HE CARRIES AWAY ANN ARBOR MER-CHANTS' MONEY.

He Drew Checks with Which He Faid Small Bills, and Skipped with the Change Officers on the Trail.

One day last week a well dressed stranger came to the State Savings bank and told them that he wished to transfer his account from Darby, Pa., to their bank. This was all right and the bank took his $1,200 check.

The gentleman then started out and in a short space of time had bought of Ald. Cook a house and lot, paying $20, in a check, down. Then, warming to his work, he went to the furniture dealers, hardware men, etc., and when he had bought a certain amount of each one, gave each a check always a little larger than what the bill amounted to. When the bank saw all these the receipts lacked only $42 68 of cover- checks they wired the bank on which ing this. The year, on the whole, has they were drawn and found that they were no good. Of course the merchants strolled up to the house to get their furniture and they got it but they seem to be in danger of losing the change which he got of each one.

MANAGERS OF THE FAIR.

MEETING HELD FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

How the Business Men Jumped the Fence-A Successful Year.

The regular meeting of the board of managers of the Washtenaw fair was held in the court house Friday. There were many things to be attended to and the directors went to work with a will. First they disallowed the three protests which had been handed in then followed the report of Secretary

He said that his receipts had been $372.25, and he had given orders on the treasurer for $2,903.86, being printing $121; note at Farmers and Mechanics Bank, $123; postage and express. $47.80; labor, $504.90; races, $218.48; allowed by auditing committee, $656.63; premiums awarded, $947.05.

The matter of premiums caused some discussion. Henry Waldron had taken his horses away at 1 o'clock when there is a by-law which forbids exhibitors from removing there exhibits before four. When the directors had expostulated with him he said that there weren't enough men an the ground to hold his horses and out he went. On motion of Manager Schumacher, an order of $100 was allowed the secretary for his services."

The matter of ticket abuses was called up and some startling announcements were made. Men who ought to work for the interests of the fair got passes and then let in people who should pay. Business men were mentioned who climbed the fence and others who passed their tickets out to be used again. Finally a committee was appointed to hit on some scheme, probably the use of a turnstile, to avoid this. The committee consists of Sec. Mills, Treas. Belser, and Messrs. During his administration Tibet will be annexed with great ase to the British territory. She will be the third foreign boundary line of the British lion, and be a scene of perpetual warfare."

As for Lady Curzon: "She is possessed of greater good omens. Her eyes are beautiful and bright and indicative of greatness and royal attributes. She will be famous herself and cause fame to her husband."

The Indian Zadkiel, as he styles himself, sent a copy of his forecast for 1899 to the viceroy and is the proud possessor of a courteous reply from the private secretary, conveying the thanks of Lord Curzon and intimating at the same time the deep interest with which the predictions were perused. The deaf mutes of the civilized world are looking forward with much interest to the international congress, which meets in Paris during the world's fair. It will be the first gathering of the kind since the rise of deaf mute education in the year 1750, and it is most appropriately a meet in the birthplace of the method of education that has been proved most natural and helpful to thousands of this afflicted class. This method found its way to America not long afterward, at the hands of Gallaudet and Clerc, household names among American deaf mutes. The latter was a highly educated deaf mute. Pleasure and the pursuit of it are not he first things inculcated in young ninds among American farming peo-Pleasures come after duty has been done, and they are rewards for the duties that have been well done. This placing of duty first is the great lisciplinary advantage in the training hat country boys receive. The counry work can not be postponed, and accomplishment of it becomes a habit of life, no matter how far removed the person trained in it may be from the field in which it was necessary. Pretty nearly everything a country boy encounters day by day has tendency toward the development of healthy and wholesome individuality. There is a deal of regular work that every country boy must do. This work, pretty much always out of doors, inculcates industrious and regular habts, while it contributes to a physical development which in after years is just as valuable as any athletic training that can be had. He can not run as fast, perhaps, as those trained by a aried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Southing system; he may not be able to jump so high or so far or excel in any of the sports upon which we bestow so much pain, cures wind colic and is the best time and from which we get so much remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-live of pleasure, but his development enables him to buckle down to the hard work in which hours are consumed and from which very little or any immediate pleasure is extracted. His strength may be something like that of a carthorse, but the carthorse is to be preferred where a long and steady pull is required. The thoroughbred racehorse has a fine flight of speed and he caracoles with delightful lightness and grace along the park bridle-paths, but the heavy work is the work that is most in demand, and for that we want the draft animals every time.

The chores that a country boy does are not always pleasant; they are infinitely less agreeable than training for a boat race or for a football game; in their accomplishment there is no reward of applause; it is all humdrum work, which usually begins with the day and which does not end till darkness has settled down and it is time to sleep.-Woman's Home Companion.

Town Hospitals.

Scarce a village is too small for public buildings for education, for the administration of the law, for religious instruction, and for amusement; but how many are the towns that can show a hospital? Matters are very well for the sick in comfortable homes. where the invalid is given a room, is nursed by the most efficient member of the family, and attended by the best physicians. But how is it with the ignorant poor who live in crowded ottages, whose attendants know nothing of hygiene, and who wait too ong before seeking the services of a octor, dreading the expense thereof? bese are the people whom it is a deight to help, and whom the hospital most benefits. There is, however, a growing inclination on the part of well-to-do people to seek hospital treatment for surgery and certain kinds of illness. This makes it advisable to fit up one or two private rooms for such patients as wish to occupy them. Patients of this kind may, and generally do, provide their own private nurse, but in addition pay genrously and are a welcome income to a hospital. It is reckoned that 20 per cent of the expenditures are to be gained from patients, for the hospital can be free only to those who are absolutely unable to pay. The remainder must be raised, and this is where the feeling of public spirit blends with the feeling of universal brotherhood, and the hospital will come to be supported because the town is proud of it.

There is one more point in favor of the hospital in small towns, its benefit to the physicians. Although their services are free to the institution-except in the case of patients in private rooms, who are able to pay for treatment-they are helped by enlarged experience, and by association with the famous doctors who from time to time are called from large cities for an operation or a consultation,-Woman's Home Companion.

"The Navy" at a Ball.

A fancy dress which won much admiration at a recent out-of-town masquerade ball represented the "Navy," says the New York Commercial Advertiser. The young woman who wore it was tall and slender, and her patriotic ingenuity saved her many dollars which might have been spent upon a far less effective costume. A ball dress of white tulle over white silk was the foundation of the costume. Around the waist was a band of marine blue from which fell black ribbons bearing gold letters the names of different warships. These ribbons fell in front, the sides and in the back, forming a fluttering tunic to the knees. All around the foot of the skirt were anchors of silver paper. The blue belt was fastened in front by a huge silver anchor. The decolletage was finished back and front by black ribbons bearing the names of warships, placed straight across from arm to arm. The shoulder straps were brass pavy buttons, strung together, and a pert navy her eyes completed the costume of the

PARIS ADVICES INSIST SUCH IS THE CASE.

Russia Said to Deny Intent to Meddle in South African Affairs --Forbids Formation Russian Volunteers.

Russia has no finger in the South African pie. There is no truth in the reports that Russia is to take advantage of England's difficulties to profit in Asia. It is declared that the government maintains strict neutrality, even forbidding the formation of a regiment | $42,000,000. of Russian volunteers to aid the Boers.

London, Oct. 27.-Paris advices to London papers this morning insist that important action by the European powers is pending. The presence of Count Mouravieff in Paris, the sum-moning of Von Bulow by the Emperor of Germany, the report of the latter's decision to postpone his visit to England, the alleged co-operation of the French and Russian fleets, are cited as a combination of circumstances which, despite all protests to the contrary, is deserving of serious regard.

BIG FREIGHT CAR ORDER.

Twelve Millions Amount Two Railroads Will Invest in Them.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 28.-It is said the Pennsylvania company and the New York Central Railroad company have just placed orders for coal and freight cars to the number of 15,000. the aggregate cost of which will be about $12,000,000. Both companies endeavored to get steel cars, but as their orders could not be filled within a year they were compelled to take wooden cars. The order placed by wooden cars. The order placed by the Pennsylvania company calls for 4,000 box cars and 1.500 gondolas of 80,000 pounds capacity. The order of the New York Central is for 4,000 coal cars of 80.000 pounds capacity, 5,000 box cars, and 500 flat cars of 60,000 pounds capacity each.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 31.—Vice-President Hobart is still alive. That, however, is the only information to be obtained at the residence. Dr. Newton remained at the bedside of the vicepresident all night.

At 7:45 this morning Dr. Newton said that his patient had been sleeping since 4:30 o'clock, but declined to venture an opinion as to the probabilities of the case, though last evening he expressed the belief that death was not many hours distant.

There is little doubt felt among his friends that Mr. Hobart's illness is due primarily to the strain and worry of his two years in Washington and to the incessant demands of politics and political life.

The locomo-tives which are to pull these gorgeous coaches will be painted so as to cor-respond with the general design. The be placed on exhibition at the railway exposition in Philadelphia.

Blow on College Societies.

Geneva, N. Y., Oct. 30.—In the death by drowning Edward Fairfax Berkeley of St. Louis a hard blow has been dealt college fraternities of the select stripe. Cornell undergraduates and alumni confess this, yet they assert that the death of the young man cannot be attributed in any way to the Kappa Alpha society, to which he was to be initiated when he was drowned.

Berkeley was going through the preliminaries of the initiation when he met his death, by drowning while rossing a marsh at command of a col-

Chicago, Oct. 27.-William E. Mason junior Un'ted States senator from Illinois, declared yesterday at the Grand Pacific Hotel that he would resign his toga if the Republican National couvention in 1990 did not declare agains "eriminal aggression" in the Philipines. Mr. Mason even went so fa as to say he would resign if the con vention favored offering the Filipino "canned freedom," as he thought i might do. There must be no evasion on the vital issue of pure and unadul-terated freedom, or the senator will step down and out.

Then Mr. Mason proposes to stand for a re-election, to see whether the Illinois general assembly sides with him or with the policy of the McKin-ley administration.

FERRY STEAMER IS SUNK.

Only Two of the One Hundred Passengers Are Lost.

New York, Oct. 31.-The Pennsylvania Railway Company's ferryboat Chicago, plying between Cortland street, this city, and the Pennsylvania railway depot in Jersey City, was cut down by the Savannah line steamship City of Augusta about 1 o'clock this morning as the ferryboat was crossing to the east side of the North river. Within a few minutes of the collision and before the Chicago could make her slip, she sunk in seventy-five feet of water. It is not definitely known how many passengers were on board the Chicago at the time of the disaster, but the number is variously estimated at from 50 to 100. Two men are known to have drowned.

gives a list of 42 officers taken prisoners, three of whom were wounded.

The earlier dispatches to the war office admitted a loss of 100 killed and said that the Boers had suffered much more than Gen. White's forces. The engagement, however, despite the rather heavy losses, must be regarded rather as an extended reconsissance or skirmish than a battle. A dispatch from Cape Town an-

Bates with the Sultan of Sulu, one of the Philippine Islands, that at the proper time an official statement is likely to be made giving full information to the public. The agreement is wrongfully described as a "treaty, whereas it is merely a provisional arrangement by the commanding general with the local authority, and is not in any sense binding until arproved by the President as commanderin chief. The misleading statements which have been so widely circulated Subtle Legal Point Euded It - Will Probably are that this government has recognized the right of slavery to continue, and that it is paying a heavy bounty to the Sultan to secure his fealty to his jury for the defence. He said that the made by Gen. Bates was laid before the Cabinet by the President at the last meeting, and extensively discussed. Secretary Root says that the criticisms that have been made are both unsound and unfair.

The general opinion is that General Bates made a very advantagous arrangement of what promised to be a most difficult subject. As one Cabinet officer puts it, he secured for the United States the valuable services of the whole ruling family in Sulu for the compensation of a good clerk, and provided for the immediate mitigation f the condition of the slaves and their ultimate emancipation. Not being in actual possession of the Sulu group, and Spain never having exercised more than a nominal suzerainty over it, the ability of the United States military commander to effect these things without trouble or disturbance, is regarded as highly satisfactory It is further said that this arrangement is not permanent, and does not prevent different treatment of the Sulu Islands n the future when the United States thinks best to put further reforms in force, and further, it has not so far been approved by the President, and may be rejected if it should prove that bitter way of dealing with the problem can be found. Admiral Dewey's cancellation of all his engagements under the advice of his physician that he must have rest and quiet, has practically squelched all the talk of his becoming a Presidential candidate. The Admiral is not ill, and will take part in the meetings of Philippine Commission, but he finds that he cannot stand the strain of to Washington that he would not accept a nomintion even if tendered by both parties, because he feels his physical strength is not adequate for the place. The press is ringing now-a-days with ienunciations of trusts, and common saying that the tariff laws of this country are in some way responsible for the creation of trusts and monop olies. Those who are informed on the supject need no confirmation of the statement that trusts are present in free trade countries, and that their existence is not peculiar to the condi tions that exist in America. The Con-sul-General of the United States at Frankfort, Germany, has transmitted to the State Department a copy of the September 20th, 1899 edition of Kuhow's German Trade Review and Exporter, of Berlin. IDEAL SUMMER WEDDING.

reach the diseased portion of the ear. At Least It Was Entirely Different From the Usual.

> Dr. Edward Everett Hale married a happy pair of young people not long ago under one of the biggest oak trees in Massachusetts, says Harper's Bazar.

> A number of guests had spent the forenoon at the country place; several scores more came out at midday from Boston. These were brought by boats, canoes, buggies and buses to the oak; and while the dark-haired bride in her simple white silk muslin was being made wife to the man of her choice 100 people stood up under the broad cauopy of the great oak's branches, looking at the radiant young faces under the marriage bell of field daisies that hung from the tree and listening to the hearty unconventional earnestness of the clear voices saying: "I will!" The salads, ices, sandwiches and cof> fee were served in the veranda and out under a storm-torn linden tree; then the wedding cake was carried over to the new home on the shores of the lake. The bride cut it there and everybody was welcomed to take a peep at the house-that had been built and furnished at a cost of $150, it was presently whispered about, and was to be kept by the little housewife who heiped to build and plan it, being herself a graduate of the architectural department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

> There were exactly three rooms, and, of course, it was only a summer camp cottage, but every inch of it was rich with the thought and taste of the two lovers, who had built and arranged it during the five weeks previous and whose only wedding journey was the walk to their own little nest.

There had been no formality at any moment, and even the most conventional of the wedding guests were in a state of highly romantic sympathy with all of this simplicity and sincerity of life, when an intimate family friend appeared in front of the camp cottage with his camera. The photographing friend ordered them both in the mock professional tones of an amateur of the camera to sit down on their doorstep together. They laughingly. obeyed, and at the psychological moment he snapped the shot that made the pictures of their joyous faces, regarding each other with blissful fun at the sound of his words: "Now, look cheerful! Now try to look cheerful!"

Blobbs' New Idea.

I had it in for Blobbs because he once kept me up all night with a new insomnia cure, and was glad he got a dose of his own medicine. an ingenious idiot, who spends all his spare time devising impractical brilliant plans for doing it the other

He it was who arranged the siphon inkstand that flooded my desk one night, and fixed an automatic lock on the office door that kept us all out one whole afternoon. His latest idea was to prevent things from being stolen.

"Now, you see this watch," he said.
"I shall have "Stolen from B. B. Blobbs' engraved in the case so deeply that it will be of no possible use to the thief and he will return it." Blobbs is such an enthusiastic and plausible talker that in the end Jones gave him his watch, Smith his jeweled matchsafe, and the old man his new umbrella, all to be engraved with this new thief insurance.

There is one commendable thing dom forgets to push a thing throu to a swift conclusion, consequently 8 o'clock that evening he called for the engraved valuables and got them, a fact that it would have taken any of us weeks to accomplish. But Blobbs has a way with him.

Now, if Blobbs had hastened home to Sedamsville at once, as he had intended, all would have been well, but he happened to meet a convivial friend and together they wandered the woozy way. Here again Blobb's ingenuity asserted itself in the invention of a new mixed drink, warranted to exhilarate but not to produce paresis.

Flushed by his success with this de-lectable compound, Blobbs invented others, and later the police found him over on the esplanade with his closed, preparing to take a bath in the fountain, under the impression that he was safe in the privacy of his own apartments, and they gathered him in.

Ordinarily a gentleman laboring un-der such a delusion is treated gently by the authorities, who have a broad and charitable knowledge of human weaknesses, but when they found in his possession a watch marked "Stolen from B. B. Blobbs," another marked "Stolen from J. J. Jones," an expensive matchbox marked "Stolen from S. S. Smith," and an umbrella marked "Stolen from the Old Man," they said: "Ah, ah!" and looked for Blobbs' picture in the rogues' gallery and took his Bertillon measurements and otherwise maltreated him.

In the morning Blobbs looked out through a purple haze and some cruel bars and sent for me.

"Charley," said he, "I've got myself in a terrible jam. I got woozy last night and they found me with Jones' watch and Smith's matchsafe and the old man's rain stick on my clothes. You know all about these things, so please tell these fellows who I am.' But I looked upon Blobbs with a cold, unresponsive eye, in which there was no glitter of recognition, and, turning to the officers, I said pityingly: "This fellow must be dopey. I never saw him before.' As I have said, I had it in for Blobbs.-Cincinnati Enquirer.

Miss Ella Rose of Grass Lake has artists, who can adapt themselves at once to what best suits the individual horse that they happen to be riding, says the National Review. One jockey likes to jump off in front and keep there as long as he can; another prefers to be third or fourth most of the way and generally tries to creep up to the leaders about the same time if he can, perhaps a quarter of a mile from home. Another nearly always pulls his horse back last and then seeks to win by a rush at the finish. By closely watching the idiosyncrasies of his rivals the clever jockey knows what to expect from each one and so gains many advantages by laying traps for them and upsetting their plans. Very few horses indeed can make their own running to advantage and it is usually considered from five pounds to seven pounds disadvantage for a horse to do so. With a sluggish horse, especially in a match or a very small field, it may even tell more against it. Some horses, on the other hand, run their best races when in front and if riding a generous horse who cannot quite stay the distance or has too much weight compared to his rivals it is a distinct advantage for a jockey possessing a firstrate perception of pace to go in front in order to stop the pace, if the others will wait upon him, and so cause the race to be a false-run one.

Undoubtedly both on the flat and especially in steeplechasing, the best place for a jockey to be is just at the heels of the leaders, if only his horse has sufficient pace to keep there without unduly distressing itself. It is a dangerous game to lie behind and trust to the leaders coming back from having exhausted their powers prematurely unless the pace is really excessive. If the jockeys in front have been able to properly control their horses, the horse that has been lying off must put forth increased exertion to catch the leaders up, which must tell upon it, and if the others are capable riders, as soon as they see that the rear horse is endeavoring to get up to them they will call upon their horses to do their best and so turn the race really into one, perhaps, of half a mile with several lengths start of the horse behind.

Washington's Wedding. "In a suit of blue and silver with scarlet trimmings and a waistcoat of white satin embroidered with buckles of gold on his knee garters and on his shoes, his hair powdered and by his side a dress sword, the bridegroom (Washington) towered above most of his companions," writes William Perrine in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Mrs. Custis, his bride, did not reach higher than his shoulders when she stood with him before the old episcopal clergyman in his full canonicals. The mistress of the 'white house' wore a costume which had also come from London. In her hair and ears were ornaments of pearl; she wore white little matron, with light brown hair and hazel eyes, had a plump and pleasing figure, an easy and graceful carriage, a comely face and fine shoulders, and with her three bridesmaids, and with the fine women of the fam-Hies of the neighboring domains in attendance, there was a splendid display of the charms and graces of Virginia womanhood. Nor were the men less distinguished. The country gentlemen in their richest raiment and the provincial officers from Williamsburg in their uniforms, were headed by the gallant Lieut.-Gov. Fauquier. Around him stood a group of English officers, hardly less showy in their trappings, together with members of the legislature and other civilians. When the bride entered the coach which was bright with the Washington colors of red and white and drawn by six horses guided by black postilions in livery, the bridegroom did not enter with her. There was his favorite horse, with his tall bodyservant holding the reins and waiting for him to mount. When Washington mounted the richly caparisoned charger he rode by the side of the bridal coach, closely followed by a cortege of gentlemen on horseback."

How many hours out of each day should be allowed for sleep? Some plume themselves on doing with few others are ashamed to own how many they take beyond what is ordinarily supposed to be sufficient. The truth is, that the question cannot be definitely answered, so much depending upon constitution, occupation, and habit.

Those who take little sleep probably get all they need, while the long liers abed may have need of all they take, The average amount required for health differs with age. Young children are usually and rightly allowed to sleep as much as they will—more perhaps for the relief of the nurse than the good of the child, but even at the age of 10 or 11 a child, according to a medical authority, should have 10 or 11 hours' sleep per day.

Under the age of 20 nine hours' sleep is the proper allowance, while eight is enough, but not more than enough, for adults till the prime of life is past. The tendency is to sleep too little rather than too much. Insufficient sleep is one of the crying evils of the day.-New York Telegram.

RENOWNED CLOCKS.

A Few of the Old-Time Ones Were Very Fine.

During the sixteenth century some fantastically ornate clocks were produced, but the richest and most intricate of the period was the second of the world-famed Strasburg clocks. Besides an ordinary dial it had a celestial globe indicating sidereal time, a yearly revolving calendar for the century, months, days, names of saints and dates of movable feasts. Above this calendar there appeared daily in succession figures of cars representing the days of the week-Apollo on Sunday, Diana on Monday, and so on. A figure of Death struck the number of hours on a bell, and a cock on top of one of the spires flapped its wings and crowed at noon. This marvel was finished by the talented brothers Habrecht, and a specimen of their work may be seen in the clock that is placed at the top of the main staircase of the British museum. There is an amusing rhyme associated with the sixteenth-century clock in the church tower of St. Mary's steps, Exeter. In a niche above its dial there are three mechanical figures. The center one, representing Henry VIII., strikes the hour, inclining its head at each stroke; the two side figures strike the quarters. The humorous folk of Exeter have named these "Matthew the miller and his two sons," in playful derision of a miller named Matthew, who was famed in the district for his clocklike punctuality and methodical habits; and thus arose the following quaint rhyme:

'Matthew the miller's alive. Matthew the miller's dead: For every hour in Westgate tower, Matthew nods his head."

The famous clock in the Palais de Justice of Paris dates from 1370 and is the work of the celebrated De Vick, whose turret-clocks are the earliest on reliable record. The carved figures of Piety and Justice and the angels sup-porting the royal coat of arms were porting the royal coat of arms were executed by Germaine Pilon. It is be- gion. Daly's Books and Bric-a-Brac.

Few persons, even in the late Augustin Daly's circle of friends, knew quite the extent and value of the reasures contained in his private library. The volumes were accumulated slowly and with infinite pains by Mr. Daly and during the latter years of his life they grew dearer to him than any other of his various belongings. Through his old friend, J. W Bouton, he purchased rare editions and unique works, frequently paying several thousand dollars for books that were considered prizes by collect ors, says the Dramatic Mirror. The entire collection is valued at not less than $50,000 and that figure is considered a most conservative estimate.

Among the works of unusual rarity on Mr. Daly's shelves are two volumes of Gen. Grant's Memoirs, illustrated in pen and ink by David E. Cronin Only one duplicate is known to exist that having been made for George W. Childs at a cost of $3,000. Perhaps the greatest treasure of the library is the Donai bible, a volume known to bookmen the world over, a rare history of London in thirty-six folio volumes, illustrated with 30,000 engravings, etchings, water-colors and lithographs; a set of Ireland's "History of the New York Stage" and a set of Dickens, firs: editions—the last named valued at $2, 000-are some of the books that Mr. Daly especially prized.

Some years ago Mr. Daly purchased at a high figure a large collection of letters to and from Charles Dickens, in which are friendly missives from Washington Irving and many other distinguished men of the time. Mr. Daly also gathered together one of the most complete collections of playbills known to exist. Only a few months ago he purchased an almost priceless crapbook in which were two bills announcing the first appearance of Adelina Patti-aged 8-at John Brougham's theater, near the corner of Broadway and Broome street.

Mr. Daly's collection of furniture, bric-a-brac, armor and costumes, while in a sense a part of his theatrical equipment, is still of such interest and value that it may be reckoned among his more private treasures. No theatrical manager ever before accumulated so many articles of genuine wort? with which to decorate his stage. There was never a sham bit of tapestry, bronze or metal work displayed in any of the Daly productions and the collection of real properties that the manager accumulated in his storeis said to be worth fully

He Laid Down.

Only the other day the Kansas volunteers got under a fire so heavy that, after spreading out in line of skirmishers, the order was given to lie down. One unfortunate solider flopped quarely into an ant-hill. Thousands f the little pests swarmed angrily over him, biting with the peculiar penetration of Filipino ants. In a second the soldier jumped up, swearing and almost screaming with the pain.

"Lie down, my man," shouted his aptian.

"All right, sir," and down flopped the unhappy soldier. He could stand it only a few seconds, when he leaped once more to his feet.

"Lie down, I tell you," insisted the Blankety-blank, captain, I can't!" protested the poor fellow.

Just then a sheet of Mauser bullets ew past him at all heights, from his shins to his head. It was marvelous that the standing soldier was not hit in a dozen places. But he changed his mind swiftly about the possibilty of lying down. Down he went, regardless of ants, shouting to his command-

'Yes, I can, captain! By the holy moke, yes, I can, sir!"

And he remained down until the order came to rise .- Leslie's Weekly.

Wonderful Rescue of an Eastern Woman from Death, at Fort Smith, Arkansas.

"We notice many curious things in our business," said the clerk of a large hotel at Fort Smith, Ark., but the average druggist sees more of them than we do. W. H. Cole, one of our best known druggists, lately told me a wonderful story. He said there came into his store one day, about the most feeble old lady he had ever seen. She could scarcely walk, and she could not have weighed 70 pounds. She had just come from Pennsylvania. The doctors there had told her she could never reach Fort Smith alive, as she was in the last stages of consumption. But she determined to see her son and daughter here before shedied. Now comes the strange part of the story. Cole had sent a pack-barn, five head of valuable horses, age to the daughter wrapped in a piece of newspaper. This bit of paper hap-pened to tell how a famous medicine— Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Coughs and Colds-had cured a woman of consumption, and the old lady wanted to try it. She bought a bottle, then went to her son's in the country, where she stayed, taking this medicine all the time. One day a plump, rosy-cheeked elderly woman came in. Neither Cole nor his wife knew her, and they could hardly believe it when she told them she was the old lady who had been there five months before, expecting to die almost any day. She now weighed 140 pounds and said the marvelous medicine-Dr. King's New Discovery-had saved her life." Mr. Cole will confirm to anyone the facts here given. Whoever suffers from any Throat or Lung trouble should get this supreme remedy. It has cured many cases of Consumption given up by doctors, and positively cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Pneumonia, Hemorrhage, Pleurisy, La Grippe, Lung Fever, severe Colds, obstinate Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Money back if not cured. A trial bottle free. At all druggists.

RELIEF FROM PAIN.

Women Everywhere Express their Gratitude to Mrs. Pinkham.

Pirs. T. A. WALDEN, Gibson, Ga., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:-Before takng your medicine, life was a burden to me. I never saw a well day. At my monthly period I suffered untold misery, and a great deal of the time I was troubled with a severe pain in my side. Before finishing the first bottle of your Vegetable Compound I could tell it was doing me good. I continued its use, also used the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, and have been greatly helped. I would like to have you use my letter for the benefit of others."

Mrs. PLORENCE A. WOLFE, 515 Mulberry

St., Lancaster, Ohio, writes:
"DEAR MBS, PINKHAM:—For two years I was troubled with what the local physicians told me was inflammation of the womb. Every month I suffered terribly. I had taken enough medicine from the doctors to cure anyone, but obtained relief for a short time only. At last I concluded to write to you in regard to my case, and can say that by following your advice I am now perectly well."

Пrs. W. R. BATES, Mansfield, La., writes: "Before writing to you I suffered dreadfully from painful menstruation, leucorrhœa and sore feeling in the lower part of the bowels. Now my friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this great change. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. It is the greatest remedy of the age."

LAUNDRINE

So Called for Want of A Better Name.

Is a liquid Compound patented by Dr. Sallade of Pottsville, Pa. who has made Sanitary Science a study and has had years of hospital experience.

It possesses the combined properties of being a thorough cleanser, bleecher, dendorizer, antiseptic, disinfectant and germicide.

It is a household article of great merit. Destined to displace ammonia because it is better than it.

It is a better cleanser than either soap or ammonia, because it combines all the best detergent agents, among them ammonia and chlorine gases held in solution, both of these gases are very volatile and are lost by evaporation during the process of drying and hardening of scap,

It heals wounds, cuts, abrasions, burns and calds because it cleanses them. Antiseptically allays irritation. It is the finest toilet article on the market renders the skin soft, healthy and white and allays liching. As a disinfectant it has no superior, containing 12 per cent free chlorine and should be used freely for spraying carpets, rooms and furniture, also sick hambers, sinks etc.

For washing and cleaning clothing it has no equal. Sold by grocers at 10 cents a pint, try a bottle and be con-

ETHICS OF HORSE-RACING. Owners Can Tell Little About the Condition of Their Horses. The public most certainly has some grounds to consider that a horse is intended to take part in a race when It figures day after day at the head of the betting in the daily papers and no warning is uttered by the owner that he has not thoroughly made up his mind as to whether the horse will start or not, says the National Review. Yet It often happens that it is quite impossible for the owner to settle for certain as to whether it is wise to run until the very last moment before the numbers go up, and as he who pays the piper has a right to call the tune, so must the owner have a right to do as he thinks best for himself.

The presence or absence of certain other horses that are also entered and are dangerous rivals must necessarily affect the chance of his own animal, and if they should happen to catch a cold, or a cough at the last moment or receive an injury on the training ground, or mayhap in the very way to the course itself, and so be prevented from starting, such a difference may be made in the chance of winning that a complete alteration may be necessitated in the plan of campaign, and the particular race for which the horse should start be quickly determined.

High-strung horses are often much upset by the bustle of the rallway journey and the noise and excitement of the race-course and its surroundings. It may so happen that a nervous youngster, who has been compelled for some reason or other to proceed to the course two or three days before the meeting, has fed so badly since its arrival that it would be in the highest degree injudicious to subject it to the ordeal of a severe race when in a weakened condition, the memory of which might-and, indeed, very likely would-ruin the animal for life, and make it always averse to racing. Cowardly race horses are far too common, and in nine cases out of ten have been made so by bad management and want of common sense. Perhaps the most frequent cause of their becoming so is either from being run when unfit to do best-and nothing breaks a horse's heart more than a severe strug- THEY ARE ALSO MANY OTHERS OF EQUAL gle when not thoroughly fit-or from being continually pitted against animals that are their superiors.

Great Russian Poet.

A hundred years ago Russia gave birth to one who was destined to become the brightest star in her sparsely studded galaxy of poetic genius. Pushkin and Micklewicz share the honor of being the two representative poets of the Slavonic race, and the only poets of their country who have attained wide-world celebrity. In the productions of this strange genius, Pushkin, Russian poetry first became an independent power. His writings were at once the type and expression of his country's nationality, and they have become part of the household language of his native land. He is undeniably pendent power. His writings were at of his native land. He is undeniably the national poet of Russia.

Pushkin's birth and parentage are more than usually interesting and significant. The founder of the family was a German warrier, who migrated into Russia and obtained great renown in the art of war. One of the most celebrated of the poet's ancestors was Gabriel Pushkin, who espoused the cause of Demetrius the Pretender, that unfortunate impostor who so nearly became emperor of all the Russias. This ancestor plays an important part lists, Springfield, Ohio. in the poet's historical tragedy, "Boris Godunoff." But on his mother's side Pushkin's descent is still more pecullar. His mother was the granddaughter of an African who was brought to Russia by Peter the Great, who gave him the name of Hannibal, and placed him in the navy, where he rose to the rank of admiral. Thus the poet blended in himself the cold temperament of the Teuton and the fiery untamed spirit of the children of the desert. To this ancestor he dedicated more than one of his smaller works, and he makes frequent and proud allusion to his African descent.

His education was erratic, many teachers having him in charge. A young Scotchwoman taught him English literature, and a Russian woman trained him in the literature of his own country. Pushkin was a poor scholar, though he read widely. He was irascible, gloomy and imperious. His poetry was the first ever read by the peasantry, and he was worshiped throughout Europe by the lower classes as well as being a favortie with the nobility. He died at 38, killed in a duel.

Coughed Up a Tooth.

Joseph Hatfield, proprietor of the Tremont hotel, Marion, Ind., had a remarkable experience recently. For nearly twenty years he has been a sufferer from pain in the right lung and physicians have given him up as a hopeless consumptive. Recently he had had a number of hemorrhages. Today he had another attack and felt something dislodge from the spot in his lung that had given him so much pain. The foreign substance was torn loose and coughed out. On examina tion it was found to be a tooth that had been lodged in the lung for nearly twenty years. Mr. Hatfield says that about twenty years ago he had a num ber of teeth extracted and that gas was administered to relieve the pain and that the tooth must have passed down his throat while he was uncenscious .- St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

South American Mountains.

The results of the hypsometric measprements recently made by Sir William Martin Conway of the high Andes of Bolivia, seem to determine definitely that Aconcagua, in Argentina, is the loftiest summit of the American Cordilleras, and accordingly the culminating point of the entire western hemisphere, says the Nation.

Although this was the general assumption of geographers, the rival claims of the Nevado de Sorata and Illimani, which in the older geographies were represented to have altitudes respectively 25,200 and nearly 24,000 feet, and even quite recently to approximate these heights, have left he question an open one. The present observations reduce these elevations to 21,710 feet (for the highest peak of the Sorata or Illampu) and 21,015 feet, a result strikingly in accord with that obtained by Minchin-21,470 and 21,224 feet-and about equally correspondent with that derived by the English geologist, Pentland, from his revised triangulations conducted in 1838, which gave 21,286 feet for the Sorata and 21,145 feet for Illimani.

The absolute altitude of Aconcagua is, perhaps, still in doubt, but the measurements of Fitzgerald and Zurbriggen, made during their late successful and unsuccessful attempts to the mountain a height fully equal to that which had been assumed for it by Fitzroy and Darwin, 23,200 feet, and about 1,000 feet more than was claimed by the Spanish engineer, Pissis, (22,-422 feet.) The Sorata and Illiman! now not impossibly also yield second place, as a number of summits, both in northern Chile and in Bolivia, are close competitors and have at least the advantage of being reputed to be more | flower.

CANCER IS DEADLY!

Results Fatally in Nine Cases Out of Ten-A Cure Found at Last.

This fearful disease often first appears as a mere scratch, a pimple or lump in the breast, too small to attract any notice, until, in many cases, the deadly disease is fully developed.

Cancer can not be cured by a surgical operation, because the disease is a virulent poison in the blood, circulating throughout the system, and although the sore or ulcer-known as the Cancer-may be cut away, the poison remains in the blood, and promptly breaks out afresh, with renewed violence. The wonderful success of S. S. S. in curing obstinate, deep-seated blood diseases which were considered incurable, induced a few despairing sufferers to try it for Cancer, after exhausting the skill of the physicians without a cure. Much to their delight S. S. S. proved equal to the disease and promptly effected a cure. The glad news spread rapidly, and it was soon demonstrated beyond doubt that a cure had at last been found for deadly Cancer. Evidence has accumulated which is incontrovertible, of which the following is a specimen:

"Cancer is hereditary in our family, my father, a sister and an aunt having died from this dreadful disease. My feelings may be imagined when the horrible disease made its appearance on my side. It was a malignant Cancer, eating inwardly in such a way as to cause great alarm. The disease seemed beyond the skill of the doctors, for their treatment did no good whatever, the Cancer growing worse all the while. Numerous remedies were used for it, but the Cancer grew steadily worse, until it seemed that I was doomed to follow the others of the family, for I know how deadly Cancer is, especially when inherited. I was advised to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), which, from the when inherited. I was advised to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.), which, from the first day, forced out the poison. I continued its use until I had taken eighteen bottles, when I was cured sound and well, and have had no symptoms of the dreadful affliction, though many years have elapsed. S. S. S. is the only cure for Cancer.—Mrs. S. M. IDOL, Winston, N. C.

Old England.

A striking historical tableau of the execution of Charles I. is added to the said that the selfishness of women list of attractions at Mme. Tussaud's well-known exhibition in London. The group has been well modeled by Mr. John T. Tussaud. The calm and dignified look of King Charles forms a striking contrast to that of his faithful friend, Bishop Juxon, who, with griefstricken face, is listening to the last feels himself to be both on his defense words of his king.

The Zulus now being entertained in London have been shown the sights of the city and their impressions are instructive, though the savages were far from being wonder-stricken. "I never dreamed," said one old man, "that any kraal could be so great and beautiful, but it is black-black as night. In the underground city it must be blacker still"-for they are stations, etc., that there is another and greater London lying beneath the streets. The statues-except one of a Mercury-left them cold, but the lions in Trafalgar square provoked the compain across the small of my back, the result of a diseased condition of the kidneys. This bit of fastvanishing London has connections with two-potentates, an eastern and a European. Prior to 1862 it was occupied by the queen of Oude, who, after the mutiny, came to this country, bringing with her a large suite, many of whom encamped in the gar dens belonging to the house, and also carrying her lares and penates, which consisted of some 2,000 idols. At an earlier date the mansion, for a time, changed its name to Brunswick house, in honor of that somewhat eccentric and not particularly admirable duke of Brunswick, whose diamonds, fortune and failings were subjects of European gossip and who made this house a temporary home.

England experienced some frosts the last of May which, besides surprising the inhabitants of that mild-aired land, ruined enormous fruit and vegetable crops. Thousands of acres of strawberries felt the blight and hundreds of acres of early potatoes shriveled up. The price of green vegetables was raised by the devastation and the humble cabbage sold for $300 to $350 man's inhumanity to man is less than woman's, but the time seems to give it some proof. At any rate, a man evidently disabled would not be allowed to stand in a public conveyance in which able bodied men were seated, even in the most unchivalrous part of our country, which I have given some reasons for believing to be the city of New York. His majesty of Portugal is a firstrate pigeon shot and so keen on this particular form of sport that the Lisbon club bids fair to become the most noted center on the continent. The last meeting had a particular interest, because of a magnificent seventeenthcentury, enameled silver dish which was being competed for. The king made a heavy score. The coveted prize was borne off by Senor Alfredo O'Neill, and when the result was declared considerable amusement was caused by some wag who called out, "By the powers, but it's Ireland forever!" At the next meeting a prize given by the king will fall to the biggest score.

Output of the Klondike.

No one will ever know exactly how nuch gold was taken from the Klondike fields the past season. Since the English government imposed a royalty, the miners have adopted all sorts of ruses to evade the law. It is rather difficult to dodge taxes, but it is more difficult to dodge a bad cold and the grip at this time of year.
