CANDIDATE Wedemeyer was right in luck because of the row between the ex-Boss and the Spalding push. It saved him from the chagrin of having his support desert him in a body and go to Spalding as Judson had planned. The difficulty between Judson and Spalding made the former determined to stand by Wedemeyer to the bitter end and thus give him the credit of a hard fight and save him from the charge of being merely a Spalding tool.

HENRY C. SMITH, OF ADRIAN Who will be the next congressman from the 2d Michigan district.

THE rapidity with which people are smashing the collars which the ex-Boss had riveted about their necks will certainly cause a glut in the old iron market in this vicinity.

"ZENE" SWEET is said to have announced himself as a "pop sure" candidate for the nomination for sheriff immediately after he saw that the Boss had been downed and that he would probably be unable to handle the convention for Canfield. The speed Sweet showed in getting out of the old band wagon was refreshing.

CANDIDATE Townsend, of Jackson, had the most loyal delegation back of him at the convention of any of the candidates. They were here entirely in his interests, determined, if they could not secure his nomination, to go into whatever combination would in the end be to his advantage. No other candidate, not even ex-Boss Judson, who picked his own men, had his delegates so thoroughly in hand.

AN Ann Arbor gentleman accosted Gen. Spalding in the lobby of the Cook House Thursday evening after the convention had adjourned, with this questions. "Well, General, how much do you now think you gained in Washtenaw county by casting in your lot with Judson and The Courier people; can you figure out wherein you gained the least iota by giving them the plums?" The English language is totally inadequate to picture the look of disgust that came over the general's features. It was clearly evident that he fully realized the mistake he had made—after it was too late.

If it were not Judson's intention to betray Wedemeyer in the interests of Spalding, and if Pingree did not know that such was Judson's program, why did Pingree telegraph Judson to make Wedemeyer's candidacy bona fide? What could Pingree have been thinking about if it was a bona fide effort from the start? But Pingree says he kept out of the fight and did not telegraph the Washtenaw delegation to stick to Wedemeyer.

It was reported just after the noted conference held by the Judson delegation near the close of the convention Thursday afternoon that F. E. Johnson, one of the Judson delegates, wanted to break to Spalding. Rumor has it that the ex-Boss glared at him viciously and asked in biting tones what he, Judson, had secured Johnson's appointment as member of the state board of education for. There was no more opposition from that source.

AWAY off in the misty future, after a glacier or two shall have plowed down over this part of Michigan and carried away a few hundred feet from the surface of old Washtenaw, we may be able to resurrect the remains of a Republican prospect for a congressional nomination in this county, which possibility was buried so deep by the brilliant leadership of Judson and Johnson at the congressional convention last week. Let us hope that it may not be too many generations hence.

ONE of the pitiable sights in last week's convention was the course taken by a University professor who was on the Washtenaw delegation. He was honestly in favor of Gen. Spalding's renomination, and he had been heard to say a score of times that Wedemeyer's candidacy was nothing but schoolboys' burlesque. Yet the ex-Boss had his iron collar so firmly about the professor's neck, by the gift of a petty office, that the professor in that long fight toed Judson's chalk line from start to finish like a galley slave.

It is a shrewd politician, who when in a convention sees that matters have reached that point where he has no show for his candidate, at once throws his strength in some direction from whence he can expect a return. The would be politician is considered a half-witted or a chump who refuses to make such a move in the interests of future aspirants for office in his county.
Will some one explain whether Wedemeyer was in the hands of a shrewd politician at the convention last week?

EDITOR MORAN, of The Register, is the happiest mortal in Ann Arbor today. He was opposed to a renomination of General Spalding, and to the nomination of Col. Judson's man, "Wedey." The editor worked unceas-ingly for their defeat. He killed two birds with one stone.—Friday's Times.

This is all wrong. It would be very inconsiderate indeed to be "hilariously happy," as the Times would indicate just after attending a funeral. No, we felt great sorrow for the "departed." As for opposing Wedemeyer the Times is also in error. We opposed Mr. Wedemeyer only in so far as we were compelled to do so in opposing the ex-Boss.
Mr. Wedemeyer injured his own prospects far more than we did, by tying himself up with unscrupulous politicians.

"JUST as soon as Spalding gets enough votes in the convention so that the vote of Washtenaw will nominate him we are to go to him" was Judson's solemn pledge to Spalding's representative. In view of such a promise can anyone say that it was not ex-Boss Judson's design to throw Wedemeyer overboard and that he would have done so without any doubt, had it not happened that Spalding and Grosvenor had had a row with Judson in the meantime. This row had so maddened the ex-Boss that he would stick to his man through ten thousand ballots rather than see Spalding nominated, no bifference if he did bury Washtenaw's future prospects so deep that they could not be resurrected for a generation.

At least a few people are wondering how Prof. Elias Findlay Johnson of the law department enjoys being classed as one of Judson's Rough Riders by the Washtenaw Times when it is stated on the very best of authority that the same Prof. Elias Findlay Johnson of the law department has said that he would just as soon be seen associating with a convict in the state prison at Jackson as to keep company with Judson. These same people are wondering how it could be that the ex-Boss should urge so insistently that the same Prof. Elias Findlay Johnson of the law department be appointed a member of the congressional committee for this county after the professor had said such very unkind things about his master. Must be that this same Prof. Elias Findlay Johnson of the law department is trying to ride two horses. These same people do not seem to think it at all necessary to wonder—they seem to know—and the ex-Boss seems to know which of the two horses the professor will eventually light upon, because Judson holds the whip rein.

WHEN it became perfectly plain that candidate Wedemeyer had reached his highest vote and had begun to decline and that there was no hope of his nomination, the ex-Boss could have saved a Pingree senator by going in a body to Jackson's candidate. Now this district will have either an anti Pingree or a Democratic senator. Jackson could have given Washtenaw a chance to select a Pingree state senator had Washtenaw gone to Townsend. Now, Jackson county with its three more votes than Washtenaw will name Andrew Campbell or some Jackson anti-Pingree man. This is one of the results of Judson's astute political manipulation at the late convention. Wonder how well Gov. Pingree is pleased with such brilliant management on the part of his lieutenant.

FROM reading the Times one would think that ex-Boss Judson had it all his own way in the appointment of the Washtenaw member of the congressional committee. Did he? Judson urged the appointment of E. F. Johnson whom he knew he could handle. THE REG-ISTER urged Mr. Smith to keep out of the local fight by not appointing a Johnson but to recognize the German element by appointing a man who would have the influence necessary to hold that element in line. So he appointed Helber. Does this look as if Judson won. It rather indicates that Mr.
Smith had the good sense to keep out of local fights and appoint a man whom he could use to the best possible advantage in a phase of the work which had nothing whatever to do with either faction here.

WHEN Wedemeyer reached 49, his maximum number of votes during the convention, five delegates were heard talking together during a lull in the proceedings. One of them was heard to say, "If it were not for that one thing Wedemeyer would be nominated on the next ballot." A little quizzing by the man who had heard the remark developed the fact that these five men, two of whom were voting for Spalding and three for Townsend, were all really disposed to vote for Washtenaw's candidate, but for some reason refused to do so. Further pumping elicited this reply, "We do not think Billy Judson would make a good congressman." Whether ex-Boss Judson would have had a particle of influence over Wedemeyer, if the latter had been sent to congress we do not pretend to know. It is evident however, the impression prevailed that Judson, who was, as he himself declared, the whole Wedemeyer push, would have his own way with Mr. Wedemeyer and, as a result, enough votes were lost to Washtenaw's candidate to compass his defeat. That is how the ex-Boss helped Wedemeyer—helped him stay at home.

CANDIDATE Smith showed himself the shrewd politician that he is when he appointed Eugene Helber the Washtenaw member of the congressional committee. Mr. Helber had been asserting in his paper that his fellow German-American citizens would bolt the Republican ticket in a body unless one of their people, Mr. Wedemeyer, was nominated for congress. Now Mr.
Helber has accepted the job of holding them in line. We believe Mr. Helber will have an easy task, for it is generally admitted that Helber did not believe what he said when he promulgated such an idea. The German-American citizen is a man of sound sense and integrity and is voting the Republican ticket as a matter of conviction and principle and not because he is seeking for spoils.

EX-BOSS JUDSON has already named the men whom he says are to be chairman and secretary of the Republican County committee. These are men whom he knows would be especially interested in electing the Judson ticket.
But suppose the Republicans of Washtenaw county should rise in their strength and control the next county convention. In such an event, how much could the nominees of that convention expect from officers whose appointment was dictated by Judson?
Of course the ex-Boss intends to own the next convention. Even if he should it would be exceeding poor politics to have as officers in charge of the campaign, men who are owned by Judson and prejudiced against a very considerable element of the party. Every candidate who hopes to be nominated, whether a Judsonite or not, is not awake to his best interests if he does not insist, and insist strenuously that the officers of the Republican county committee shall be men who can work to advantage with every element in the Republican party.

There is one little maxim That now I will name, Which may bring what is better Than riches or fame.
All those who will heed it Good appetite find.
Strong nerves, rosy cheeks,
And vigor of mind.
It will banish dyspepsia, Rheumatics and gout
That tired feeling conquer.
Drive scrofula out,
And here is the maxim—
Its wisdom is sure—Take Hood's Sarsaparilla
And keep your blood pure.

MILES MOVES ON PORT RICO

Troops Being Hastened Forward to Re-enforce Him. MAJ.-GEN. BROOKE HAS GONE.

Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery Sail from Santiago, Charleston, Newport News and Tampa and a Strong Naval Force Goes to Attack the Spanish by Sea.

Gen. Miles was delayed two days in getting away from Guantanamo harbor, but his Porto Rico expedition was in good shape when it did get away. The cruisers Columbia and Yale carried four light batteries of the Third and Fourth artillery; Lomie's battery B, Fifth artillery; the Sixth Illinois, Sixth Massachusetts, 275 recruits for Fifth corps, 60 men of signal corps and Seventh hospital corps, 3,415 men all told.

Before Gen. Miles had left Guantanamo the transports Grand Duchess, No. 30 and No. 21 sailed from Charleston, S. C., with Gen. Wilson's brigade consisting of the Second and Third Wisconsin and 16th Pennsylvania, besides two companies of the Sixth Illinois, 1,000 mules and wagons.

The departure of Maj.-Gen. Brooke and his entire staff from Camp Thomas for Newport News aroused intense enthusiasm in the camp as the boys saw in their commander's going good prospects of early activities, and that is what all of the boys are hoping for.

By the time Gen. Brooke reached Newport News five troops of cavalry had arrived from Camp Alger, as follows: Troops A and C, New York, and troops A, B and C, Pennsylvania.

Periodic headaches, occurring at somewhat regular intervals of from two to six weeks, have characteristics of their own. The pain is located at a particular point, often just over one eye. At the beginning of the attack the child is frequently pale and the expression worried, while later the face is flushed.

PERIODICAL HEADACHE.

The headache habit rarely becomes established before the age of seven years, and not often earlier than fourteen. Prior to the latter age headaches are usually of irregular occurrence, and directly traceable to fatigue, nervous excitement or overeating.

Before and during the attacks the whole nature of the child is changed. He is dull, drowsy, listless or irritable. Vision is frequently double or otherwise disordered. Often after sleep the child will awaken with all the symptoms gone.

Care in the quality and quantity of food is of vital importance in every case. The child needs plenty of wholesome food, and is often benefited by some light nourishment between meals.

The hours of sleep should be long; ten hours are not too much for any child. Periodic headaches are most common to children who are much with their elders and with books, and who are led to grasp at mental problems suitable only for older persons.

It is presumed that every modern schoolhouse is thoroughly ventilated. It is to the credit of nearly all teachers that they are alive to the importance of fresh air.
