Mr. Frye dealt much on the position and resources of the islands and by statistics clearly showed the enormous advantage to our country in the way of a commercial strategic point of view as well as for domestic commerce itself. His report of the islands was very favorable and doubtless many left the hall better satisfied with the administration than they had when they came.

FOUND BY A DREAM.

How Desired Street and Number Came to Him in Sleep.

Private Detective William Wilkinson tells the story of a dream that rivals almost anything ever printed in dime literature.

"We were working in New York city," said Detective Wilkinson, "on a case where some men had mallciously blown up a powder mill. Facts were hard to get and we were obliged to work on faint clews. Finally, however, we hit upon a lead that made it necessary to see a private detective who was supposed to live in Baltimore-just where we did not know.

"The fellow we wanted always passed as an electrician, and that's all I knew when I left that night for Baltimore. I went to the hotel and spent the next two days looking for the fellow. It was like searching for a pin in a haystack, and I wrote to my brother, who was in New York, to come over and help me. We were pretty tired the night he arrived and went to bed early, intending to get an early start in the morning.

"About midnight I woke up after a dream. I lay thinking the soon got up and made some notes in my book. Then I crawled back into bed without disturbing my brother and slept away until he told me the next morning that it was time to get up.

'We've got to locate that chap,' he said. "'Never mind,' I said, 'I know where he is.' "Then what the devil did you send for me?" exclaimed my brother. 'Why didn't you tell me last night?" "I told him that I didn't know last night, but that I haddreamed it during the night and had made a note of it. He laughed at me, but I got my notebook, and there it was, something like

"'Red light in front of place. No. - street marked on light.'

"My brother didn't say any more about the matter, but we both hurried off to the number and street that occurred to me in my dream. We found the place, red light in front, same number as in dream, and neither of us had ever been there before. I asked the bartender about the detective-electrician and be pointed out a chap in the rear of the place. He was our man and the dream came true.

"What? Believe in dreams? Oh, I don't know. Anyhow, they're worth investigating."-Detroit Free Press.

About Horses.

The prince of Wales as a horsebreeder is a distinct success. Last month he sold at Wolverton sixty-nine horses, which realized $58,005, or about $840 each. Among the prince's customers were Sir Thomas Lipton, who bought a bay mare, Fille du Regiment, for $3,250; Sir E. Wincent, who gave $4,625 for a handsome chestnut, Coup de Crace; Lord Iweagh, who paid $5.2% for Victor; while the duke of Mr.rlborough gave $280 for Lady Belle. The prince entertained his customers at luncheon.

If you want a Shedland pony cheap, now is your opportunity. An animal that would have cost $75 a few years ago you can now get for $50. The explanation of this is to be found in the popularity of cycling. People who used to give their children Shetland ponies now give them bicycles instead. The cycle costs less to buy and has not to be fed, and it is the fashion. Hence the decreased demand for Shetland ponies. This is unfortunate for the ponies, who, on their bleak hills and heaths, fare very scantily at times and are fain to make a meal of seaweed, while the inside of a stable they never see even in the worst of weather.

When the ponies are now exported from Shetland it is usually for the purpose of being employed as beasts of burden in coal mines, once consigned to which they never see daylight again -a sad change from the free if at times hard life they are accustomed to at home and an existence contrasting very forcibly and unfavorably with that enjoyed by those who have the luck to become the petted playmates of the children of what Mr. Herbert Spencer calls "the comfortable

Big and Little Salaries.

The man who knows best how to deal in brains is the most successful from a material point of view. Many employers do not know brains in others when they stumble against them. Such mistake brass for gray matter. Some say boldly that they prefer brass. Morgan paid Samuel Spencer $50,000 a year to give expert opinions on railroad properties. Chauncey M. Depew got $50,000 a year as President of the New York Central. Life insurance presidents receive $100,000 annually-two or three of them. Sidney Dillon Ripley, treasurer of the Equitable, gets $35,000. J. O. Donner, chemist of the sugar trust, earned his $90,000 a year. Jockeys receive from $10,000 to $50,000 a year, with the privilege of riding out.

The greatest preacher in the land eceives less than $20,000 a year. The greatest lawyer makes $200,000. The ablest judge of the highest court in any state must be satisfied with $17.-500. Only three states pay their governors as much as $10,000. The chief justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania receives only $8,500. The largest salary paid by the municipal government is $15,000; the smallest $60. Think of people working for $5 a month! Many do it, and are glad to have the chance.-New York Press.

In the criminal court in Vienna ree atly Julius Raidl, a workman 28 y ars old who had already undergone s renteen sentences, was brought up e the charge of committing at least burglaries and thefts within ten onths, which forms a record.

Last year when he was arrested he is not satisfied with the small numbr of cases brought up against him. d told the examining judge that he is more than 200 short of the real al. Advice to a Graduate.

Remember, son, that the world is der than you are by several years; nat for thousands of years it has een so full of men smarter and etter young men than yourself that eir feet stuck out of the dormer winws; that when they died the old lobe went wagging on and not one an in 10,000,000 went to the funeral even heard of the death, says the urlington Hawkeye.

Be as smart as you can, of course. now as much as you can without owing the packing out of your cyliner heads; shed the light of your wisom abroad in the world, but don't uzzle people with it. And don't imrine a thing is so simple because you y it is.

Don't be too sorry for your father ecause he knows so much less than on do; remember the reply of Dr. ayland to the student of Brown Uniersity who said it was an easy lough thing to make proverbs such Solomon wrote.

"Make a few," tersely replied the d man. And we never heard that ie young man made any. Not more an two or three, anyhow.

The world has great need of young en, but no greater need than the oung men have of it. Your clothes t you better than your father's fit im; they cost more money, they are ore stylish, your mustache is neater, ie cut of your hair is better and you re prettier, oh, far prettier than "pa." ut, young man, the old gentleman ets the biggest salary and his homescrambling signature on the busiess end of a check will drain more oney out of the bank in five minutes an you could get out with a ream of aper and a copperplate signature in

Young men are useful and they are rnamental and we all love them and e couldn't ergineer a picnic successally without them. But they are no ovelties, son. Oh, no, nothing of the ind. They have been here before.

His connection with the hospitals of Paris gave him full opportunity in this direction, and his labors of the next few years served not merely to establish the value of the new method as an aid to diagnosis, but laid the foundation also for the science of morbid anatomy. In 1819 Laennec published the results of his labors in a work called 'Traite d'Auscultation Mediate," a work which forms one of the landmarks of scientific medicine. By medfate auscultation is meant, of course, aid of a little instrument which its originator thought hardly worth naming until various barbarous appellations were applied to it by others, after

In subsequent years the form of the stethoscope, as usually employed, was modified, and its value augmented by a binauricular attachment; and in very recent years a further improvement has been made through application of the essentials of auscultation with the stethoscope were established in much detail by Laennec, and the honor must always be his of thus taking one of the longest single steps by which prac-tical medicine has in our century acquired the right to be considered a ra-tional science. Laennec's efforts cost him his life, for he died in 1826 of a lung disease acquired in the sourse of his hospital practice; but even before this his fame was universal, and the value of his method had been recognized all over the world. Not long after, in 1828, yet another French physician. Piorry, perfected the method of percussion by introducing the custom of tapping, not the chest directly, but the finger or a small metal or hard rubber plate held against the chestmediate percussion, in short.

THE SNAKE EDITOR.

Said He Merely Wanted a Few Good Snake Stories.

The writer sat with Brig.-Gen. Otis in his rooms at the Shoreham hotel a few days ago when a card was brought up indicating that a representative of the New York Sun was waiting. He appeared shortly after an invitation was sent down, and said by way of introduction that he did not want any war or political news, but wanted to chat a little for special information. The general has had a pretty steady grind of interviewers since his return from the Philippines, and he regarded this introduction somewhat suspicious-

"The fact is,' said the caller, "I want to get a few snake stories." "What in thunder do you want with snake stories?" said the general, himself a trained newspaper man and a newspaper owner.

"To print," went on the visitor, "You see, I thought there must be a lot of snakes over there, and I thought perhaps you might have heard something about them.'

"That's right," said the general. "There are a lot of snakes there, and first tell me: Are you the real snake editor we read about in jokes?"

Then the reporter told about himself. He travels all around the country getting snake stories for the New York Sun. He formerly was an employe of one of the departments here, and wrote a few snake yarns for the Sun. They were evidently good ones, for he found it desirable to resign and devote himsel to finding snake stories for the great editor, Mr. Dana. He has done nothing since.

That was satisfactory to Gen. Otis. In fact, he was delighted. He had knocked about the world a great deal and apparently had been watching ican government a concession of 1,000,- snakes; he knows a lot about the 000 acres of valuable land fronting on squirming things. He found that his caller was authority on all types and varieties. For two hours the two reveled in snakes. Gen. Otis had some good Manila ones. For instance, there is one snake that—but it would be hardly fair to the gifted snake editor of the New York Sun to retail infor-

How He Got a Pass.

The death of H. B. Plant recalls a quaint story which is told by a newspaper correspondent well known in New Orleans. "I was broke in New York, and hearing that Col. B. W. Wrenn, passenger traffic manager of to Ann Arbor. They formerly lived in the Plant system, was in town, I called Battle Creek. on him and asked him for a pass torequest, considering that Wrenn didn't know me from Adam, and he very properly turned me down. However, I had to have that pass, so I kept an tackling him, each time presenting some new reasons why the road should curry me to Jacksonville. The last time I called the clerk wouldn't let me in, and handed me one of my cards, on which Col. Wrenn had written; 'Keep this fellow out. If he bothers me any more I'll go crazy." That gave me an idea, and I made a bee line for Mr. Plant's private office. "Mr. Plant," I said, "I want a pass to Jacksonville, Fla." The old gentleman looked at me in amazement. "On what ground?" trouble," I replied. Mr. Plant's face clouded. "What kind of a game is this, sir?" he demanded sternly. "Col. Wrenn is perfectly sane, sir, and 1 won't permit—" "Pardon me," I interrupted, "but Col. Wrenn is at this moment aprehensive of lunacy, and believes firmly that it rests entirely with me to avert the attack. I have his written statement to the effect in my peck-et." "Let me see it," Mr. Plant fairly shricked. I handed him the card and got ready to run. As he read the in-scription his face relaxed. His piercing gray eyes began to twinkle. Fin-ally he lay back in his chair and roared with laughter. "Here, Mr. Smith!" he called to the clerk, "give this young man transportation to Jacksonville and charge it to medical treatment for Col. Wrenn.'"-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Supperless King.

Even a king may perforce have to go supperless to bed. The other day the German emperor attended a smoking concert given by the officers of a regiment of guards. Returning home at midnight he expressed himself hungry and desired supper. But none was forthcoming. For cooks and serving maids had gone to bed in ignorance of the appetizing effects of a smoking concert. Accordingly the kaiser had to go without. It is surprising he took the matter so calmly, for a hungry man is said to be an angry man, and smaller things have provoked the im-perial wrath. But if he took it coolly the empress did not. When she heard of it she gave orders that in future refreshment was to be left for the emperor every night when he was out, so that it should be ready for him to eat if he wished food.

The doctor may be a good old man, but even so, medical examinations and the "local application" treatment are abhorent to every modest woman. They are embarrassing—often useless. They should not be submitted to until everything else has been tried. In nine cases out of ten, the doctor in general practice isn't competent to treat female diseases. They make a branch of medicine by themselves. They are distinct from other ailments. They can be properly understood and treated only by one who has had years of actual practice and experience in this particular line. This is true of Dr. R. V. STORIES OF RELIEF.

Two Letters to Mrs. Pinkham.

Mrs. JOHN WILLIAMS, Englishtown, N. J., writes:

"DEAB MRS. PINKHAM:-I cannot begin to tell you how I suffered before taking your remedies. I was so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without falling. I had womb trouble and such a bearing-down feeling; also suffered with my back and limbs, pain in womb, inflammation of the bladder, piles and indigestion. Before I had taken one bettle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt a great deal better, and after taking two and onehalf bottles and half a box of your Liver Pills I was cured. If more would have to suffer so much." Mrs. Joseph Peterson, 513 East St., Warren, Pa., writes:

take your medicine they would not

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:-I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb. I had the backache constantly, also headache, and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

"I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me."

THE FRENCH FLEET MOVES

ENGLAND SEES SOMETHING SINISTER IN MOVE.

In London It Is Believed That Russia and France Have Some Designs on Great Britain's Territory.

London, Oct. 23 .- It is reported this morning that six battleships and several cruisers of the French Mediterranean fleet have sailed for the Levant, where a French squadron has not been seen for two years.

Nothing would be easier than for the Russian Black Sea fleet to join it by passing through the Dardanelles.

As an additional precaution to foil a dangerous strategic movement by France and Russia, Great Britain has warned its various British naval ports to be ready to send a strong squadron

It is now declared that Russia as well as France is suspected of intriguing, and this is given as the reason for the sudden dispatch of the Channel squadron to Gibraltar.

Russia, it is believed, is looking for an opportunity to make a steal on India. France is eager for an opportunity of any sort to get even for Fashoda.

Dewey Cancels Two Trips. Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—Admiral Dewey, on the advice of his physician, has canceled the dates for his visits to Philadelphia and to Atlanta, and will accept no more invitations of this sort before next spring.

Admiral Dewey's sudden resolution to aveid popular demonstrations in the future, which caused him today suddenly cancel his engagements, is not due to a sudden breakdown of health. The Admiral is sick and tired of demonstrations.

"I want to be let alone," he said, wearily, to a friend yesterday. "This thing is becoming tiresome to me and I am afraid it will soon become more so to the public. I am not without appreciation for the kindness of my countrymen, but there has been too much show already."

Funston was made on merit, after Secretary Root had submitted to the President a list of officers with their record of service. The President their record of service. A cold or any exposure always affected me. I could not rest well nights and in the worn ings felt as tired as when I went to bed I tried different remedies but they did not do me much good. SAPOLIO

I WENTY PER CENT IS SAND

SAID TO BE TRUE OF ALL THE ENGLISH TEA.

Fault Is Said to Lie With the British Public Who Want to Pay Too Low a Price.

According to the ominous statement which appears in the Commercial Intelligence, the tea passed by the English customs in these degenerate days contains at least 20 per cent of sand. Chests of tea refused by Brother Jonathan and our cousins-German pass the inspectors of the English customhouse, and are sold in London, though they probably contain mineral matter varying from 10 to 20 per cent or sand

"But," said a large wholesale tea merchant to a Leader representative, "the fault really lies with the British public. They will insist on having cheap tea-cheap, strong, coarse teaand the result is that the tea dealers have to buy up any rubbish they can lay their hands on.

"The tea inspectors' 'training' is, I believe, a mere matter of form, and when they do drop on a package that's too bad to pass it's quite a mere chance; they can't examine every package that comes into the docks.

"I remember one time I paid the duty on some tea sent here from China, and it was found to be 'false packed'just a layer of tea on the top and sloe leaves underneath! That shows how lax the rules are. Not that I think the public would benefit by a certain standard being enforced. It would certainly hamper trade and the public would be no better off. As it is, all this talk of sand and mineral impurities in tea only applies to the very cheapest teas in the market. If you pay one penny or even one-half penny a pound more for it, wholesale, you can get excellent tea, China or Indian.

"China tea is not sold now to the extent it used to be. I can remember when 180,000,000 pounds were sent over as against the 30,000,000 of today. But China tea is much better to drink.

"Just look at these tasting cups. You see how the very material of the cup is eaten away by that brown stain? Tannic acid. There's nothing, or hardly anything, of that in China teas. But the public won't have them; they must have coarse, pungent tea, and it must be cheap, and the consequence is-tannic acid and adulteration.

"But, at all events, teas are not adulterated to the extent now that they used to be. I can remember when we always had a big magnet to drive into a package or chest of tea to see how many filings would adhere to it-we don't get them now.

"But Mincing lane may be left to say that the tea merchants have been deceived is absurd-they always buy with their eyes open. When a merchant buys 1,000 pounds of tea with about 200 pounds of earthy matter and sand, he knows perfectly well what he is doing-it's a mere question of price." -London Leader.

Carnival Time in Russia.

Shopping, shopping goes on without intermission. Those who can prepare to adorn their bodies with but all make preparations for a sumptuous feast, says Good Words. It is Interesting to watch the shops, especially in the public markets, to see the avidity with which every article of food is bought up. Those who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription do not suffer from the change of life either in face, form or feelings as do other women. This fact is due to the intimate connection of the general health with the health of the organs peculiarly feminine. By preserving the health of these organs, and relieving the system from the debilitating drains, ulcers and inflammations which sap its health, "Favorite Prescripton" payes the way for this flammations which sap its health, "Favor-ite Prescripton" paves the way for this natural change to come in Nature's way, without the loss of capacity to please others or the personal inability to enjoy life.

Mrs. M. Barnes, of Balls Ferry, Shasta Co.,

My head was so dizzy I could hardly stand up.

I feel as well as I ever did."

There is no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant in "Favorite Prescription," neither does it contain opium or other narcotics.

You may be willing that somebody else shall say that their baby is "just as good" as yours, but you don't want that baby substituted for yours. Let dealers say what they like about other medicines being "just as good" but don't let them substitute anything for "Favorite Prescription."

the form of the cross, accompanies all gifts or exchange. The "koolitch" and koolitch is a sweet kind of wheaten bread, circular in form, in which there are raisins. It is ornamented with candied sugar and usually has the Easter salutation on it: "Christos vozkress," ("Christ is risen,") the whole surmounted with a large, gaudy red-paper rose.

The paska is made of curds, pyramidal in shape, and contains a few raisins, and, like the former, has also a paper rose inserted on the top. These are sine qua non for the due observance of Easter, but what relation they may have, if any, to the Jewish feast of the Passover it is difficult to see although in many other respects there is a striking resemblance to the service of the temple in Jerusalem in the ritual of the Russo-Greek church.

Irving and Shakespeare.

Sir Henry Irving is always in his element on the subject of Shakespeare and his recent address to the boys of the City of London school was no exception to this rule. In a utilitarian age such as this even the national poet is apt to be cold-shouldered by parents, because a study of his pages is no help, for instance, to the extension of our trade with China. But Sir Henry claimed with justice that the lessons inculcated by Shakespeare are not out of place even in a commercial career, that "all the lessons which make for the finest manhood are en shrined in him." This criticism goes to the root of the matter; manliness is the special virtue which it should be the desire of every society to cultivate in the budding citizen, and the particular soil in which the virtue grows is a broad and liberal education in the humanities. If Shakespeare teaches the rising generation to be men he may exercise even a not inconsiderable influence upon trade.

WHERE MOTHERS FAIL.

Do Not Realize Problems in Relationship With Grown Daughters.

Too many mothers do not realize that there are any problems in their relationship with their grown daughters. The training of little children is discussed as an all-important topic. Why should not the delicate questions which must arise in every household where two or more women of strong personality live in constant and close contact receive just as careful consideration? It is after the schooldays that the troubles begin. AN UNFAILING SIGN THAT

When Nature is overtaxed, she has her own way of giving notice that assistance is needed. She does not ask for help until it is impossible to get along without it. Boils and pimples are an indication that the system is accumulating impurities which are the rest of the system as accumulating impurities which must be gotten rid of; they are an urgent appeal for assistance—a warning that can not safely be ignored.

To neglect to purify the blood at this

To neglect to purify the blood at this time means more than the annoyance of painful boils and unsightly pimples. If these impurities are allowed to remain, the system succumbs to any ordinary illness, and is unable to withstand the many ailments which are so prevalent during spring and summer.

Mrs. L. Gentile, 2004 Second Avenue, Seattle, Wash., says: "I was afflicted for a long time with pimples, which were very annoying, as they disfigured my face fearfully. After using many other remedies in vain, S. S. promptly and thoroughly cleansed my blood, and now I rejoice in a good complexion, which I never had before."

Capt. W. H. Dunlap, of the A. G. S. R. R., Chattanooga. Tenn., writes: "Several boils and carbuncles broke out.

"Several boils and carbuncles broke out upon me, causing great pain and annoyance. My blood seemed to be in a riotous condition, and nothing I took seemed to do any good. Six bottles of S. S. S. cured me completely and my blood has been perfectly pure ever since."

The Majesty of the Law.

The "majesty of the law" is more than a name, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Two children stood on the corner of Columbus avenue and 87th street the other day guarded by two burly police officers. A knot of interested apartment-house hallboys, nurse maids and their charges, and a few passers-by stood by and discussed the situation. The two children were under arrest. Their misdemeanor consisted in being very small, very dirty and ragged and not knowing "where they were at." They squatted on the steps of the corner house cellar and looked up, round-eyed and awe-stricken, at the men in blue. The men in blue-one for each tiny prisonerwaited in silent dignity, smiling at the crowd's curiosity, but saying nothing. One by one the spectators dropped off. The hall-boys went back to their bells, the ice-cream boy picked up his "returned empties" and staggered off, the servants and shopkeepers returned to their duties. But still the officers of the law stood their ground and kept seems to perform its functions perfect-y, I also took Morrow's Kid-ne-oids 6:45 a clatter of wheels and hoofs or their tonic effect and they acted sounded on the asphalt. Big Store of Stationery.

"The department of justice runs one of the biggest stationery concerns in the country," said a clerk of that department to a Washington Star reporter. "We have to do that to supply the various officials of the department throughout the country. Not many years ago our stationery bureau was used solely for the benefit of this immediate department. Judges, clerks of courts, marshais, and other officials throughout the country purchased their supplies from stores in their cities and towns and sent us the accounts to pay. By this method we paid the retail price for everything. We found this would not do, as the highest prices were paid for everything. Under our present system every official of the government coming under our department makes requisition on us for supplies, and we send them at little cost. most of the time by mail. As we buy everything at cost prices we save to the government thousands of dollars each year over the old method of doing business.

"We carry a stock worth at least $6,000 at all times, and all the judges, marshals, clerks and others send to us for their pencils, writing paper, etc. It's funny, too, what strange fancies some of them have. For instance, there is a certain western judge who won't have anything else but a red pencil which is peeled off when it is sharpened. We carry this pencil in stock for no other person, as not many others have ever taken a fancy to it. I suppose he loses or misplaces all the other kinds of pencils, but finds this one to his liking because he can easily see it. Right here in the District of Columbia is a judge who listens to arguments with six pencils in his hands. He rolls these between his fingers while he is busy, and never has less than half a dozen. He is not particular about the kind of pencil he has. Other officials have peculiar ideas about the kinds of paper, pens and ink they want, and they will have no other. Trus, you see, we carry a more varied assortment of goods than a stationery store."
