured in a Tree.

One of the boldest robberies attempted in this city for years occurred Saturday morning at the house of A. M. Clark on South Division street.

Several relatives from out of town were stopping at Mr. Clark's house and it is thought the thief knew of this fact and figured on a big haul. His plan was to walk boldly into the house about 9 o'clock in the morning and help himself. He had proceeded so far as to go through the rooms of the second story and had secured two valuable watches, two purses, one diamond and one opal ring, when a daughter of Mr. Clark came up stairs and seeing the big negro in her room, asked what he was doing there. The thief did not reply but started off on the run. Miss Clark followed him into the street and ran after him yelling "stop thief." Two boys on wheels heard the call and took up the chase following the man to Lower Town bridge where he escaped into the bushes. The police and sheriff's men took up the pursuit here and followed the man to Carpenter's Corners, five miles east of here, where he took refuge in a cherry tree and was captured.

The negro is Lewis Peek, an ex-convict, who a few weeks ago finished a term in the Detroit work house and has been hanging around here since.

Au Sable Woman Leaves Her Husband—Comes to This City.

Marshal Sweet had another chance to act as peacemaker last week. On Thursday he received the following letter from Charles W. Witter, of Au Sable:

"My wife Bertha left me on July 17, and left word that she was going to Bay City. She took with her our little girl, 2 years old, and left me with our 4-year-old boy. I wired the chief of police at Bay City, and he says she left for Ann Arbor. So far as I know, she is a good, respectable woman. Do your best to locate her, for I am almost crazy about it."

Marshal Sweet and Patrolman Armbruster had no trouble in finding Mrs. Witter who had arrived in the city that morning. She was taken to the police office and there told her side of the story. Her husband, she said, suspected her of unfaithfulness, and accused her continually. She declares that she is innocent and will not stand such treatment. Mr. Sweet talked with the woman, advising her to return home for the sake of her children. She said she would remain here about three weeks and talked as though she might then go back to Au Sable. Mrs. Witter is a young woman and remarkably pretty.

Pontiac Post Story.

Wilbur Harris, foreman of the Cooper stock farm of Birmingham, now has to wear eye-glasses when he reads.

A pair of gigantic hawks nested every year in a tree on the Cooper farm, and caused a falling off in the chicken crop for a mile or two around. Harris located their nest, 40 feet high, and climbed up to it. "Here are three young hawks," he called to Charley Allen, who stood below with a gun. Just then there was a swish and a scream in the air, as the female hawk dashed into the climbers face, the left claw tearing his forehead as the right talon sank deeply in the flesh around Harris' left eye and almost forced the eye from its socket. Harris' body dropped back, but he still clutched the tree. He wore a wide felt hat, and the exultant bird flew screaming through the air with the hat in its talons. This saved Harris' life, and he escaped to the ground, drenched in blood, without further punishment. The hawk was killed afterwards and measured 52 inches from tip to tip of wings.

Tramps At Monroe.

Tuesday afternoon some employees of the Lake Shore overheard some tramps planning to "do up" both Strasburg and Ida that evening. Deputy Sheriff James Moore was notified and in turn he notified Sheriff Rodd, who immediately hitched up his horse and drove to Strasburg. It was about 10:30 when they reached Strasburg and hitched their horse under a tree on the outskirts. They were walking towards the store, and when passing the saw mill saw four men come out from behind the store. A dog had given warning of the approach of the officers. The officers ordered them to halt, but they made as if to separate and were called up in quick order at the point of a revolver. A team was procured and the four were brought to Monroe and lodged in jail.—Monroe Commercial.

Good Fish Story.

Conductor W. R. Hibbard, of the Ann Arbor road, is known to be a very reliable man. Within the last 10 days he spent a day at Crystal Lake, which is 10 miles this side of Frankfort. He with five other gentlemen, one of whom was D. Riley, the Ann Arbor commercial agent, went out on the lake in a small steamboat. "In two hours time," says Mr. Hibbard, "we caught 617 perch, weighing 412 pounds. Some perch weighed almost three pounds. The greatest trouble we had in catching the big fellows was to get at them. The big perch lay in 30 feet of water. Above them there was a great shoal of perch 8 and 10 inches long. The only way to get to the big ones was to throw out a line with a sinker as far as possible and draw in immediately and a big perch was on the line every time.—Owosso Argus.

The Modern Slot Machine.

The recognition given to the so-called "slot machine" in granting to an individual the privilege of using it for supplying drinking water to pedestrians in the streets of Chicago is likely to give that appliance the prominence it enjoyed centuries ago on the banks of the Nile. When the slot machine made its appearance a few years since it was described as a wonderful invention that was destined to do away with the newsboy, the bootblack and other vendors of small articles. The adoption of the device for furnishing drinking water at the World's Fair was regarded as a wonderful appliance to meet the necessities or wants of the people. And yet the slot machine was in common use thousands of years ago. In Hiero's "Spiritalia," which was published in the seventeenth century, a description is given of a closed vessel in use in the temples of Egypt, in which the sacred water was kept. The machine had a slot in the top and when five drachmas were dropped in a valve opened and a small quantity of the water flowed out. Then the valve closed automatically, to await the arrival of the next worshiper. It is probable that the modern machines may be more ornamental than those in use in the Egyptian temples so long ago, but it is not likely that they do their work any better than those that caught the drachmas of worshipping followers of the sun god in days when cats were divine and dogs were believed to have souls.

Novel Use for Tidal Power.

Various plans have been suggested at different times for the utilization of the energy developed by the rise and fall of the tides, but the intermittent character of the power has usually prevented any satisfactory solution of the problem. There is, however, one importance in which tide power has been quite successfully applied in a very simple manner. Along the river front at Liverpool there is a tendency for the accumulation of all silt against the dock walls, requiring occasional dredging for its removal. Instead of using scoop dredges, this mud is removed at different periods by the use of tide power in the following manner: Along the base of the dock walls is laid a pipe perforated with holes, directed outward, this pipe being connected with the interior of the dock system and suitable valves being provided to permit or check the flow of water. When the tide is very low, and, consequently, the head of water measured from the surface in the docks is at its greatest, a sudden opening of the connection permits a rapid flushing action by the water escaping through the holes in the pipe at the base of the walls, scouring out the mud and driving it out into the river to be carried away. As the tides at Liverpool average about twenty-five feet or more, it is evident that this simple form of dredging apparatus may be very effective, and as the tides chosen for using it must be selected when the supply of water is greatest, it does not interfere with the regular use of the docks. Ultimately, no doubt, the introduction of practical and economical forms of power storage will render the equalization of tide power commercially practicable, but at the present time this example serves to demonstrate the fact that solar and lunar attraction, as expressed by the tides, have been harnessed in a small way at least.

Surprising Gains and Losses of Flesh

PEOPLE WHO LOSE FLESH AND GAIN IT AGAIN.

Weight, Like Money, is Easy to Lose and Hard to Regain.

From the New Era, Greensburg, Ind.

There is probably no man better known in Dearborn and Ohio counties than Mr. O. H. Miller, of Aurora, Ind., bookkeeper for Chambers, Stevens & Co., the large dry goods house.

Mr. Miller was born and reared in Ohio county, where he spent 20 years in succession in public office. Three times he was the people's choice for Auditor of the county, and twice their choice for clerk. According to the law at that time the clerk or auditor could not be elected two terms in succession, four years being a term. He was first elected auditor, then clerk, auditor again, and clerk again, until he had been elected five times. This is the only instance of the kind ever known in the state.

Becoming aged (he is 63) and broken down in health, Mr. Miller desired it advisable to retire from public service. His health became very poor, and he went to Aurora to live with his daughter. About two years ago Mr. Miller was taken sick with malarial fever, and was confined to his bed five months; it was more than a year before he was able to get out. The sickness left him with rheumatism and catarrh of the stomach, which brought on palpitation of the heart. Time wore on, and he did not get better, but grew worse. He was overcome with general debility, was all run down, his blood being poor and in a watery condition. Speaking of his case Mr. Miller said: "The longer my troubles ran on the worse they grew. Nothing seemed to benefit me. I kept continually getting worse. My suffering was unbearable, and being quite old, I probably succumbed more quickly to the effects. I suffered almost continual pain, being unable to eat a full meal or enjoy an entire night's sleep since I was first taken with the fever."

"I had fallen off fifty pounds in weight. I looked like a mere skeleton. During this time six physicians had attended me at different times, but none of them did me the least good, although two were specialists on such cases. From the city they all said there would never be benefited at all by anything, and it was useless for me to expect it. I felt that my time had come, and my daughter, Mrs. P. P. Stultz, of Jeffersonville, came to spend my last days with me. My daughter's husband, Mr. Stultz, has been superintendent of the Jeffersonville city schools for eight years. Their daughter, who had been quite low, had recently recovered by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so she urged me as a last resort to try this medicine. I finally consented to do so. This was in August, 1895. I began taking the medicine at once, taking fourteen boxes, using the last about six months ago. After the first half dozen boxes I noticed a decided change, and when I had finished I could sleep well, and my appetite was good. There was a general improvement. My blood became new and nourishing, and now is in a good, healthy condition. I feel as well as ever, and I am sure I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Col. C. V. R. Pond in his semi-annual report as Assistant adjutant-general and assistant quartermaster-general of the Michigan G. A. R. says there are no delinquent posts in the department. The losses: By death, 177; by honorable discharge, 36; by transfer, 133; by suspension, 572; by surrender of charter, three posts and 43 members, making a total loss of 961 members. This leaves the showing for the department at the present time, 383 posts, 16,038 members. Col. Pond reports the inquiries being made as to the national encampment at Buffalo in August, as a very good reason for anticipating the largest turnout of Michigan veterans since the Detroit gathering in 1891.

Laws of Teaching.

(1) "There is no school," says Mr. J. M. Greenwood, "unless the father, the mother, the teacher and the pupil keep school together. (2) Know thoroughly the subject to be taught and explain to the pupil why you teach it. (3) Gain and keep the attention of the pupils. Excite their interest. (4) In your teaching use language that your pupils understand. (5) Begin with the known, then go by easy steps to the unknown. Take the whole class with you. (6) Excite self-activity in the pupils, and lead each to discover truth. Show the class how to study. (7) In each lesson let a habit be made, and then have pupils fix points already made, the conclusions reached, and the premises upon which the conclusion is based. (8) The teaching must touch the whole nature of the child and stimulate to higher action and more industrious habits of work, of silence, of obedience, honesty and truthfulness. Three-fourths of education is a habit of work."

A Murder Near Ionia.

Moses Walker, a bachelor, who lived two miles west of Ionia, opposite the state house of correction, was shot and instantly killed by Wesley Bennett, a farm hand on an adjoining farm. Bennett had been keeping company with Lydia Vivian, Walker's niece, and they had just returned from the city. The woman jumped out of the buggy just as Walker came out into the road. He ordered Bennett away, having previously objected to his presence, and is alleged that he threw a piece of brick at the horse. Bennett refused to go and drew a revolver from which he fired three shots at Walker, all of which took effect, the third striking the heart. Bennett skipped home and was changing horses, apparently in flight, when the sheriff arrested him.

Care of the Cow.

It is by physicians and scientists considered of the utmost importance that the milk supply be regulated and watched over with a thousand times more vigilance than has ever before been done. Tuberculosis may get firmly rooted in the cow's system and continue there for a long time before any danger is suspected. First of all things it is necessary that a healthy cow be selected, then that she have every advantage of healthful conditions. Crowding, dampness and darkness are serious faults in the buildings where cows are kept. Milk for bottle babies should not be furnished from cows kept in badly ventilated and ill-smelling buildings. A very small proportion of the milk furnished to cities is fit for the use of infants. If the present state of things continues there will of necessity be a revolution in society and consumers will demand the enactment of sanitary laws as regards cows, and will insist that every regulation be complied with.

Peter McNally, of Boston, swam across the English channel from Dover, Eng., to within three miles of France when he became blinded by the salt water and his hands and legs swollen so terribly from the cold that he had to give up, and was taken on board a boat which accompanied him.

SPECIAL MARKET LETTER

The passing of the tariff bill and the subsidence of the Turk have removed two elements of uncertainty which have for a long time disturbed business and financial circles, leaving nothing in the way of a sensational character to retard the return of conditions under which natural causes will once more become operative, except the great miners' strike, which, although its speedy termination has frequently been prophesied, still continues with unabated vigor, and promises to become an element of solicitous anxiety before it ends.

The stock and bond market has responded to the changed conditions and brokers report a gratifying improvement in business. The railway share market has been stimulated by additional crop reports, operators in Wall street evidently believing that the only thing necessary to assure increased dividends is abundant crops. Remunerative freight earnings, however, are dependent as much on the price obtained for grain as on the quantity produced, and in order to maintain stable prices for stocks paying prices for grain must obtain.

As the successful issue of stock speculation depends upon the course of the grain markets, the latter offer better inducements than the former and should be objects of greater interest to business men and producers, especially throughout the great west. The necessity of maintaining fair prices for the products of the farm in order to assure returns on railway stocks and bonds will appeal to the judgment of, and enlist the support of powerful operators having large pecuniary interests in railway securities and assure their active co-operation in any bull campaign that promises success.

There are significant signs of such support to our wheat market, and it has been vigorous enough to rally it from every important reaction and confuse the more aggressive bears. The bull campaign has been aided by natural causes and has been managed so adroitly that the closing week of the July option finds the trade divided in opinion as to whether or not there has existed any organized bull contingent. The steady depletion of stocks, the reports of European damage and the tardiness of the movement of new wheat have been sufficient causes to warrant an advance without the assistance of anyone contemplating a squeeze, and both bulls and bears are undecided as to the final termination of the July deal. The closing days of the month are awaited with anxiety by some and curiosity by many.

Speculatively the market remains in about the state it has been for some time, the bears becoming aggressive whenever it appears weak and running to cover as soon as any strength develops. The majority of bulls accept profits whenever there are evidences of reactionary breaks, and the market is kept fairly well evened up; this policy prevents any runaway advance on account of a rush to cover by a large short interest, or a disastrous break on the competitive selling of longs on stop orders or exhausted margins.

Domestic crop news are all that could be desired, save from portions of the northwest, where the rainfall has been greater than was beneficial. There have been reports of damage by chinch bugs over limited areas in a few localities.

Foreign markets have been irregular, Liverpool showing a tendency to advance promptly with ours, whereas Continental prices have ruled weak, Paris being disposed to decline. The apathy there is probably due to the official French crop report on condition July 15, which fails to corroborate the sensational claims so frequently reiterated. The report gives the condition of winter wheat as good in 27 departments, fair in 37, possible in 12, and middling in 8; spring wheat very good in 2 departments, good in 16, fair in 24, possible in 7, and middling in 1.

Advices from Canada state that unless caught by frost the wheat yield of that country, including Manitoba, will furnish an exportable surplus 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bu greater than last year. The movement of wheat at the southwest is being retarded because of the stacking of the grain by farmers, who anticipate better prices. The fact that they are bid much more for their wheat than they expected before harvest induces them to hoard their crop. Threshing has been delayed in the southeast and in the Mississippi valley by rain.

Corn is again attracting attention and may at any time become excited and active in consequence of supply and demand relations and the speculative state of the market. There is undoubtedly a very liberal short interest and several large long lines. Considerable corn has been sold to arrive, but moves slowly on account of difficulty in obtaining cars. There is evidently less disposition among western dealers to sell, and farmers are disposed to hold back reserves until the new crop is assured. The export demand continues urgent and any material abatement of the movement from the west would alarm shorts and inaugurate a bull market. Export contracts and freight engagements cannot be filled by sales for future delivery.

The visible supply of grain in the United States and Canada shows the following changes for the week: Wheat increased 708,000 bu, corn 1,049,000 bu and oats decreased 352,000 bu.

France's Colony of Anarchists.

The spirit of active anarchy is much more common in Europe than most people imagine. There are 2,000 persons in France who are set down as anarchists and are constantly watched by the police of the various European countries. It is estimated that three-fourths of France's anarchists are of foreign birth. Italy contributes the largest number, and Switzerland comes next, with Germany and Austria following. The anarchists are made up from all classes, varying from day laborers to highly educated professional men.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

The widespread confidence that there will be a marked revival in general trade in the fall continues to grow, and with it material evidence that it is well founded. Chicago jobbers in clothing, dry goods and shoes, and manufacturers of these and elsewhere report that fall business has begun, which is much earlier than usual. The end of uncertainty regarding duties on imports gives greater confidence alike to those who have opposed, and those who have favored the change. The one retarding force—the strike of the coal miners—has caused the closing of a few manufacturing works for want of fuel, but negotiations for settlement are still pushed with hope. It is notable that the rise in wheat came in the face of highly encouraging crop news which is not disputed and has for support nothing but foreign conditions and demand.

PHILLIPS' SNAKE STORY.

The Reptile's Greed Put It in Great Danger.

The Danville Advocate begins its series of snake stories with the following, told by John Phillips, a Boyle county farmer: Phillips told of a very fine piece of asparagus land back of Junction City. Its owner, desiring to dispose of the property, had cleared it of all unsightly growths and debris and surrounded it with a very fine fence. One day, said Phillips, a huge rattlesnake, while meandering over the place, encountered a fat, plump rabbit and swallowed it. After having put away the morsel it glanced through a crack in the fence and noticed upon the other side of the obstruction another very fine rabbit. The crack in the fence was large enough to admit of the passage of the snake's body, and cautiously crawling through it soon gobbled up hare No. 2. After this second meal the snake concluded that it was time to return to its den and take an after-dinner nap, but here a most unexpected difficulty presented itself. The snake had not gone entirely through the crack in the fence when it started for the second rabbit, for the first one swallowed had so enlarged its body that it could not go all the way; and, likewise, after the second rabbit had disappeared the front half of the reptile could not, for the same reason be withdrawn, and thus it was imprisoned, unable to go either backward or forward. Phillips, after watching the snake's desperate but futile effort to liberate himself, put an end to his sufferings by striking it over the head with a stick. But the interesting feature of the incident didn't end here. Phillips, after killing the snake, ripped open its hide, and the two rabbits then hopped out and scrambled off without loss of time, more or less frightened, but otherwise none the worse off because of their thrilling Jonah-like adventure.

Three Drowned in Detroit River.

Three Detroiters, William W. Shier, a young attorney; Francis E. Russell, a letter carrier and superintendent of St. Thomas' Episcopal Sunday school, and Edward, the young son of John E. Stubensky, a letter carrier, were drowned at Sugar Island, down Detroit river, by the capsizing of a rowboat in a whirlpool. Francis Russell, the father, and Jesse N. Russell, brother of the drowned letter carrier, had very narrow escapes from losing their lives, but were rescued.

A Chicago dispatch says that a most gigantic trust or combination of capital is about to be formed by pooling the interests of the Standard Oil Co., the leather, sugar, tobacco, whisky, paint and oil trusts, with a total capital represented of $1,000,000,000.

THURSDAY, JULY 29, 1897.

Now that the Democratic orators and editors have been reduced to the single subject for an attack upon the tariff bill, of its relation to the sugar trust, it is well enough to state some plain facts bearing upon this subject.

The bill, as a whole, is probably more satisfactory to the people than any tariff measure which has passed Congress in the recollection of the present generation, and the features of it relating to the sugar schedule will be found, when thoroughly understood, as satisfactory as its most commended features.

It was generally conceded when the bill passed the House that it was not in any way advantageous to the trust, but that, on the contrary, it took away from the trust much of the advantage which it had under the Wilson law.

Stripped of all technicalities, the cold facts are that as the bill left the House the rates on refined sugar were 12 1/2 cents per hundred pounds greater than the rates on raw sugar. Of course the rates on different grades of raw sugar were different, but taking the number of pounds of any grade which were required to make a hundred pounds of refined sugar it was found that the rates were on an average of 12 1/2 cents per hundred pounds less than those on refined sugar. This means that the sugar refiners of the country, whether in the trust or out of it, were allowed a difference of 12 1/2 cents per hundred pounds, or 1/4 of a cent a pound, difference between raw sugar when imported and refined sugar when imported, thus giving them an opportunity to import raw sugar at 1/4 of a cent a pound less than the rates at which refined sugar can be imported. It is generally conceded that the cost of refining sugar is not less than 1/4 of a cent a pound, so that the rates really given to the sugar refiners are simply the bare difference between refined and unrefined sugars of the cost of refining.

It is well known that the rates adopted by the Senate were more advantageous to the sugar refiners, but it is a fact that the rates agreed upon by the conferees made precisely the same difference between raw and refined sugars that the House bill made when it was passed by that body. The conference report did increase the rates on refined sugar slightly, but it also increased the rates on raw sugar, thus making the difference in the rate of duty between raw and refined, or the "differential," as it is called, precisely what the House bill made it originally, 12 1/2 cents per hundred pounds, or 1/4 of a cent a pound.

But, says the objector, if the conference report gave to the sugar trust no advantage, why was it that sugar-trust stock advanced during the time that the bill was in consideration by the conferees and after it was presented to the public?

The answer to this is simple enough. The sugar trust, knowing that the new bill would certainly advance the rate of duty on sugars as a protection to American producers, has been bringing into the country as rapidly as possible sugar in enormous quantities, getting it in, of course, under the comparatively low rates of the Wilson law. It has scoured the world for sugar, and had in stock by the time the conference report was presented to the public over 700 thousand tons of raw sugar, or, in round numbers, 1,500,000,000 pounds. Think of it! Enough sugar to load seventy thousand cars, or to load three thousand five hundred freight trains of twenty cars each or to make one continuous train over fifty miles in length. On every pound of this sugar which it had in stock it was perfectly apparent that it would make whatever profit there was between the tariff rates of the Wilson law and the increased tariff rates named by the Dingley law, or an aggregate profit calculated at 12 million dollars.

Is it surprising that sugar stock went up in view of the fact that this organization would make upon the sugar which it had brought into the country 12 million dollars by the mere advance which the framers of this bill have found it necessary to make in tariff rates in order to protect the sugar producers of the United States and bring a revenue to the Government.

But, the objector will say, everybody familiar with this subject knew that the sugar trust had all this sugar in stock, and since this fact was well known this does not account for the sudden rise in sugar-trust stock which followed the announcement of the agreement of the conference committee.

This is true, but the explanation of the sudden advance, which was caused by the profit thus assured to the sugar trust through the enormous stock on hand, is found in the fact that Secretary Gage had recommended to Congress the placing of an internal revenue tax of one cent per pound on all unrefined sugar in the United States when the new tariff law should go into effect, the object being to compel the trust to pay to the Government a tax of one cent per pound on all this 1,500,000,000 pounds of sugar which it had accumulated waiting the advance which it could make by the new tariff. Had Secretary Gage's recommendation been accepted by the conferees and by Congress it would have compelled the trust to pay in internal revenue taxes probably 15 million dollars upon the sugar which it had piled up in its warehouses. The conferees and Congress, however, did not adopt Secretary Gage's recommendation, for reasons which they looked upon as entirely sufficient, and the moment this fact became known—first, that the sugar trust would make this large profit by reason of the increased duty on sugar, and, second, that it would not be compelled to pay out any of that profit in the proposed internal revenue tax upon its sugar in stock—those who calculated the profits which it would make during the coming year on this enormous mass of sugar which it holds, saw readily that the profits would be great and the dividends large. The result was the advance in sugar-trust stock about which there was so much talk and denunciation. This advance was not due to any permanent advantage which the new tariff bill gives the trust over the old law, but, on the contrary, the difference between raw and refined sugars under the new bill is, as already indicated, 12 1/2 cents per hundred, while under the Wilson law it is 22 1/2 cents per hundred pounds, thus making it apparent at once that the permanent "differential" or difference in tariff rates which the sugar refiners get under the new law is far less than that under the Wilson law.

The sudden jump in sugar stock was due entirely to the knowledge of the rejection of the proposition of Secretary Gage to tax the raw sugar in the country, and if his recommendation had been accepted by Congress this sudden rise would never have occurred.

At 4:06 o'clock Saturday afternoon President McKinley signed the bill that is to regulate the tariff duties of this country for some years to come. Forty Senators voted in favor of acceptance of the measure as approved by the conference committee; thirty voted against it.

Never before were the promises of the platform of a national convention so quickly fulfilled. It is not yet five months since Major McKinley underwent the ceremony that endowed him with the title and functions of President of the United States, and today the measure to the accomplishment of which he was pledged is law. By the solid vote of the Republicans in Congress, aided by the votes of some who are of the Democratic faith, the whole financial policy of the country has been reformed to that of Washington and Jefferson, of Monroe and Jackson, of Clay and Lincoln. The Clevelandite revival of Calhounism is repudiated and the country now collects tariffs upon imports under the provisions of a law the title of which is "A bill to provide revenue for the government and to encourage the industries of the United States." The last previous Republican measure of finance was entitled "An act to reduce revenue and to regulate tariff duties;" it is known as the "McKinley act." In 1890 more than thirty years of protective policy had insured large yearly surpluses that made reduction of revenue necessary. In 1897 four years of Democratic mismanagement have resulted in yearly deficits that make an increase of revenue a necessity. The increase, however, thanks to the Republican majority and to the survivors of the Randallite Democracy, is "to encourage American industries," as well as to add to the revenue of government.

It is not to be expected that the great prosperity of the McKinley tariff years will return instantly. The large imports of the past few months, estimated by experts as equivalent to a year's supply, must be disposed of before a full renewal of commercial activity is observable. But the dawn of prosperity already is visible, and its brightness will continue to increase.—Frier Ocean.

Now that the tariff matter is settled we may expect our Democratic friends will begin to find fault unless we have flush times at once. They will forget that while the tariff bill has been delayed by democratic wind, importers have laid in an immense stock of foreign goods at free trade prices, and that as a result it will be many long months before there will be a demand for American made goods. Just have patience for, this tariff question has been settled and settled right and it will be four years before it will be possible to change it. By that time people will have derived enough benefit from it to insure the election of a congress and president favorable to a continuance of the present policy.

Says There's a Vacancy. When Mr. M. J. Cavanaugh was elected Commissioner of Schools to fill out Mr. Wedemeyer's unexpired term, it did not occur to anyone that by accepting the office Mr. Cavanaugh would thereby forfeit his position as School Examiner. There were some who, when they gave the matter a second thought, looked at it otherwise. To settle the matter definitely, Judge Newkirk wrote to Attorney General Maynard for his opinion. The answer was that Mr. Cavanaugh had vacated his office as examiner. Mr. Lester, it is expected, will call the board together this afternoon to elect a successor to Mr. Cavanaugh.

Something Different. The average trip to the sea shore or northern resorts is much like all other summer trips in many particulars, but a trip to the South in the heated season in search of a cool place is something different altogether. Different in its lack of hot noon-days [they don't have sun strokes in the South]. Different in that it is comparatively inexpensive. Different in the absence of perspiring crowds of humanity everywhere about one. Different in altitude—you can go up thousands instead of hundreds of feet above sea-level and get the bracing air which brings you home again invigorated.

$8.00 is the round trip rate for a delightful trip to that famous Southern mountain resort—Asheville, the center of what is known as "The Land of the Sky." This via the Queen & Crescent Route, and the Southern R'y from Cincinnati, Saturday, August 7th. Tickets at this rate are good 10 days to return.

Sixteen hours ride through the Blue Grass, across High Bridge, down the Emory and through the mountains of East Tennessee to the French Broad river and for some 40 miles along that beautiful mountain stream. The Asheville altitude is 2,500 feet, with protecting peaks double that height, giving that peculiar beauty and dryness for which it is noted throughout the world. Sunshine for 300 days a year; Perfect hotel service; The most elaborate private residence and domain in America, at Baltimore; Scenery unsurpassed and on a scale of actual grandeur.

Write to us for books describing Asheville, we will send them free.

Nervous

People often wonder why their nerves are so weak; why they get tired so easily; why they start at every slight but sudden sound; why they do not sleep naturally; why they have frequent headaches, indigestion and nervous

Dyspepsia

The explanation is simple. It is found in that impure blood which is continually feeding the nerves upon refuse instead of the elements of strength and vigor. In such condition opiate and narcotic compounds simply deaden and do not cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla feeds the nerves pure, rich, red blood; gives natural sleep, perfect digestion, is the true remedy for all nervous troubles.

Binder's and sold two pair of shoes for a small sum. They were at once suspected. Sheriff Jerry was notified and when the tramps came out one was arrested. The other, seeing his partner arrested, made lively time up the street. A young man standing near by heard the sheriff call to stop the man and stack out his foot and tripped the tramp. The officer by this time had come up and found in the tramp's hand a .32 caliber revolver. Both tramps were well armed.

Importance of Regular Living.
A question has lately arisen as to the increase or the reverse in nervous diseases, some arguing that the cause of the supposed increase in such nervous diseases lies in the increased demand made by the conditions of modern life upon the brain. It is quite true that the conditions of life are very different nowadays to what they were a few years ago. We now live in a high pressure age, and in one of keen competition, when greater effort is needed in every branch of life to attain a successful position, when the brain is always working, and there is constant tension. Such conditions, it will be perfectly obvious to all, are not favorable to a diminution of nervous diseases, but rather the reverse. At the same time it cannot be denied that the comforts of life have increased; we have better sanitation, cleaner houses, and fresher air. There can be no question that men of regular habits are healthier, happier, live longer and do more than those who obey caprice and impulse. The adoption of hygienic habits saves the nervous system an enormous amount of friction and waste. It preserves vitality. Regularity economizes not only physical stamina, but time as well. The man who knows no system in the details of his life, who exhausts nature at the instance of a passing whim, who drinks and smokes to excess, who wastes the talents bestowed upon him, is the one who must sooner or later fall a victim to disease. Regularity and moderation in all things should be the motto of life, and it should be remembered that regularity does not necessarily preclude the enjoyment of variety. A certain amount of variety prevents man from becoming a mere machine, but variety should not interfere with those regular habits of life which are necessary to the maintenance of health.

The Mother's Pay Day.

What pay does a hard-working mother of a family receive for her labor at the end of a week? The husband may bring home his regular wages. Some of the children may be old enough to earn theirs. But the mother, what is her pay for her days of toil and often nights of anxiety? Well, she is either paid in love or not paid at all. The majority of mothers are perfectly satisfied with the simple recompense of loving appreciation. If any mother doesn't receive that much it's an awful pity.
It's a sad thing when the mother comes down sick with overwork or worry, or because some little weakness or disease has been neglected until it gets to be alarming. It should never be allowed to get to this point. She ought to be looked after right away. She needs the help of common sense medical treatment. Of course no one medicine will cure everything. A medicine must be specially adapted to its particular purpose.
If the digestive organs or the liver are out of order Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a perfect and scientific remedy. His "Favorite Prescription" is especially devised for weaknesses and diseases of the womanly organs; and it is the most potent remedy for these troubles which has ever been invented.
Where both these conditions exist, these two medicines taken alternately constitute a thoroughly scientific course of treatment, which has been marvelously successful with thousands of despondent, debilitated and nervous women.
"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," Golden Medical Discovery and "Pellets," writes Mrs. J. E. Lawrence, South Hero, Grand Isle Co., Vt. "My trouble was a perfect and scientific disease. My nervous system was all out of order. I had a change of life and had flowing spittle. I took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, seven bottles of "Golden Medical Discovery," and seven small vials of "Pellets." The doctors did not help me any. I could not sleep night nor day. I suffered everything before I began to take Dr. Pierce's medicines. When I began to take them I weighed 100 pounds. Now I weigh 145 pounds. I can now do all my work."

Miss Eva L. Herbert and Miss Anna Reilly are spending their vacation in Detroit, Cleveland, and other places on the lakes.

Prof. A. C. Blakelee and wife, of the Michigan School for the Blind, at Lansing, are visiting at the home Mrs. Sarah E. Marshall, 38 Monroe-st.

WAITING FOR THE END.

Up the stairway which leads to the basement of the building floated a soft, tremulous whisper of music, says the Boston Journal. The idler who heard it followed the clew of melody until he found an aged colored man, whose withered fingers caressed the strings of a banjo. His lips were slightly parted with a smile and he looked upward with half-closed eyes. When he paused in his performance the auditor applauded and good timed:
"Having a good time all to yourself, uncle?"
"Yessuh. I done had er little 'spare time an' I done put it in practice-in'."
"That don't sound much like the ordinary banjo music."
"No, sub. Dat's er different kin'."
"Can't you play reels and breakdowns. Maybe they're too quick for an old man like yourself?"
"Too quick for me? No no-deedy. I done got clean pas' dem long ago. I's got mo' on my min' dan heip'n' de young folks twis' dem foots at er pahty. Dem dat yoh wus lis'nin' to was hymn-chunes."
"Hymn tunes on a banjo?"
"I done de bes' I could," he replied, apologetically.
"But what gave you the idea?"
"De good book," he answered, reverentially. "I's gettin' long in y'uh. I is, an' when I called ter mind 'bout de hahps' o' gold it done set me ter thinkin'." I didn't had no early 'vantages, an' I doesn't speck I could er lun ter play on de hahp nohow. But I ain't 'scouraged, an' whenever I gits de chance I comes hyun an' tetches de strings, 'cause I's sho dat wen I shows 'em I ain't gwinter 'sturb de hammones dey'll let me set back some place whah I won't be noticed, an' play 'long wif 'em in de way dat I've used to."

Wished to Be Prepared.

"I wish, my dear," said Mr. Frankfort to his wife, "that you would let the hired man bring my rifle down from the attic while I get some other things ready."
"Your rifle?" she repeated. "Surely you are not going hunting?"
"No at all."
"As he spoke he took a bowie knife from his sheath and began to sharpen it carefully on a whetstone.
"What is that knife for?" asked his wife.
"Well, I hope I shall not have occasion to use it, but it is best to be prepared."
"As he said this he examined his seven shot revolver, and filled the side pocket of his coat with cartridges. By this time the hired man had brought the rifle, and Mr. Frankfort made sure that he had a good supply of ammunition for the weapon."
"My dear," begged his wife, "won't you tell me what all this means? You say you are not going hunting. What do you need of all these weapons?"
"My darling," replied the brave man, "do not be anxious. It is more than probable that I shall return alive, but if you will find my will made, and my life insurance policy will valid. Kiss me, dear, and hope for the best."
"But where, oh where, are you going?"
"Have you forgotten that I am a member of the Kentucky legislature, my dear? I go to attend a regular session."

CATARRH
 It has been held that consumption is hereditary, and the fact that one person of a family had died with consumption was considered a sure sign that others of that family could not escape it. This is partly true and partly untrue. A man with weak lungs is likely to transmit that weakness to his children. But there is no reason in the world why the weakness should be allowed to develop. Keep the lungs full of rich, red, wholesome blood, and the weakness will disappear. Decaying tissues will be thrown off and new material will be added until the lungs are well and perfectly strong again. This is the thing that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does. This is what makes it cure 95 per cent. of all cases of consumption where it is taken according to directions. It searches out disease germs wherever they may be in the body and forces them out of the system. It supplies the blood with rich, life-giving properties. It makes the appetite good, digestion perfect. Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Advice," profusely illustrated.

THEY CHANGE THEIR TIME.
Watches Said to Reflect the Temperaments of Their Owners.
 There appears to be some occult connection between a watch and its owner. Else why should a timepiece go at one speed on one person and at a different one on another? Read what a jeweler has to say about the matter, says the Home Journal. "I used to have a friend who had an excellent Swiss watch, while I had one of another make. By mutual consent at one time we exchanged watches and though they had gone all right before they changed their gait entirely, mine running five minutes ahead in a couple of days and his running five minutes behind. There was ten minutes' difference in our temperaments. But that is nothing compared to the difference between some people. Sometimes a watch that will run well on one man will not go with another and there are some people who cannot get a watch that will run on them at all. I remember a good many years ago I had a man come to my place with an old-fashioned English lever watch to be repaired. I had some very nice gold watches in stock at the time and as he looked well off I tried to sell him one but he laughed and said if any of the gold watches I had in the store would run twenty-four hours in his pocket he would give me twice what I asked for it. He said he had tried all sorts of gold watches and had never been able to get one that would run while he had it. He had experimented with his brother's watch only a little while before, he said, and it cost him $3.50 to have it demagnetized after he had carried it in his pocket two days. Most silver watches acted the same way with him but the old English watch he was carrying had a double inside case to it and worked fairly well. I've never been able to tell whether the average watch will run faster when it is in its owner's possession or not. There seems to be no rule on the subject, but I can never regulate a watch on my swingboard there and then give it to a customer and have it keep good time. Then there is a variation with a change of vitality. A watch will ordinarily run slower the longer it is carried after cleaning, because the oil dries and the bearings are harder, but I have had customers come to me and say their watches had started up and gone to gaining time several months after they had been cleaned. I just tell them I can't account for it except on a theory of a change in their own vitality and temperament. It's one of those things that cannot be explained but it is true, nevertheless."

An Easy Winner.
 "We used to have some great times there boat racing on Sunday," began the man who had helped build a southern railroad. "There was a good deal of money flying around, betting was as common as eating, and it was all right to turn a sharp trick if you didn't get caught at it. I had a partner, and we worked a scheme that coined money for a time. He never entered the races, but always backed me heavily, and we split the winnings. He had invented a miniature propeller with a big spring as a motive power, on the same principle as a watch. At the side of the boat was a little wharf rat used to dive under my boat and attach this machine. When the starting gun sent us off I only had to touch a button, the propeller set to work, and I could regulate my speed by rowing as the situation demanded. I was a champion, and I won money against all comers, until the boy was seized with a cramp one day. He came up yelling, holding the machine over his head. My partner and I escaped in the confusion and never went back." "It's odd," said a brawny and grizzled listener. "I joined that crowd just after you left, and there was a standin' offer of a thousand for any one that would bring you into camp. I was somethin' of an oarsman myself, but the company was a little too fast, so I dedicated a big catfish that was as strong as a yoke of steers. I had a collar with a ring on that I tached to a hook under the boat. Mr. Catfish would hitch himself on there when the gun cracked, an' I'll be darned if I didn't have to back water sometimes to keep from makin' express time. In my last race I capsize, and that darned fish just got skeered an' took th' boat down th' river like a rocket. I swum to th' other shore in a hal of bullets an' got away." The man who had told the first story solemnly removed his hat, and every other listener followed his example. "Take the money, pard," was all he could bring himself to say. —Detroit Free Press.

INTERESTING AND IMPORTANT NEWS MATTERS.
 Youngstown, O., and Vicinity Suffered Heavy Damage from a Cloudburst —Messages by Carrier Pigeons Say Andree Discovered the North Pole.

The North Pole Discovered.
 A special dispatch from Copenhagen says that a carrier pigeon has just been caught in the vicinity of Tromsøe island, near the north point of Norway, from which place Andree sailed in his balloon north pole expedition, with the following stamped upon its wing: "North pole passed; fifteenth." Another pigeon caught at Soveve, in Rifyke, carried the message, "North pole, 142° 14' 63," on its wings and is thought to be one of Andree's pigeons.

London: A keen interest is felt in geographical circles here as to the result of Andree's expedition and this is greatly increased by the arrival of the pigeons at Soveve and at Tromsøe island, though there is some doubt as to whether either bird came from Andree. I. Scott Keltie, secretary of the Royal Geographical society, says: "It is certain that if the wind were southerly when he ascended Andree would cross the polar basin and come out near the Bering straits. 142° w means the coast of North America and if such a wind prevailed, under the most favorable circumstances Andree would arrive there. If the inscription means this, it means also that Andree has passed right across the pole. There is no special anxiety felt here as to Andree's fate, because even if the balloon comes to grief Andree will be no worse off than Nansen was after leaving the Fram."

Cloudburst at Youngstown, O.
 A tremendous cloudburst struck the Mahoning valley near Youngstown, and Crab creek, a stream ordinarily 20 feet wide, became a rushing torrent 2,000 feet in width, flooding the entire valley and causing great damage, both in the city and along the railway lines. Several people are supposed to have been drowned. The entire county east and west for 20 miles was flooded and the damage will be enormous, the railroads being the heaviest losers. Many residences at Youngstown were flooded the occupants being taken away by the police and fire departments. The Mahoning Valley electric lines were flooded out and all the bridges washed away. The Catholic church at Niles was struck by lightning and nearly destroyed by fire, while business houses and manufacturing concerns were flooded out. Henry Myers, while standing in front of his residence, was struck by lightning and killed. Railroads were forced to completely suspend operations.

Crisis Has Come in the Miners' Strike.
 M. D. Hatchford, president of the United Mine Workers, has telegraphed from Fairmount, W. Va., to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, as follows: "On the fair soil of West Virginia peaceable assemblage has been forbidden and free speech suppressed. A crisis is upon us which must be met if we would escape total slavery. This is no longer a strike for justice, but a struggle against starvation, and every atom of nobility in human nature impels us to rise to the emergency. West Virginia is the field of action and here our forces must be converged. The miners here are eager, anxious to join in our movement for their emancipation, but are restrained by the fear of discharge and eviction. They are as much the property of their masters as were the black slaves before the guns of Sumter thundered the doom of chattel slavery. The millions of sturdy craftsmen of our country must be aroused. I therefore call upon you in behalf of the struggling miners to help us meet this crisis and achieve victory for the cause of labor."

The movement to present France with a statue of Washington as a gift of the American people has received a fresh impetus through a contribution and a strong letter from ex-Senator Bradbury, of Maine, now 96 years old. A joint proposal of binetism was presented to representatives of the British government on behalf of the United States and France by the ambassadors of those governments and the special commission appointed by the United States. The proposals were taken under advisement by the British cabinet, an answer to be given at a subsequent conference.

THE 55TH CONGRESS AT WORK
SENATE.—96th day.—The formal reading of the tariff conference report was concluded. The debate was spiritless in the main.
SENATE.—97th day.—The debate on the tariff conference report was participated in by Senators Chilton, of Texas; Jones, of Arkansas, and Pettigrew, of South Dakota, in opposition, while Mr. Aldrich took frequent occasion to defend the report. The credentials of the new Senator from Tennessee, Thomas B. Turley, who succeeds the late Senator Harris, were presented by his associate, Mr. Bate. Mr. Turley was sworn in at once. Mr. Tillman, of South Carolina, offered a resolution discharging the committee on contingent expenses from further consideration of the resolution for an investigation of alleged senatorial sugar speculation. Before anything could be said Mr. Jones, of Nevada, presented a report from the committee on the same resolution against an investigation. Mr. Tillman promptly asked that the report be read. He did not want it sidetracked by any parliamentary device, and he wished to secure a direct vote on the resolution. Mr. Gallinger objected, and the report went to the calendar. Shortly before the Senate adjourned Mr. Allison, in charge of the tariff bill, made a strong effort to have a time fixed for the final vote on the tariff conference report. Failing in this he gave notice that the session the following day would be protracted with a view to securing a vote. House.—Two important bills were passed. The first allows a partial suspension of the discriminating duties imposed on the vessels of foreign countries which impose similar duties on our vessels. The effect of the bill is to open the way for securing a market for American coal in Mexico, which is now supplied by English coals. The other bill is to create a civil government in Alaska, with an additional land office, which is made imperative by recent gold discoveries. Rep. C. W. Stone, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill to authorize the appointment of a monetary commission and to appropriate $100,000 for its expenses. This is the bill that will probably be passed by the House as a response to the special message of the President, which, it is understood, he will send to congress as soon as the tariff bill gets out of the Senate.

SENATE.—98th day.—The debate on the tariff conference report continued. Mr. Teller, of Colorado, making a vehement speech in which he not only denounced the tariff bill, but also attacked the Republican party. Senators White of California, and Pettus, of Alabama, spoke in opposition to the bill, and Senators Allen, of Nebraska, and Foraker, of Ohio, engaged in a heated personal colloquy in which Allen charged fraud in the Ohio elections of last year. It led to such epithets as "balderdash," and to pointed references to the methods of court "pettifoggers." The event of the day however was reached when Mr. Morgan, of Alabama, who has bitterly opposed the bill and obstructed its progress, presented a resolution that the Senate on the following day continue in session until a vote was taken on the bill. This was unanimously agreed to, and there were demonstrations of pleasure from Senators of the Republican side as they saw the path clear for the passage of the bill. House.—Three brief sessions were held owing to the uncertainty of Senate action on the tariff bill, but little business was transacted. A bill was passed to ratify the compact entered into between the states of South Dakota and Nebraska relative to the disputed boundary line.

SENATE.—99th day.—The tariff bill passed its last legislative stage at 3 p. m., when the Senate, by the decisive vote of 40 to 30, agreed to the conference report on the bill. The announcement of the result was greeted with enthusiastic applause by the crowded chamber. Although the result was a foregone conclusion yet this did not abate the eager interest attached to the close of a great contest. Early in the day the debate was listless, though enlivened at times with virulent criticism by Mr. Allen and by a speech from Mr. Burrows, of the finance committee. Messrs. Caffery, Morgan and Stewart occupied the time up to 3 o'clock, when the vote was promptly taken. This closed the great labor for which the 55th congress assembled in extraordinary session, and after stubborn resistance, at times threatening a deadlock, the Senate concurred with the House in a resolution for the final adjournment of the session at 9 p. m. The President's message for a currency commission was received from the House, but the House bill creating a commission was not acted upon. House.—The last session of the House was marked by many interesting events. In addition to the final act of the speaker in affixing his signature to the Dingley tariff bill, a bill providing for the creation of a currency commission was crowded through in the closing hours. The House recessed until after the Senate had adopted the tariff conference report, and as soon as the House reconvened the engrossed bill was signed and sent to the President. The demonstrations which marked these events were spontaneous and enthusiastic in the extreme, the galleries playing a significant part in them. When the President's message came in recommending the creation of a currency commission it was answered by the Republican leaders with great promptitude. By means of a special order the Stone bill introduced some days previously with the approval of the administration was brought to a vote and passed after an hour's debate, during which considerable feeling was manifested on both sides. As the final act of the session the speaker announced the appointment of the House committees.

Epidemic of Suicides in Detroit.
 Detroit had three suicides in one day. Mrs. Francis Schischko, 265 Brady street, was found by one of her sons dead in a rocking chair with a bullet hole in her forehead and her oldest son's revolver in her lap. She leaves five children and a husband from whom she had separated. An unknown man jumped upon the rail of the Detroit and Windsor ferry boat as it was leaving the dock and shouting "Here goes nothing" leaped into the river. He refused to hang on to life preservers thrown to him and soon drowned. Charles Witzke, a laborer, aged 58, sent his family, consisting of a wife and five children, to look at Ringling Bros.' circus parade, and then took advantage of their absence to end his life by hanging himself to a crossbeam in the garret.

Too True.
 "Pshaw! You never come to the point."
 The young girl seated at the table seemed nettled at his remark. Her face flushed, but she restrained her anger by biting her lip and giving sundry vicious little digs with her foot at the rug in front of her chair. Even the casual observer would have said that they were lovers. There was a look of complacent satisfaction on the face of the young man as he sat watching the girl. It was an expression that comes only to one when he realizes that the object of his love is wholly his own. The careless indifference of his tone showed that he felt secure in her love, and had no fear that an idle word dropped in jest would precipitate anything more serious than a lovers' quarrel—a mere trifle, which a honeyed word and a little caress at the proper time would smooth over in a moment. "Pshaw! You never come to the point."
 As the young girl remained seated at the table his words seemed to keep ringing in her ears. While they had angered her, she had never attempted to contradict him. Indeed, as the moments passed on she had ample opportunity to reflect that what he said was only too true.
 It was no wonder the impetuous lover, as he sat impatiently watching her, said that she never came to the point. She was a woman, and she was trying to sharpen a lead pencil.

Beware Of Mercury!

Mr. Henry Roth, of 1848 South 9th Street, St. Louis, was given the usual mercurial treatment for contagious blood poison. He was twice pronounced cured, but the disease returned each time, he was seized with rheumatic pains, and red lumps and sores covered his body.

"I was in a horrible fix," he says, "and the more treatment I received, the worse I seemed to get. A New York specialist said he could cure me, but his treatment did me no good whatever. I was stiff and full of pains, my left arm was useless so that I was unable to do even the lightest work. This was my condition when I began to take S. S. S., and a few bottles convinced me that I was being benefited. I continued the medicine, and one dozen bottles cured me sound and well. My system was under the effects of mercury, and I would soon have been a complete wreck but for S. S. S."

S. S. S., (guaranteed purely vegetable) is the only cure for real blood diseases. The mercurial treatment of the doctors always does more harm than good. Beware of mercury! Books on the disease and its treatment mailed free to any address by Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

A Nickel-in-the-Slot Tire Inflator.
An Englishman has invented a nickel-in-the-slot tire inflator. A stand holds the cycle, a tube connects with each tire, and when the latter is of sufficient hardness mechanical levers, actuated by the coin, shut off the air, rendering it impossible to burst the tires. When a coin is dropped into the slot a handle is thrown into gear, which the contributor can pump easily. In case of a puncture, the machine is so arranged that it may be worked at half pressure until the puncture is located. It is proposed to utilize side pillars for the delivery of oil, lamp wick, matches and other supplies. The inventor expects to organize a company and place his machine at all cycle resorts.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Whisky or Snake.
A man who was bitten by a rattlesnake drank a quart of whisky as a remedy. He died soon afterwards, and the coroner's jury brought in this verdict: "The deceased came to his death either from the snake or the whisky, the jury being uncertain which, and the local physician being absent at the funeral of one of his patients."

Frank M. Reed, of Anderson, Ind., claims to have completed a system of gas generation from a crude oil burner which is capable of producing 33 per more heat than from coal, and would enable the largest warships to carry fuel enough for a trip around the world. Reed's representative is at present demonstrating these inventions before the authorities at Washington.

The treasury department has decided that the new tariff bill went into effect at midnight on the 23d, instead of the afternoon of the 24th, owing to the fact that the law does not allow the recognition of a fraction of a day. The effect of this decision cannot yet be estimated, but it is known that at least $400,000 will be saved to Uncle Sam by the advance on the enormous sales of beer and cigarette stamps and in the customs receipts on large cargoes which arrived at New York and Philadelphia on the 24th after strenuous efforts had been made to get them in before the bill was signed.

Spain and Japan Combine Against U. S.

London: A strong rumor is in circulation to the effect that the governments of Spain and Japan have arranged an offensive alliance against the United States. The terms of the understanding, which is for the mutual protection of Cuba and Hawaii, provide that in the event of an actively aggressive movement on the part of the United States tending toward interference in Cuban affairs or persistence in the annexation of the Hawaiian islands, both Spain and Japan shall declare war simultaneously against the United States and shall make their sea demonstrations along both the Atlantic and Pacific coast lines of that country. The London Daily Mail says: "Secretary Sherman's seal dispatch is too diplomatic for English ears and too hollow for American common sense. In the interest of humanity the rumored alliance between Japan and Spain is desirable. Our Yankee friends want a little blood letting to bring them to a sensible international policy, and this would best be done by and hands other than those of England."

Boynton, of Port Huron; supreme finance keeper, C. D. Thompson, of Port Huron; supreme medical examiner, R. E. Moss, of New York; supreme chaplain, Geo. H. Terpany, of Indiana. The supreme high L. O. T. M. elected officers: Supreme commander, Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit; lieutenant commander, Elizabeth E. Brown, of Pennsylvania; supreme record keeper, Bina M. ### SHOWERS HELPED GROWING CROPS.

Weather Observer Schneider's report says: "The general weather conditions have been favorable to all growing crops and to harvest work. Wheat harvest has progressed rapidly and much of the crop has been secured. Thrashers are beginning work in the southern counties and report a fair yield of fine crop; rye that is yet standing is in fine condition. Haying has also been rapidly pushed. The nearly normal temperatures and very beneficial, although unevenly distributed, showers have given corn a splendid growth, greatly improved the condition of potatoes, beans and garden truck and have headed out oats very fast. The showers have been insufficient in the northerly section of the state, and there is considerable complaint from there that the weather is still too dry for oats, potatoes and pastures. In those sections there is also much complaint of the ravages of the grasshopper and the potato bug. Apples continue to drop badly, but other fruits except peaches are fairly promising. Berries of all kinds are plentiful. The very hot dry weather of the early part of the month has burnt out much young clover."

Old soldiers throughout the country are warned to be on the lookout for a smooth tongued swindler who represents himself to be the agent of a soldier's paper published in Toledo. He approaches old veterans of the late war, and in order to get them to subscribe, he offers them as a premium a set of silver spoons or a pair of spectacles. There is no such paper published and the old veterans should be on their guard against this rank fraud.—Chelsea Standard.

A grand farmers' picnic will be held at Whitmore Lake August 28. Washtenaw, Wayne, Oakland, and Livingston counties will be represented. Gov. Pingree, ex-Gov. Luce and others will be present to address the assembly. Special rates will be given on the railroads.

Last Saturday night Ferdinand Hofrein who lives on South Second street, was painfully injured by the bursting of a pipe in the Ann Arbor Gas Co's works. The explosion threw hot tar into Hoffrein's face and eyes burning him seriously but his sight will not be destroyed.

A cyclone passed over the township of Bridgewater, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. It descended on the farm of S. Tate, scattering a stack of wheat over several acres and blowing down many fences. It then rose in the air and descended again in a piece of woods owned by Cyrus Sproull, twisting large trees up by the roots and leveling many fences. No loss of life is reported.

Money has been secured to build the Times cycle path to Ypsilanti and the question now raised is whether it shall be built on the middle or south road. Those favoring the north road say it is shorter, easier to work up into a path and that the right of way can be more easily obtained. The chief arguments in favor of the south road are, that in case of accidents, wheelmen can take the motor home, and that it is the old established road to Ypsilanti.

Prof. Henry C. Adams and wife have been obliged to postpone their trip to Europe, on account of an accident which happened to their little son Carter Adams. The child fell from a tree and broke his arm. Prof. Adams had already gone to Washington and was to have been joined by Mrs. Adams last Saturday in New York, but when the accident happened, he was summoned home by wire and will not go abroad for some weeks.

Mayor Harding, of Ypsilanti, went to East Tawas last week. He secured a rig and started to drive with a friend. The Iosco County Gazette tells the story as follows: "Now the mayor had no warning that the steed he drove would never make friends with a locomotive, and on sight it took a sort of electric cross-cut toward the moon. The horse kept going, while the mayor and his companion were left to enjoy the 'horseless carriage,' which lodged against a tree. The good-natured mayor enjoyed the scene and occurrence as much as any one, and he caught his breath, not the horse, in about an hour."

Charles Bauer who formerly lived near Emery, is believed to have been killed at North Springfield, Pa., last Saturday. A postal card has been received by the postmaster here, stating that a young man 17 years old, by the name of Bauer, was killed at that place July 17, and that he was undoubtedly insane. Young Bauer left home July 1, without stating where he was going, and has not been heard from since. The father says there is no doubt that the boy killed was his son. Mr. Bauer formerly lived in Pennsylvania.

The Press rises for recognition and will not down till it catches the speaker's eye. It desires to ask, aye, demand, an examination of Judge Newkirk of Washtenaw, by the probate court, to see if his head is right. If there is nothing the matter with his upper works, let his moral nature be examined. In manner and form following he thus delivered to the Ann Arbor Argus, a Dexter narrative: "With scarcely any warning a thunder bolt shot out from the cloud and struck the tines of the pitchfork, which the hired man was holding upward. The lightning was conducted down the handle of the fork which was ripped into splinters. The man's hands were severely burned, and he and Mr. Esslinger knocked senseless. One of the horses was knocked down, but came to before the man did and the team ran away to the barn."—Adrian Press.

Last night a young lady attempted to take a flying leap from the car at the corner of Main and Huron streets. A header was the result, and the young lady was so mixed up that she went two blocks in the wrong direction before coming to herself.—Washtenaw Times. Certainly and a "header" is the regular result with many ladies in leaving a street car. A friend of ours expected his wife down town, and watched for her. A lady dismounted from a car a block away and we said: "There is your wife." "That is not my wife," said our friend, "my wife always gets off before the car stops, faces rearward and falls down." In a few minutes another car appeared, a lady sprang off, face to the rear, and fell down. "That's my wife!" said our friend jubilantly, didn't I tell you? And so it was.—Adrian Press.

Oculist Persecuted.

"A traveling hypnotist, giving the royal title of 'Prof. Carlos,' held forth in this city last week, pretending to tell fortunes, and advertised the burial of a hypnotic subject Sunday. He was to be put into a box and the grave was six feet deep, and was to be filled. A tube from the box was left to give fresh air. The mayor allowed that he would not allow it, and so gave notice. When asked how he would stop it, he replied, 'I don't know, but I think I have the right to.' "But under what law will you proceed?" we asked, and he said, he could not say, but would see the prosecutor.

Carlos had secured a place on the Mulzer farm, and proposed to go ahead. Then the officials gave him notice that they would prosecute him for a Sunday show, or for a disorderly person, and the outlook was so discouraging to the "professor" that he gave up his project, and got out of town, going to Jackson, where live men are dead more than half the time anyway, and where they would as soon be under ground, as to live above. However, there are some pretty wide awake fellows over there, especially among the newspaper and base ball ranks, and it may be that they will put a veto also, on the burial test.

Theosophy.

Mrs. Annie Besant, the famous English lady orator, now visiting this country, is scheduled to lecture in Ann Arbor, on Friday, August 6, on "Theosophy." An exchange says:

Mrs. Besant is giving some interesting lectures on the "facts of the invisible world," illustrating her words with pictures of the facts she describes. Thus pictures of human thoughts, and of the mental and emotional atmosphere surrounding all human beings, are thrown on a screen, and the audience finds itself transported into a new world and studying sights hitherto denied to ordinary vision. "The things of the invisible world are clearly seen" much to the surprise and interest of the spectators. The originals of these pictures were painted by a London artist, Mr. John Varley, whose exquisite Egyptian and Oriental paintings are well known in the world of art, from the careful descriptions of two occultists using clairvoyant vision for the purpose. An illustrated article written by Mrs. Besant in Lucifer, a Theosophical magazine, aroused great interest, but the lectures she is now delivering in America are the first in which most of these "pictures of the invisible" have been presented to the public at large.

VERY REMARKABLE FEATURES.

With Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth.

Every year, for many past, the press and public have been widely enthusiastic over the extent and magnificence of the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, which will be seen here exactly as it was in New York. But what will be said of it this year, superior as this season's show is to all previous ones? Indeed, the big show has been vastly improved and enlarged in all departments to a most wonderful extent. Now in the circus department alone one hundred acts are given at every performance, afternoon and evening, by as many daring champion equestrians, athletes, gymnasts, jugglers, and acrobats. There are twenty acts in which perfectly trained animals are seen with twenty comical clowns. Several of the latter were acknowledged to be the funniest fellows in Europe before Barnum & Bailey engaged them. There are three lady clowns also. After the acts in the three circus rings and on the three elevated stages numerous hippodrome races take place. Then there is Johanna, the giant gorilla—only one in the world at present in captivity; the 70 horses, 24 trained elephants, the human arrow, the strange people, such as the famous Orissa twins, the giant, the midget, the male and female jugglers, magicians, dancers, musicians, and others, who in the menagerie tent give a new entertainment before the regular performances begin, and many other remarkable features. Besides the most marvelous feats in mid-air the whole entertainment is of such a grand character as to amaze everyone. A children's circus, too, is especially provided for the delectation of the little folks. The new million dollar free street parade will take place on the morning of the show's arrival, and is said to be the finest of its kind on earth, containing as a conspicuous feature a mighty team of 40 horses, and a reproduction of Columbus' Return to Barcelona. It will all be here August 17.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS.

MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE.

Mrs. Fidelia Palmer, who went to Kansas several weeks ago with her daughter, Mrs. Henry Calhoun, to visit her son, and was taken ill, returned home Thursday night with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Lowery, who went after her. She is improving in health. It is expected the return to Michigan's climate will completely restore her health.

DEXTER LEADER.

Supervisor B. C. Whittaker was the central figure in a runaway last Saturday. In company with A. E. Phelps, he had just driven in from Base lake, and stopped at the barn. Mr. Phelps had alighted from the wagon and Mr. Whittaker, who is "not as spry as he used to be," was just climbing out, when something startled the horse and away he went. At the end of the alley on C. street he turned short and out rolled Mr. W. to the ground. The horse ran around Dr. Lee's barn, left the wagon at the pump and went back to the barn. Mr. Whittaker was only slightly bruised, but he as well as his friends regard his escape as a very fortunate one.

THE YPSILANTIAN.

The colored people of Ypsilanti will have a grand celebration of Emancipation Day this year. August 2 will be duly celebrated, and on August 3 and 4 the Grand Lodge of colored Knights of Pythias, E. and W. H. and the Auxiliary Court of Calanthe will hold their annual sessions, under the auspices of Eureka Lodge No. 2, K. P., and Mary Magdalene Court No. 1. The railroads offer reduced rates.

Friday evening, Mrs. Lee N. Brown, who had been spending the evening on her lawn, stepped into the house about 10 o'clock, and discovered a man in the bedroom. Her screams frightened the burglar who vanished before Mr. Brown could reach the house. Mrs. Brown fainted and was unconscious for some time. The burglar secured nothing but if he had not been interrupted would have been able to get away with two watches which were in the room.

CHELSEA STANDARD.

A big snarling shepherd dog caused considerable excitement on Main street early Monday morning by growling and biting at all the smaller canines that came in his way. Every man who owned a dog began to be interested and soon quite a crowd was assembled from the stores and offices, each one intent on throwing as large a stone as possible after the offending animal, who took the hint and set off on a mad race up Pack street. Then each citizen gravely and carefully examined his own dog to see if he was injured. Nothing of a serious nature was developed by this investigation and after a little loud talk, the excitement died down and Chelsea was again at peace.

GRASS LAKE NEWS.

The death of F. P. Moody at Mason, Sunday, recalls one of the most tragic events in the criminal lore of Ingham county. Mr. Moody was sheriff of this county way back in the '60's, and at the time Mrs. John Buok and daughter of Delhi township were murdered by a negro named Taylor. Taylor was lynched by a mob of men from all parts of the county, and a leader of whom was one Wm. Cook, better known as "Bill, the Clown." Cook, if we remember correctly, was an Onondaga man, and for years until recently was a chimney sweep in Jackson. The tree from which the murderer was suspended stood a little north of the business part of Mason and till recently was the object of many a casual remark.

FOUND AN AZTEC MUMMY.

Queer Discovery of a Professional Lion Hunter of Arizona. John McCarthy, a professional lion-hunter of Phoenix, Ariz., while pursuing his quarry through one of the toughest portions of that mountainous district, discovered a mummy that has been attracting attention all over the country, and is likely to be the cause of much litigation as to its ownership. McCarthy calls it "a desiccated human body," and gives it an antiquity antedating Father Adam's. And to prove that his mummy came by some other route than the Garden of Eden he points to the place where the twenty-third rib ought to be and is not. McCarthy was hunting bounty scalps in Verde canyon, about seventy-five miles north of Phoenix, says the San Francisco Examiner, when he came upon the ruin of a wonderful prehistoric castle. His dogs chased the game almost to the door of the ruin. He killed the lion and then entered the ruin. He climbed into a small chamber, which he describes as about six by twelve feet in dimensions, and in accidentally striking the rear wall was surprised that it gave back a hollow sound, which caused him to investigate with bowie knife the cement with which the huge stones were held in place. Digging through a thick cement wall, he opened an air-tight vault about six feet square and was astonished to find the mummy inside. It was mantled in coverments of soaped fibre cloth, which dissipated into nothingness as soon as the air reached it. By its side was a wooden-handled stone mallet and an arrow with a flint head. The wood of the arrow and mallet likewise disintegrated immediately. There were also some beautiful specimens of turquoise and obsidian in the vault. McCarthy says he touched nothing but sealed up the vault carefully and then hid himself down to Phoenix as fast as he could. McCarthy made up an expedition of all the prominent scientists and physicians in Phoenix and took them out to the newly-found mummy. It was brought down to Phoenix and given a coat of carriage varnish by way of shining up its rather dull and rusty old hide. Recently the mummy, together with a live rattlesnake and a Gila monster, was shipped out of Phoenix marked "old clothes," and, not being called for, the box was opened at a way station and its contents gave the station agent a bad fright. Now the authorities are looking for the responsible parties, and a criminal prosecution will follow.

Dr. Miles' Pain Pills, "One cent a dose."

Her Health Restored

THE misery of sleeplessness can only be realized by those who have experienced it. Nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches, neuralgia and that miserable feeling of unrest, can surely be cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve. So certain is Dr. Miles of this fact that all druggists are authorized to refund price paid for the first bottle tried, providing it does not benefit. Mrs. Henry Bruns, wife of the well known blacksmith at Grand Junction, Iowa, says: "I was troubled with sleeplessness, nervousness, headache and irregular menstruation; suffering untold misery for years. I used various advertised remedies for female complaints besides being under the care of local physicians, without help. I noticed in Dr. Miles' advertisement the testimonial of a lady cured of ailments similar to mine, and I shall never cease to thank that lady. Her testimonial induced me to use Dr. Miles' Nerve and Nerve and Liver Pills, which restored me to health. I cannot say enough for Dr. Miles' Remedies."

Propeller Replaced at Sea.

While in the mid-Atlantic on a recent trip the steamship Victoria of Sunderland lost the tail of her shaft and with it the propeller. Her engines were thus, of course, rendered useless. But those on board were equal to the emergency. They depressed the bow and elevated the stern by shifting weights so as to enable a spare shaft and screw to be fitted at sea, and after the delay necessary for so heavy a job to be accomplished under such difficult conditions, she resumed her voyage and made her port in safety.

HOW TO FIND OUT

Fill a bottle or common water glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's was mp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention THE REGISTER and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y.

When the Shoes Pinched.

He walked into a little shoe shop where he has had his work done for years, stood squarely upon a big sheet of white paper in his stocking feet, had the dimensions of each foot marked out with a pencil and his measure was taken. "Why, when we were boys, Bob," said a friend who was with him, "you were a great fellow for snug footwear, and many a time I helped you off with your calfskin boots and saw you pull and stamp to get them on." "I'm all over that foolery now. I want shoes as easy as a wool mitten, and each new pair is a little larger than the last. You know where Bird Hollow is, six miles out from the old town. Bateley's young people were giving a dance out there, and it was the biggest thing of the season. I rushed around in advance, engaging dances, and didn't let a number get away, I had to throw things together in a hurry at last to catch the sled, and tumbled in just as the whip cracked. When it came time to get into my pumps I had one of the struggles of my life. When I had conquered, my toes were jammed back, my heels jammed forward, and each foot humped up like a closed fist. Before the first dance was over I was in mortal agony, but I would endure it rather than let my best girl's dances go to other fellows, who were aching to supplant me. When I hobbled to the floor for the second waltz I was wabbling like a man on stilts. I hopped around like a chicken with frozen feet. I was literally leaden-footed and the lead seemed to be molten. I had to stop or faint, and when I took my pretty partner to a seat as if walking over red hot plow shares, it was whispered about that I had made too free with hard cider. It required help to get me to the dressing room, where I cut away the vice-like pumps and plunged my feet into ice cold water that threw off steam like a blacksmith's tub. I had taken my brother's pumps, and they were three sizes too small. My friends shouldn't keep the joke, and I failed to keep my girl. I'm a bachelor, but my shoes never pinch me."—Detroit Free Press.

Six Killed in Winchester Arms Factory.

Four women and two men were killed by an explosion in the leading department at the army of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., at New Haven, Conn. Five others were badly injured. Forty feet of the side of the building was blown out and hurled in pieces many feet, and fragments of human bodies were scattered about.

There are a Class of People

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called Grain-O, made of pure grain, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 2 as much. Children may drink it with benefit. 15c and 25c. per package. Try it. Ask for Grain-O.

Train-Wrecking.

State legislatures are just beginning to recognize the deliberate wrecking of a railroad train, when attended with loss of life, as essentially murder, to be punished accordingly. The New York legislature, at its recent session, passed a law making train-wrecking which results in death a crime subject to the death penalty; and in Michigan, which does not impose the death penalty for any crime, the legislature passed a law imposing imprisonment for life in such cases. In Nebraska the supreme court announces the principle that train-wrecking implies a general malice aforethought, which makes it unnecessary to prove particular malice against an individual who may be killed.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Ask your Grocer today to show you a package of Grain-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it like it. Grain-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grains, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. 15c and 25c. per package. Sold by all grocers.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.) Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

IN LENBACH'S STUDIO.

The Painter of Bismarck at Home—Some Rare Decorations.

For years Lenbach worked in an unpretentious back building on the site where he has now erected the magnificent house on which his brother, well known in his special branch, was architect, states the Century. The studio is divided into three spacious rooms and occupies the whole of the second story. The ceilings are richly decorated with medallions and bas-reliefs in dark woods picked out with gold; the walls, also dark in tone, are hung with valuable tapestries and copies of well-known pictures made during his Wanderjahre, with here and there authentic work of an old master. An unceasing and discriminating collector, Lenbach has filled his house and studio with objects of esthetic and historic interest. There are marble statues and friezes of ancient Greece and Rome, busts and bas-reliefs dating from the renaissance, crucifixes and reliquaries breathing the mystical afflatus of the middle ages, priceless and historic brocades, rugs and hangings from the east—everything, from the beautiful shell grotto adjoining the studio, with its elaborate mosaics, to a rare bit of brocade from some suppressed monastery, giving evidence of the unerring taste of the master. The whole building is illuminated by a complete system of electric lights, enabling him to paint, as he often does, until far into the night. He is in consequence a late riser, breakfasting at 10, and rarely going to work before 11 o'clock.

Rare Bird in Kentucky.

Sate Senator William Henry Jones of Barren county, Kentucky, is entitled to be held up before the public eye just now as the only prominent Republican in Kentucky who not only is not an applicant for an office but does not want one. It cannot be said that he does not want one because he could not get it, for as a matter of fact, he is one of three Republicans who stand closer personally and politically to Senator Deboe than any others in the state. He is genuinely an original Deboe man and was a member of the steering committee that managed his fight, though he was for Hunter as long as he had a chance. Deboe was not then a candidate. This rare Republican who does not want an office was Senator Deboe's roommate during the legislative sessions of 1894, 1896 and 1897, making him a confidential friend. He was one of only four members of the long senate who returned and was the only Republican to return, Goebel, Ogilvie and Miller being the Democrats. Quite a coincidence is that Senator Jones has been elected three times from the 19th senatorial district and each time he has been nineteenth on the roll call alphabetically.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FEAT ACHIEVED BY A HEN.

"You kin talk about yer new-fangled inkbyters jest ez much ez ye like," said Uncle Cephas, "but they ain't in it with one that a leetle ol'-fashioned hen o' my father's set up fer herself when I wuz a small boy," quotes the Boston Herald. "You see, this waz n't no fashionable brod hen—nuthin' fancy 'bout her—jest a plain, ord'nary, business hen. Father had a poody big flock on 'em, and I, tein' the youngest boy in the family, uster chase roun' an' gether up the eggs—some in the barn, some in the woodshed, some out under the fence—in all sorts o' places. They wuz all poody smart hens, an' cal'lated they could hide their eggs, but I spotted 'em every time—thet is, all but the eggs laid by thet little ol' hen I'm tellin' ye on. She'd cackle an' cackle enough ter raise the dead, a'most, an' make a terrible fuss all over the lot, sometimes in one spot an' sometimes in another, but all one spring she beat me, an' I couldn't no how find her eggs. I'd watch her fer hours an' hours, an' then she'd be out o' my sight afore I knowed it, an' po' soun' I'd hear her a-cacklin' away somewhere ez she wuz laffin' 'cause she'd fooled me. I noticed after awhile that she spent a good deal of her time a-roostin' on an ol' bar'l that laid on its side back o' the barn, but I knowed she couldn't lay no eggs on the round-in' staves, 'cause they'd roll off an' I'd find 'em. But one day after she'd left it, an' wuz a-hollerin' in the lot, I went over an' wuz a-lookin' in the bar'l, when I heerd a sort o' peepin' that seemed ter come from the inside. I couldn't see nothin' through the bung-hole on top, an' so I rolled the bar'l over, an' jest ez sure ez I'm a-standin' here they wuz 168 chickens run one by one out o' thet bung-hole! S'prised! Wall, I jez' guess I wuz. But I see how it wuz in a minute. They full yer little ol' hen hed jes' laid thet bar'l full of eggs, an' set on the bung-hole tell they wuz all hatched. Talk about yer inkbyters! They ain't in it with thet little ol' hen. No, sir, b'gosh!"

"Got any of the same breed on your farm now, Uncle Cephas?" asked the poultry fancier.

"Not a one, more's the pity. Thet hen killed herself a-tryin' to brood over all them chickens at once."

"Didn't you raise any of her chickens?"

"All on 'em but two."

"Wouldn't they lay?"

"They wuz all roosters."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure Backache. It has cured more cases of leucorrhoea by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is of great value for local application.

Copped All the Coins in Sight. Thomas L. Lucas and his son Fred have left Huntington, Ind., in a hurry. It is said that they have stolen $35,000. They were in the abstract and loan business.

Troubled For Three Years.

"Having been troubled more or less for the past three years with kidney difficulties, Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me. I began taking it and after using three bottles I was completely cured. I gladly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to anyone." Alex. M. Agens, Ludington, Michigan.

Sleeping with Open Windows.

There is considerable diversity of opinion on this subject, some holding that it is unwise to sleep in a room with the windows open, while others maintain the contrary. It has been asserted by those who are opposed to the system of free ventilation at night that the bodily temperature sinks slightly during sleep, the physiological functions act with diminished activity, and hence the resistance of the economy to morbid influences is proportionately lessened. Again, the air is charged with greater humidity, the chill of the damp night air is penetrating and dangerous, and the emanations from organic decay are more perceptible. Against these the sleeper is less protected than in the daytime. He has divested himself of his woolen external clothing to put on cotton or linen, and lies between sheets of the same material, between which, at the top and sides of the bed, the air gains ready access to his unprotected surface. If he is restless he renders such access yet more easy. A greater risk awaits him. A sudden fall in temperature at night, even to the extent of from ten to twenty degrees, is no unusual occurrence. The sleeper is unaware of this. He remains exposed to it, with no further protection than he found agreeable at the higher temperature, until he awakes chilled and stiff, perhaps with the seeds of severe illness already sown. These are positive and unavoidable risks that are put forward, and certainly a delicate person should be careful how he ventures on the plan of open windows at night, however much it might be suitable to the strong and robust.

The strength which comes to us from eating nourishing food is better than stimulation, because it is new strength.

The health which belongs to a strong body, well nourished by proper food (properly digested), is the only health that is lasting.

The difference between Shaker Digestive Cordial and other medicines is simply that it helps nature to make strength. It does not profess to cure sickness, except as that sickness is a result of weakness caused by food not properly digested.

Shaker Digestive Cordial will relieve the pangs of indigestion, and make thin, sick, weak people as well as if their stomachs had never been out of order.

It is a gentle aid to the digestion of nature's strength-maker, food.

Two Armies—The Regular and Irregular!

To which would you prefer to belong? The regular, undoubtedly. The irregulars are, admittedly, the most numerous, but they are in a very undesirable state of no-discipline. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will soon remedy this want in a disordered liver or bowels. Billousness manifests itself in yellowness of the skin and eyeballs, sour breath, furred tongue, morning nausea, discomfort in the vicinity of the liver, vertigo and sick headache. Hosts of people suffer thus. These signs of insubordination to the governance of health, together with an irregular condition of the bowels, are soon regulated by the Bitters, which also overcomes malaria, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness and kidney trouble. As a means of checking premature decay, hastening convalescence, and mitigating infirmities of age, the great tonic is without a parallel.

The Most Beautiful Foot.

The most beautiful foot is the slender one. The stylish girl recognizes this fact. Her shoes are always large enough to avoid cramping the foot, and yet they are snug and wonderfully neat and delicate. That is the reason why some girls can dance all night without rest, while others have to retire early from a brilliant ball, leaving their hearts behind—in case they do not dance and suffer so much with their feet as to preclude the possibility of real enjoyment. If a girl wears a proper shoe, when the foot is bare, and she stands upon it in the privacy of her bedroom, it will be as pretty and delicate as a baby's. The instep would be high, the heel delicately formed, the skin as white as alabaster, with possibly blue veins showing through. The general form of the foot will be slender, the toes tapering parallel, and separated by about the thickness of a sheet of paper, and adorned with pink-tinted nails. A girl who has such feet as these—and there are many who have them—will make take pride and pleasure in contemplating them.

A Little Low.

A telegram from Kansas City says that the dean of an Episcopal church there attended a vaudeville performance at one of the parks and was so shocked at one of the women performers that he hissed her and demanded his money back at the door. The dispatch says that the young woman wore "an extremely low cut dress to the knees." It is no wonder the dean was shocked. A dress so low as that would shock a bishop.

THE DAYS IN THE YEAR.

There is a story in Plutarch which must convince every reader that one myth at least relates to an alteration made in the Egyptian calendar to extend the length of the year from 360 days to 365. A year of 360 days existed in Egypt at an early period, and may possibly have been arrived at in the way suggested by Mr. P. L. Griffith. The lunar month, from new moon to new moon, being twenty-nine and a half days in length, the convenient round number of thirty days was taken as a standard, and twelve months of thirty days each made up the year. The solar year is more difficult to observe than the lunar month, the intervals being longer, and a year of 360 days was a very convenient and reasonable approximation to it. At any rate, the year of 360 days came into use, and a curious custom of Acanthas, near Memphis, seems to allude to it. A perforated vessel was filled with water by 360 priests on each day of the year. In the island of Philae, again, 360 pitchers were placed around the tomb of Osiris, for making funeral libations and were filled every day by the priests with milk. With 360 days in the year, the ecliptic circles of the heavens, as represented in the charts, would be divided into 360 equal parts; and we must regard it as a relic of this time that the circle is still made to consist of 360 degrees. But so erroneous an estimate of the length of the year would soon be corrected by experience. It is evident that in about seventy-two years a cycle would be accomplished in which the New Year's Day would sweep through all the months, remaining only six years in each. The same month, so far as its name was concerned, would now be in the inundation time, now in the season of sowing, and anon in the time of reaping, and the agriculturist must have been perplexed. A text in the papyrus Anastasi makes reference to such perplexity, and may receive its explanation here. Goodwin translated it, "May Amen deliver me from the cold season, when the sun does not shine, the winter comes instead of the summer, the month is stormy, the hours shortened." Similar confusion would overtake the religious festivals, the New Year, for example, coming five days before its proper time, and then ten days before, and so on; and it might be thought that its observance at the wrong season would displease the gods. The year of 360 days had to give way and ultimately did so in favor of one of 365 days. The precise date of the change is not known, but it is referred to in inscriptions of the time of Amenemha I (circa 2400 B. C.), and may, of course, have been introduced much earlier. When this was done, the original months were not altered, but a "little month" of five days was interpolated at the end of the year, between the month Mesori of one year and the Thoth of the next.—Westminster Review

A certain amount of fat, burned daily, would keep your body warm and healthy. But your digestion is bad, and you don't get it from ordinary fat-food. Hence you are chilly, you catch cold easily, you have coughs and shivers; while pneumonia, bronchitis, or consumption finds you with no resistive power.

Do this. Burn better fuel. Use SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod-liver Oil. Appetite and digestive power will revive; and soon a warm coating of good flesh will protect the vital organs against the cold and the body against disease.

A CALF'S COSTLY MEAL.

Chewed Up $210, Which Uncle Sam Kindly Redeemed.

Treasurer Morgan recently received a little wooden box from Texas containing a wad of what appeared to be fragments of United States bills. Later in the day a letter from a gentleman of a small town near Galveston arrived at the treasury department, which explained the contents of the box, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The wad of green paper is all that is left of $210 owned by the man which he rescued from the stomach of a yearling calf. It seems that the Texan recently sold a herd of cattle, for which he received $470 in bills, as follows: One $100, one $50 and sixteen $20 bills. He placed the money in an ordinary memorandum pocket-book, but the bills were in such a position that the ends stuck beyond the edge of the book. He carelessly threw his coat on the ground in a cow lot, and a yearling coming along saw the green bills and proceeded to devour them. The animal took in the entire bunch at one mouthful and was discovered in the act of chewing the $470.

The Texan, with the assistance of his brother, succeeded in recovering from the mouth of the calf thirteen of the $20 bills in a comparatively uninjured condition. This money was afterwards passed off in payment for some cattle. The calf was shortly killed and from its stomach was taken a mass of chewed bills, stained and discolored.

The fragments were boxed up and sent to the redemption division of the treasury department. Their owners prepared a sworn statement of the disappearance of his money and forwarded it to Treasurer Morgan. The latter had the case examined and found the facts to be as stated. Accordingly $210 in crisp new bank notes was sent to the cattle dealer to replace the money masticated by his calf.
