Mr. Waldron is specially vitoralic in reference to the officers taking up his case and canceling his premiums without giving him a chance to be heard. He avers that he was induced to make an exhibit only on the strength of the promise that he was allowed to take his stock home on Thursday and that he did not begin to remove his horses until so late Thursday that it was far into the night before he arrived at his home with the last of the stock he had on exhibition.

Mr. Waldron in his communication says many other unkind things about the fair management. From his standpoint, the association or as he declares Mr. Mills has been very unjust in the matter and Mr. Waldron does not mince his words in letting those with whom he talks about the matter, know just what he thinks about it.

Canada's Minions Exact the Last Pound of Flesh From the Miners in the Klondike --- One Man's Experience.

Paul Perry, the son of the late Prof. Perry, superintendent of the Ann Arbor (Mich.) school, is home from a two years' stay in the Klondike. He says he went for experience, which he got. He thinks the area of gold-bearing creeks is very limited. There are only five good paying districts about Dawson City. By that he means claims that pay over $10 a day. He cannot relate enough about the corruption of the Canadian officials. He thinks the members of the Tweed ring in New York were angels compared to the Canadian custom house officers and land office officials. He purchased an outfit from a man named Bennett, which had not cost Bennett over $50. The custom house officer demanded $26 duty. Upon Bennett's kicking, the custom house officer said he had made a mistake, that the duty was $39. The next man that came along after Bennett had an outfit costing $1,000. He had some fresh meat with him and gave the inspector a piece. His duties were only $12.

When the men stood in line at the land office in Dawson City a $10 bill would gain admission at the side door and $50 would cause the clerk to antedate a location. If a prospector would get into Dawson City and go to get his claim located, he would be asked what his claim would pan out. If the reply was ten or twenty-five cents a pan, which was good, the officials would answer, after taking his minutes and appearing to look it up, that he thought there was a prior location and the prospector should come to the office in five days. In the meantime a note was sent out to some one in the gang and the elaim would be located and the stakes dated back, and the industrious prospector would be out in the cold. The officials sent out by the government at Ottawa, instead of trying to show up the corruption, seem to try to cover it up to prevent any scandal. The miners must pay a miners' license, a fee to cut down logs to build a boat or a raft, and also a fee for the privilege of building the boat. The officials have gone there to enrich themselves by bleeding the people. With English soldiers standing around to enforce the robbery the Americans seem to lose all of their courage and act very supinely. In any part of the United States there would be a riot under similar circumstances. Last winter there were 20,000 people around Dawson City and this winter only 12,000 If the camp was run under American mining laws it would be a great

Sees With Nose and Feet.

There is a blind man living in the heart of the old quarter who walks nearly every day to a little restaurant near Canal street, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. The distance each way is from sixteen to twenty blocks, according to his route, and to see him sauntering carelessly along one would never suspect his infirmity.

Talking with an inquisitive reporter, he declared that he saw with his nose and his feet, and this was the way he explained it: "When a man has his sight," he said, "the smells of the street are all mixed up, but when he's blind he learns to separate them. The smells of the shops are almost as plain to me now as the signs used to be over the doors. Some of them you would hardly suppose to exist. Take a dry-goods store, for instance, it smells of cloth, and cloth has a very peculiar odor. Iron and tin have smells of their own, and I can tell a hardware store immediately. I pass two bookstalls nearly every day, and I scent them yards off by the old books. Then there are a great many indescribable odors by which I know this place and that. Of course, my feet are my principal guide, and I've been over the same ground so often that I have learned every little inequality by heart, but I couldn't get along with either processors and the same ground so often that I have learned every little inequality by heart, but I couldn't get along with either nose or feet alone. They work together, and where one fails the other helps out. Between them they make very good eyes. secret of my stepping out is this: I've learned how to stop. People who can see hurl themselves forward like locomotives. That's why the shock is always so unexpectedly violent when you collide with another person. I put no extra power whatever in my move-ments, and if the toe of my boot touches some unknown obstacle I stop stock still instantly."

This clever blind man leads a very tranquil life. He has a small income and lives with a granddaughter. A servant is hired especially to read to him every afternoon. Many of those who know him are unaware of his blindness.

Fashions Compared.

The celebration of the eightieth anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth naturally called forth comparisons between the fashions and social customs that obtained in England when the sovereign was young and those of the present day. On the whole it must be admitted this generation has the advantage in these matters. But as Lady Jeune has pointed out, it has not "improved for the better" in all respects. For example, women are less womanly in 1890 than they were in 1819. Parents are treated less re-spectfully nowadays, and the demeanor of women in public is less dignified than formerly. However, women do understand the art of dress a great deal better than the dowdy matrons and maids of the early years of the century. Of course, they had fewer opportunities to dress, and there was far less idea of their outrivaling each other in attire than is now the case. while less attention was given to the dainty accessories which do so much to give elegance and finish to a woman's tollet, and upon which such infinite care and taste are now bestowed. NERO'S GOLDEN HOUSE.

ARE NOT THERE FOR THEIR The Vastness of Extent and Magnificeness Surpass Bellef.

> On that part of the ruins of imperial Rome lying between the Palatine and the Esquiline hills-a space which was more than a mile in breadth-Nero erected his celebrated "Golden House," as he called the new palace in which he fixed his abode. The vastness of extent and the varied magnificence of this imperial residence and its ornamental grounds almost surpass belief; but if the details that have come down to us respecting it were not too well authenticated to admit of doubt they might be regarded as fabulous.

> Within its inclosure were comprised spacious fields, groves, orchards, and vineyards, artificial lakes, hills, and dense woods, after the manner of a solitude or wilderness.

> The palace itself consisted of magnificent buildings, raised on the shores of the lake. The various wings were united by galleries, each a mile in The house or immediate dwelling of the emperor was decorated in a style of excessive gorgeousness. It was roofed entirely with golden tiles, and with the same precious metal also the marble sheathing of the walls was profusely decked, being at the same time embellished with ornaments of mother of pearl-in those times valued even more highly than gold-and with a profusion of precious stones.

> The ceilings and woodwork were in laid with iron and gold, and the roof of the grand banqueting hall was constructed to resemble the firmament, It was contrived to have a rotary motion, so as to imitate the motion of the heavenly bodies.

The vaulted ceilings of ivory opened and let fall on the guests a profusion of flowers and golden pipes sprayed over them the most delicious perfumes.

The vastness of the plan prevented the Golden house of Nero being finished during his lifetime. Vespasian drained the principal lake of this fairy region, on which he built the coliseum, and pulled down all that Nero had erected beyond the Palatine, reducing the imperial palace to the hill that once contained Rome. Domitian built and added mfwlyptaoi Domitian built up what his predecessor had pulled down and added to the palace the adones or halls and gardens of Adonis, the splendid wonder of that age of magnificence. Septimus Severus made several additions to the south of the Palatine, especially the Septizonium, the site of which has been much disputed. While in later days Pope Sixtus V. carried off to St. Peter's the three orders of columns of which it was composed.

Among the modern discoveries of the palace were a room full of Roman coins and a hall hung with cloth of gold, and in another part of the Pala-tine a spacious hall covered with paintings.-Philadelphia Press.

School Queries and Answers.

An answer, given in one of the Cambridge local examinations, was particularly bright, says the London Standard. The question was in mechanics, and was, "Why will a pin not balance on its point?" The reply was: "Firstly, because a point being that which has no magnitude cannot stand upon what does not exist. Secondly, it will, Herculaneum and Pompeii died from an eruption," was the answer to a question concerning the deaths from the great eruption of Vesuvius in A. D. 79, and an eminently practical answer to a question as to where Magna Charta was signed was "At the bottom.'

The idea that job horses were so called because they had to endure such a lot, is distinctly original and showed a good power of deduction in the child who was responsible for it; while to the question of what a high church was, the answer was, one with a steeple. Children who are at that age when they object to the term child, frequently make mistakes as ludicrous as their younger brethren. The following two examples come Britannia, the boys on board of which are from 13 to 16 years of age. The question was: "Why is there a circumflex accent on the e in etre?" One answer occupied two pages of foolscap. It told how in the middle ages there was a great controversy as to whether the accent should be grave or acute, and at last, being unable to come to any other agreement, the contending parties decided to each give way to the other and put both accents. with the result that the accent on etre was a combination of the acute and grave. In the same set of papers the feminine of pretre was given as sœur de charite.

THE WASHINGTON WEDDING

NOT CERTAIN WHERE CERE-MONY TOOK PLACE.

Interesting Description of the sprightly Little Matron and Her Bridal Costume and Ornaments.

In a suit of blue and silver with scarlet trimmings and a waistcoat of white satin, embroidered, with buckles of gold on his knee garters and on his shoes, his hair powdered and by his side a dress sword, the bridegroom (Washington) towered above most of his companions. Mrs. Custis, his bride, did not reach higher than his shoulders when she stood with him before the old Episcopal clergyman in his full canonicals. The mistress of the white house wore a costume which had also come from London. In her hair and ears were ornaments of pearl; she wore white satin slippers, and on the buckle of each was a dia-The sprightly little matron, with light brown hair and hazel eyes, had a plump and pleasing figure, an easy and graceful carriage, a comely face and fine shoulders, and with her three bridesmaids, and with the fine women of the families of the neighboring domains in attendance there was a splendld display of the charms and graces of Virginia womanhood. Nor were the men less distinguished. The country gentlemen in their gayest raiment and the provincial officers from Williamsburg in their uniforms were headed by the gallant Lieut.-Gov. Fauquier. Around him stood a group of English officers, hardly less showy in their trappings, together with members of the legislature and other civilians. When the bride entered the conch, which was bright with the Washington colors of red and white, and drawn by six horses guided by black postilions in livery, the bridegroom did not enter with her. There was his favorite horse, with his tall body-servant holding the reins and waiting for him to mount. When Washington mounted the richly caparisoned charger he rode by the side of the bridal coach, closely followed by a cortege of gentlemen on horseback.

Although one of the most interesting events in Washington's private life, his wedding has been comparatively neglected by the majority of his biographers. It is generally agreed that the ceremony took place on the 6th of January (or the 17th of January, new style), 1759. But as to whether it was performed in St. Peter's church, in New Kent county, or at the home of the bride, known as the 'white house," there is a wide variance of opinion. The weight of local authority is against the belief that it occurred in the church, indicating that the couple were married there, although its rector, Rev. Mr. Mossom, who had been in the pulpit for 40 years, solemnized the contract. On the other hand, those who insist that the clergyman officiated in the church point to accounts that Washington rode on horseback on the day of the wedding, and that the pair were attended by a bridal cavalcade, as evidence that there was a journey beween the church and the home of the bride. This, however, is offset by the conjecture that the cavalcade was escorting the couple immediately after their marriage to Mrs. Custis' house in the town of Williamsburg, or to Mount Vernon, and that they were repairing thither moon.-Ladies' Home Journal.

THE WORLD MOVES.

A Few Hundred Years Ago it Would Have Meant Death to Have Told a Fact Which Every One Now Believes.

Some acts that have been done in the past make us feel that those who did them should have been shut from the examination papers of the within dungeon walls. You felt just this way when you read how the stupid Italian authorities treated Gallileo for telling them of his wonderful discovery that the world moved. He had to take back his words or they would have killed him. But when Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption was made twenty-five years ago, and proclaimed a cure for the most terrible scourge that afflicts mankind, it brought hope and joy to a vast throng of sufferers. To-day thousands of them are well and strong who had been given up by their doctors to die, because they used this wonderful remedy. People are always filled with surprise when they see how quickly Dr. King's New Discovery cures all diseases of the Chest, Throat and Lungs, including the most stubborn Coughs, severe Colds, Pneumonia, Pleurisy, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Hemorrhage, Lung Fever, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup, A formal or first call lasts 15 min- Whooping Cough, etc. It acts directly on the diseased mucous membranes of the throat and lungs, with a healing power almost miraculous. Mrs. Mary A. Wheeler, of Rockford, Ill., was saved when it whether accepted or not, necessitates seemed Consumption had chosen her for a victim. She writes: "I had a very severe attack of the 'grippe, which left me with one lung affected and a constant and distressing cough, which my doctors could not cure. I had heard of Dr. King's New Discovery and decided to try it, and was entirely cured by one bottle. Since then it has cured many whom I advised to use it. It is the best remedy I have ever known." Ypsilanti, Mich., Nov. 13.-Rex Buell, a conservatory student, has come into local fame by saving the main building on Normal campus from being de-stroyed by fire. This afternoon he went into the chapel for the purpose of practicing on the pipe organ when smoke was seen coming from the opening between the organ and the wall With rare presence of mind he turned on a stream of water from the stationary hose and quelled the fire just as it was spreading to the wooden organ casing. From every appearance old books and papers had been piled up and then a match applied. Three young boys about 12 years of age were seen in the building by the janitor and it is supposed that in a spirit of mischief they started the blaze.

"In 1894 I was attacked with paralysis in my left side. You might stick a pin to the head into my left hip and I would not feel it. I was unable to do any kind of work, and had to be turned in bed. I fully made up my mind that I could not be cured, as I had used all kinds of medicine and had tried many doctors. At last I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I very reluctantly commenced their use last September. Before I had finished my first box I began to feel much better, and by the time I had used six boxes the paralysis disappeared; and although two months have passed since I finished my last box, there has been no recurrence of the disease."

From the Advertiser, Aztell, Neb.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, scistica, neuralgia rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold by the dozen or hundred, but always in pack-ages. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Wil-liams Medicine Company. Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box, 6 boxes $2.50.

In what purported to be a generous outburst of patriotism, Senator Mason of Illinois threatened to resign unless the flag was hauled down in the Philippines, but it now turns out that there is a local deal in Illinois politics back of it, by which Mr. Mason would get a place with double his present salary.

How does Mr. Bryan stand on the ruling propsition in Democratic southern states that their governments shall be controlled by white men, even if in a minority? A good many of the governed are not asked to give their con sent to their government.

Great Changes in Foreign Christianity-Dewey as a Missionary.

Bishop Thobura preached to crowded house Sunday evening "The Christ of To-day." He talked first of the change in our conceptions. Hell and did everything possible to avoid is no longer a distant pit of fire but a real condition on earth; heaven, too, is on earth and Christ himself is a personal spirit moving the hearts of men.

> "Forty years ago; when I began missionary work, I could go to no counry in Europe except Sardinia. Africa was walled in; China had but four open cities; Japan, none; South Americs would permit no religious toleration; the only region open was India. But now a great change can be seen; there are 700,000 people who may be reached by Christ's disciples. A few years ago there was one place where missionaries could not go. That was the Philippine Islands. But since Dewey destroyed the Spanish fleet, have been open to missionaries. ENGLISH ON PRONUNCIATION.

They Refer to Oxford and Not to Dietionaries For Authority. The inquest of Austin Gavin decided

Who or what is conceded to be the English authority on pronunciation? I and a number of other greatly distressed Americans residing in England would be very glad of this informa-

A day or two ago, in a company of well-educated English and American men and women, I was asked by an Englishman why we Americans insisted upon speaking the English language incorrectly, says Pall Mall Gazette. I

"I think that educated Americans, on the whole, speak English correctly. At the same time, if you will prove, on the best English authority, The sons say that the father stepped that we mispronounce, I am sure you Immediately I was caught up on the word "amenable." "It is not 'a-me-nable,' but a-men-able!" declared my English critics. "It is incorrect to give the e the long sound.

"But Noah Webster, in his dictionary, says it is 'a-me-nable,' " I retort-"Oh, well, Webester is no authority here," was the reply.

"Who, then, is?" I asked, for, as I said before, I am always "a-me-nable" to reason.

Why, the best of our lit'ry people do not consult a diction'ry. Oxford is our authority on pronunciation, and when an Oxford professor says a thing is right, why then it is right!" declared an apparently intellectual Britisher. Now, I would like to know if this is the true state of affairs. Must I as a lit'ry woman, instead of consulting a diction'ry in my own libr'y during my earnest endeavors to learn to speak English as she is spoke" over here telegraph, telephone or write to Oxford before I am at liberty to say whether I write a letter of "con-dolence" with a long o and accent on the second syllable (according to my muchespected Webster), or "con-do-'ance," with the accent on the first syllable according to what some English cholars tell me). Again, if it is true that Oxford is the recognized authorty on pronunciation, may I ask who told Oxford how? We may say in America that Yale or Harvard or the University of Chicago is an authority, but the professors in these universities would doubtless refer us to Webster. I am not pleading for the substitution of Webster's dictionary for any "diction'ry" that may be in use in England. I ask only, Which one is the one? Or is it neither, but just Oxford?

It is to be Similar Addition At County House Will known as "The Disappointed Authors" Club," and is composed of only such The building committee of the board persons as can produce large numbers of tattered, thumb-marked, unsold manuscripts. Poems bordering upon the risque, poems upon spring, falling leaves and drunkards' homes shall be systematically submitted to magazines in good standing as best calculated to annoy and exasper-ate." It is intended to call special sessions of the club for the purpose of denouncing the abomination known as honest toll.' The young man who was considered the most eligible person for president has impoverished himself buying stamps. He can repeat by heart the rinted note of the various publishing houses accompanying rejected manuscripts. He knows several editors by sight, and has stinging adjectives which he applies to them under his breath as they pass. He knows to the exact hour when a manuscript is due. Once when a manuscript was kept a week over the usual time he wrote and remonstrated and secured it back by special messenger. He is eminently suited for the place.

There is a man soon coming from Boston, however, who is equally eligible for president. He once wrote story so atroclous that the editor to whom it was submitted wrote him he would have him arested for murdering the English language if he ever sent another like it; that the publication of the story would be a crime against society.

The waiting list of the "Disappointed Authors' Club" is already large, and no new members will be admitted until original members either die or be-come successful and retire from the

and Leave in Book.

To some people anything is good Dropsy is a terrib a disease in itslest enough for a bookmark, says the New York Telegraph. In a good many instances they forget to remove them when they have finished reading the book. That is the reason why so many odd things find their way to the public libraries. A librarian was talking about this thing the other day, He said:

> "I could stock a museum with the queer things I have found in our books. These articles include allkinds of bills, grocery bills, gas bills and the like; hair pins, fancy and plain and of all metals, and hair ornaments of every design and material; love letters galore, some of which make one blush reading; locks of hair, bits of lace, dress samples and watch-chain charms; pen-and-ink, pencil, crayon and water-color sketches; postal orders and postage stamps; and I have also a dried human ear, which I found in a book on surgery, borrowed by a medical student probably, as I hear they carry all sorts of uncanny things about with them.

> "Photographs, too, figure largely in my collection. I once found an insur-

> "It is purely the result of absentmindedness. A person deeply engrossed in a book and suddenly called away from it would dreamingly put his hand out and take the first thing he saw to use as a bookmark, then go away and forget all about it. The time allowed for borrowing the book might expire on that or the day following and probably a member of the > counter is supposed to turn over the pages of returned books in the presence of the borrower, but whether this is always done largely depends upon the humor of the assistant. In a crush returned volumes are laid aside for future examination.

> "The artful advertiser cannot let even library books alone. Somebody is an agent for a certain patent medicine. He takes out half a dozen books to anybody else's one, not that they ever read, but simply for the purpose of inserting a circular. I have at last succeeded in stopping him."

Havana's Queer Social Way.

"In Havana society, as in all society of Spanish or Portuguese origin, the formality of prefixing a name with Mr., Mrs., or Miss is done away with. A person is invariably addressed by his or her first name. A young bachelor does not hesitate to call a matron whom he has just met by her Christian name, nor does she hesitate to address him in like manner. Again, a maried woman is invariably known by her maiden name. That maiden name, followed by a small de, which in its turn is followed by the husband's name, is printed on her visiting cards. After the death of the husband the words 'widow of' are printed before his name.-Philadelphia Press.

PERTAINING TO HEALTH.

A German Has Constructed a House Said to Be Proof Against Microbes.

A German savant has constructed a bacillus-proof house. The supply of air is first forced through a pipe, it is then filtered through cotton-wool, and, lastly, is driven against a sheet of plate glass coated with glycerine. This is supposed to catch all the bacteria saving of the nation, these which have not been selzed by the toilers of both sexes, strugglass, that the heat of the sun may kill any stray microbes that have entered by chance.

An epidemic of suicides raged in Paris during the month of July. No fewer than seventeen cases of suicide were reported at the prefecture of police on one Sunday. Suicide on account of unrequited affection is not rare in Paris but nearly all these recent cases were due to poverty. The fact that so many occurred on the same day is accounted for by Saturday being the quarter-day for small rents. One of the most sad of the seventeen tragedies was enacted in the Rue Versigny, at Montmartre, where a widow, Mm.e Legouge, 30 years of age, killed herself and her two little boys. She had worked hard in trying to make a living as a dressmaker, but in spite of all her efforts had fallen behind in paying her rent, and decided to put an end to her exstence. Similar reasons led to the suicide of a couple, aged 50 and 60, respectively, in the Rue Hautpoul. They had been reduced to want by the death of their son.

Our chief aim in the days that pass seems to be the saving of time, and the very latest effort in this direction will be gratefully welcomed by those who find that the matutinal toilet preparations absorb so many minutes of each day. Instead of having to go through the usual routine of rubbing oneself down on stepping from the bath, then donning a robe de bain and slippers, and finally giving oneself a finishing polish, so to say, under the new system all one will have to do is literally to blot oneself like a letter. For a means has been discovered of utilizing paper for bath robes and slippers, so that the bather, on emerging from the water, simply gets into a blotting-paper garment, so to speak, and is straightway dry. The process is said to be much warmer than the usual method, and a preventive of colds. Perhaps the time may yet come when we shall paper ourselves instead of dressing, or, at all events, array ourselves in garments composed of this material. "Mrs. Blank looked charming in semi-diaphanous draperies of tissue paper," or "Miss Jones, in a lovely gown of cream-laid note with revers of moss-green hieratica" may in some future fashion journal be described for interested readers.

Sport at Oxford.

Athletics and the social part of Oxford life will first impress the stranger. Every day of term from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until the early winter dusk, or the late, lingering summer the Oxford man takes his pleasure in a very grave and a very businesslike manner. On the river, for example, it is amazing to behold the quiet dignity with which the rowing man submits to the bullying and the sarcasm of the coach on the tow-path. Or if the stranger visits the Holywell tennis courts, and looks on at that great fiannel-trousered battalions of busy players, he will be struck by the serene quietness of it all. The only sounds he will hear will be the low, steady patter of the tennis balls and an occasional subdued "thirty all," or "love fifteen." Or if he goes to the parks and becomes a spectator at one of the great football matches, between Cambridge and Oxford, for instance, he will hear no "rooting," there will be no horn blowing, and no college cries, no flag waving, and no undergraduate delirium.

Now and then, after a particularly good play, he will hear a little patter of gloved hands, and perhaps some forgetful little urchin shame-facedly admiration; but that will be all. And at those long, summer afternoon cricket matches he will see the same thing repeated; the same melancholy stillness and the same sad austerity. They may enjoy it; it is to be presumed they enjoy it or they wouldn't do it. But to the American, if he happens to have seen once the fluttering sea of blue and heard the thunder of voices when Yale scored, it will seem lacking in animation and life.

WILL FORCE LABOR TO TERMS

Chicago Architects and Contractors Unite Against Union Organizations.

Chicago, Nov. 10.-Chicago archiquietus to building operations.

Employers assert that labor, as organized in Chicago, will be fought in every phase and with every weapon. They will make the matter an issue in ions of the unions for the sake of ballots. They will brand the unions as trusts of the most bare-faced description, and fight them in the courts on the ground of unconstitutionality, under the anti-trust legislation of Illinois.

Married Victoria's Son.

The wife of the duke of Connaught. one of Queen Victoria's sons, has a pretty wit and a gift of caricature. She was Princess Louise Margaret of Prussia, and is related to Emperor William of Germany. She and her two sisters were trained according to the punctilious German idea, much attention being given to domestic studies. From her earliest infancy she imbibed the military spirit.

The duke of Connaught wen to Berlin to attend the wedding of the girl "chum" of Princess Louise, who was to marry a grand duke. He met the little German princess and their engagement soon followed. Princess Louise was barely 18 and her fiance was ten years older. She had great conversational powers and brightness and was a general favorite in Berlin, As a princess of Prussia Princess Louise received on her marriage the sum of $150,000 as a dower. ADMIRAL DEWEY WEDDED.

Quietly Married to Mrs. Hazen at the Rectory of St. Paul's.

Washington, Nov. 9.-Mrs. Mildred Hazen and Admiral George Dewey were quietly married at 10 o'clock this morning at the rectory of St. Paul's Catholic church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James F. Mackin, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Joseph A. Foley and Rev. Sidney Hurlbut.

The ceremony was strictly private and of the simplest character. The bride was accompanied by her mother and sister, while Admiral Dewey was accompanied by Lieut. Caldwell, his

Eczema—which is more than skin-deep, and can not be reached by local applications of ointments, salves, etc., applied to the surface. The disease itself, the real cause of the trouble, is in the blood, although all suffering is produced through the skin; the only way to reach the disease, therefore, is through the blood.

Mr. Phil T. Jones, of Mixersville, Ind., writes:

"I had Eczema thirty years, and after a great deal of treatment my leg was so raw and sore that it gave me constant pain. It finally broke into a running sore, and began to spread and grow worse. For the past five or six years I have suffered untold agony and had given up all hope of ever being free from the disease, as I have been treated by some of the best physicians and have taken many blood medicines, all in vain. With little faith left I began to take S. S. S., and it apparently made the Eczema worse, but I knew that this was the way the remedy got rid of the poison. Continuing S. S. S., the sore healed up entirely, the skin became clear and smooth, and I was cured perfectly."

HARE BREEDING FARM.

Young Men Expect to Make a Big Thing Raising Rabbits.

A corner in rabbit meat in western Pennsylvania, as well as Ohlo valley towns as far down the river as Cin-cinnati, is threatened. Ten enterprising young men of Allegheny have completed arrangements for establishing a breeding farm near Industry, the aim of the venture being to give more and better meat to the great army of consumers in this part of the country. The common, every-day township rabbit is not wanted, as he is a little too light for cornering purposes, but heavier Belgian hare, an advanced type of rabbit. "Bert" D. Taggart, of 513 Federal street, Allegheny, who is at the head of the venture, wants all the Belgian hares that he can possibly secure; 500 pairs are needed to get the venture started right and Mr. Taggart expects to send to who, at a pinch, can "yank a street car out of a coal cellar."

This limitation to the powers of the vesterday: yesterday:

"Should everything go well in three years we will be able to put our first product on the market. It may seem a long time and the money to be expended considerable, but we think it will pay in the long run. We purpose to raise 1,000,000 hares per year and to sell them, too. We will kill and sell looks like a whole lot, but it ain't so many when you know that the people of Pittsburg and Allegheny eat 1,000,-000 rabbits every year. Ten thousand per day during the season is the amount consumed. We have figured long and closely, and with the Ohio valley towns, which we can reach in 12 hours' time, we can easily dispose of 1,000,000 hares per year. I violate no confidence in saying that we expect to be able to furnish the hares dressed cheaper than the ordinary pot hunter who now supplies the market can shoot the wild rabbit.

The Belgian hare is by far the better for our business. He is much larger and his meat is better. A Belgian hare will clean about four founds, while our common rabbit will clean but two and a half pounds. The hare, too, is very prolific-a pair of good hares will produce at least three families of six each yearly. No one cand find fault with this increase. We have already found that our first hares will cost us not less than 20 cents apiece. The entire farm in the suburbs will be fenced in with the wire used in chicken farms, and every effort will be made to protect the little animals and bring them on as fast as possible to the great and hungry public."-Pittsburg Times.

Rejected Him.

"It was such a good joke on me," said the girl in the gray velvet toque to the girl in the blue velvet shoulder cape, as they stirred their hot chocolate, "that I must tell you. "You know how John has been proposing to me at regular intervals ever since he was out of knickerbockers. Well, he did it again the other night, and, with his usual facility, chose an occasion when I was very cross.

"He did it a little more awkwardly than usual, too, deliberately choosing the old-fashioned method of offering me 'his hand and heart.' "

Here she paused to drink some chocolate, and the girl in blue asked breathlessly what she said:

"Oh!" remarked the other, in the tone of one relating an event of no importance, "I told him that I believed I was already provided with the full quota of bodily organs, and that I wouldn't deprive him." "And what did he say?" "Well, Belle, that's the funny thing.

He seemed to brace up, and said, politely, that at any rate there was no doubt about my having my full share of cheek! And I was so delighted to find a man capable of even that much repartee on being rejected-that I acrepted him."-Cincinnati Enquirer.
