The light is fading down the sky, The shadows grow and multiply.

1 hear the thrushes' evening song; But I have borne with toill and wrong So long, so long! Dim dreams my drowsy senses drown,— So, darling, kiss my eyelids down!

My life's brief spring went wasted by,—
My summer ended fruitlessly;
I learned to hunger, strive and wait,—
I found you, love—oh happy fate!—
So late so late!
Now all my fields are turning brown,—
So, darling, kiss my eyelids down!

Oh, blessed sleep! oh, perfect rest! Thus pillowed on your faithful breast, Nor life nor death is wholly drear,

O tender heart, since you are here So dear, so dear!

There is one form which persistency takes that is peculiarly trying: I mean that persistency of opinion which deems it necessary to stop and raise an argument in self-defense on the slightest personal criticism.

John tells his wife that she is half an hour late with her breakfast this them. morning, and she indignantly denies it.

"But look at my watch !" "Your watch isn't right."

"I set it by railroad time." "Well, that was a week ago; that watch of yours always gains."

"No, my dear, you're mistaken." "Indeed I'm not. Did I not hear you telling Mr. B- about it?" " My dear, that was a year ago-before I had it cleaned." "How can you say so, John? It is only a month ago."

"My dear, you are mistaken." And so the contest goes on, each striving for the last word. This love of the last word has made more bitterness in families and spoiled more Christians than it is worth. A thousand little differences of this kind would drop to the ground, if either party would let them drop. Suppose John is mistaken in saying breakfast is late-suppose that fifty of the little criticisms which we make on one anoth r are well or ill founded, are they worth a discussion? Are they worth ill-tempered words, such as are almost sure to grow out of a discussion? Are they worth the destruction of the only fair ideal left on earth-a quiet, happy name? Better let the most unjust state ments pass in silence than risk one's temper in a discussion of them. Discussions, assuming the form of warm arguments, are never pleasant in gredients of domestic life, never sate recreations between near friends. They are, generally speaking, mere unsus-(ROCERS, Provision and Commission Merchants, and I Dealers in Water Lime, Land Plaster, and Plaster of Paris, one door east of Cook's Hotel. than to make both parties more positive in their own way than they were before. A calm comparison of opposing views, a fair statement of reasons on either side may be valuable; but when warmth and heat and love of victory and pride of opinion come in, good temper and good manners are too apt to step out.

And now Christopher, having come to the end of his subject, pauses for a sentence to close with. There are a few lines of a poet that sum up so beautifully all he has been saying, that he may be pardoned for closing with them.

Alas! how light a cause may move, Dissension between hearts that love; Hearts that the world has vainly tried, And sorrow but more closely tied : That stood the storm when waves were rough Yet in a sunny hour fall off. Like ships that have gone down at sea When heaven was all tranquility!
A something light as air, a look,
A word unkind, or wrongly taken,

Oh, love that tempests never shook ? A breath, a touch like this hath shaken For ruder words will soon rush in To spread the breach that words begin And eyes forget the gentle ray They wore in courtship's smiling day, t the And voices lose the tone which shed Till, fast declining, one by one, The sweetnesses of love are gone, LUMBER YARD! Stop Grumbling.

If all the grumblers in the world were summoned together by some thundering Calliope, what an army there would be. Since the days of Xerxes, nothing in numbers could compare with such a host. The late financial troubles have furnished all the recruits necessary, or that could be desired to keep the "regular army" complete. You find grumblers everywhere, as thick as the frogs of Egypt. No trade, calling or profession is free from them. Now we have a word to say to such men, and we hope they will not grumble at us for so doing. Let us describe Grumblers are a very lazy set. Having no disposition to work themselves, they spend their time in whining and complaining both about their own affairs and those of their neighbors.

Grumblers are usually a year behind the age, and therefore when they undertake an enterprise, they find themselves so far down stream, that all the winds and tides of sympathy, so necessary to success, are against them.

Grumblers are usually very independ ent-"caring nothing for nobody ' termined to "go blind," they find a "wide berth" and a "hard road to travel" wheresoever their footsteps lead

Grumblers are very easily scared. They always see double. A lion is in the way sure-no mistake about it There is always something going to happen. Look out for breakers! is the great refrain of their every day song

Grumblers have a most capacious ap petite for favors as well as food, and are therefore always on hand, and just in time to accept the gift of a particular friend. Their favorite motto is "small favors thankfully received, and large ones in proportion.' Grumblers are always very jealous of their character and influence in society, and generally quite as good as anybody. They should, therefore, be treated with great consideration. Grumblers are usually long lived, in the opinion of their friends, and should therefore be cured of their disease as soon as possible. Now, in order to prevent another financial crisis and sundry other events too numerous to mention, we wish to give a little advice to our fellow citizens of the whole grumbling fraternity. 1st. Stop grumbling. 2d. Get up two hours earlier in the morning, and begin to do something out of your regular profession.

Caterpillars.

A few days ago, while taking a little trip into the country, we noticed an orchard, apparently thrifty and in most respects well cared for, but on almost every tree there were one or more nests of caterpillars. Now, we take it that the farmer who owns : hat orchard, is not a reader of the Western Rural, or any other agricultural paper, or he would not have disregarded the many directions he must have seen in relation to the destruction of these pes's. That one who has been at the expense and trouble of setting out and caring for an orchard, should thus allow the trees to be seriously injured and his prospect of a fruit crop destroyed, seems almost incredible, vet we often see want of care manifested by those who are in other respects good

Many modes of destroying caterpillars may be practiced. For small trees the neatest and best way is to cut off or rub off the eggs before they are hatched. Some nests may be overlooked in this way, and for large trees it is not advisable. The pests are sometimes washed off with strong suds, burned off with paper, shot off with powder or scraped off with sticks. Any one of these operations is exceedingly disagreeable-to the caterpillars-but unless great care is used there will some survive the catas trophe and live to avenge the departed. Perhaps the surest way, when the nest is on a small twig or branch, as is frequently the case, is to out the branch off and burn it. When this cannot be done we would advise putting stout gloves on and using the hands to thoroughly re move every particle of the nest. This work should be done in the morning before the caterpillars have left the

Benjamin Franklin tells us in one of his lectures, that when he was a boy, a ittle book fell into his hands, entitled : Essay to do good, by Cotton Mather.' It was tattered and torn, and several leaves were missing. "But the remainder," he says, "gave me such a turn of thinking as to have an influence on my conduct through life; for I have always set more value on the character of a doer of good than any other kind of reputation; and if I have been a good citizen, the public owes all the advantages of it to the little book."

A "Radical" View.

We quote the following, simply re-marking that Purcurs and Whittier are neither Democrats nor "copperheads": Wendell Phillips, at a great meeting of the Anti-Slavery Society, at Cooper Institute, held forth as follows on the execution of leading traitors :

Mr. Phillips, in reply to the former speaker, said: That holding the common Southern white man in one hand, reading the newspaper, and the negro in the other, holding the ballot, and each standing on his own farm, he was not afraid of Jeff. UNANIMOUS JOURNALISM. - For the first time within our recollection all the newsapers in this city are agreed upon an important question of law and propriety. The Evening Post, the Commercial Advertiser, the Journal of Commerce, the Times, the Tribune, the World and the Daily News unite in exposing the blunder of the authorities in ordering the conspiracy trials to be before a military court, and in declaring this purpose to be in violation of the constitution, unnecessary, injudicious, and without justification. The Herald alone has not yet spoken out upon this subject, but it does not defend the action of the War

PLAN OF THE WORK.

Since Sir Waiter Raleigh solaced his Imprisonment in the Tower by the composition of his "History of the World," the Literature of England has nevar achieved the work which he left unfinished. There have been "Universal Histories," from the bulk of an encyclopædia to the most meagre outline, in which the annals of each nation are separately recorded; but without an attempt to trace the story of Divine Providence and human progress in one connected narrative. It is proposed to supply this want by a work, condensed enough to keep it within a reasonable size, but yet sofull as to be free from the dry balcness of an epitome. The Literature of Germany abounds in history,—such as those of Muller, Schlosser, Karl ve Rottock, Duncker, and others,—which at prove the demand for such a book, and furnish models, in some degree, for its execution. But even those great works are somewhat deficient in that organic unity which is the chiel aim of this "History of the World."

The story of our whole race, like that of each separ ate nation, has "a beginning, a middle, and an end." That story we propose to follow, from its beginning in the sacred records, and from the dawn of eivilization in the East,—through the successive Oriental Empires,—the rise of liberty and the perfection of heathen polity, arts, and literature in Greece and Rome,—the change which passed over the face of the world when the light of christianity sprang up,—the origin and first appearance of those barbarfan races which overthrew both divisions of the Roman Empire,—the annals of the States which rose on the Empire's ruiss, and the steady progress of modern liberty and civilization,—and the extension of these unitences, by discovery, conquest, colonization, and Christian missions, to the remotest regions of the earth. In a word, as separate histories reflect the detached scenes of human action and suffering, our aim is to bring into one view the several parts which assuredly form one great whole, moving onwards, under the guidance of Divin

No pains will be spared to make this history scholar kein substance and popular in style. It will be four led on the best authorities, ancient and modern, original ded on the best authorstics, speciet and modern, original and secondary. The vast progress recently made in historical and critical investigations, the results obtained from the modern science of comparative philology, and the discoveries which have laid open new sources of infofmation concerning the East, afford such facilities as to make the present a fit epoch for vr undertaking.

For a number of years I have been vary baily afflicted with the Files, so much so as to render me at times totally unfit for business. I found no permanent relief from the many remedies which I made use of, and almost despaired of effecting a permanent cure. I was at length induced by your agent at Ann Arbor to make trial of your remedy, which he warranted to effect a cure or receive no pay. I considered if like most other patent medicines—a numbur, until I began to improve. Birds and Corn.

A correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph speaking of several methods for driving birds from the cornfields, says :- "I will give a better, cheaper and more humane plan, in my estimation, for keeping birds from destroying young corn. Some fifteen years ago, after I had planted my corn, I had oceasion to be away from home for about a week, and on returning I went to look at my corn. I tound the corn fairly up, but found also that the birds had pulled up a great deal, which was replanted. I then began to study what plan teadopt to prevent the birds from pulling up more corn. The idea of killing the beautiful birds never entered my head, nor of driving them away. I came to the conclusion to feed the birds, consequently I took about one peck of corn and seattered it around the field near the fences and trees, the places where birds are the most apt to pull the corn. I soon saw that they ate up this corn, and did not disturb that in the bill. After the first peck of corn disappeared, and the growing corn not yet considered out of danger, I scattered in the same way another peck, and by the time this was consumed, the corn was out of danger. So well pleased with the result was I, that I have always used the same mode since. Half a bushel of corn will be enough for a ten acre field." The editor of the same paper remarks :- "This plan of protecting the cornfield against the depredation of birds, is no doubt the cheapest and most effectual one yet suggested. A friend of ours in Bucks Co adopted the same plan a couple of years ago, and says it acts to a charm. He, however, soaks the corn before scattering it around his fields, for the reason that the erow and grakle never eat dry corn. Give a domesticated crow dry corn and he will carry it away and bury it for a day or two. We have often ob served them doing this. We hope all farmers will try this cheap and simple protection, by which they can not only save their corn, but the birds also, which will do much to keep the farm clear of injurious insects.

Salt for the Garden.

Lately some practical men have recommended application of salt to gardens, either in autumn, after the crops have been removed, or in the spring before or after digging for crops; and we have no doubt from our own limited experience in its use, that it will effect all that is claimed for it. For years it has been established that salt hay from the marshes over-flowed by sea-water, was far to be preferred as a mulch to any other substance. The application of urine, also to fruit trees, especially the plum, where it has been most generally used is well-known to have a very beneficent effect. The fruit-growers of New England and New York, claim for salt many advantages by sowing it under pear trees. They say it gives the blush to this fruit. It will have the effect in a garden, also, of destroying noxious insects which have their winter habitations in the ground. From six to eight bush els to the acre can be applied with safety. Any coarse, refuse salt will do It should not be buried—the rains will dissolve it and carry it down. Farmers frequently have salt from their meat tubs and mackerel barrels, which could be used in this way, after being thorat the rate of about four bushels to the Boot and Shoe Grease. The Shoe and Leather Reporter says hog's lard is admirably adapted to secure to leather both pliability and impermeability to water; train oil after it dries up, renders the leather brittle. Hog's lard renders the leather perfectly pliant, and no water can penetrate it. It is especially suitable for greasing boots and shoes; but in the Summer season an eighth part of tallow should be melted with it. It should be laid on when in a melted state; but no warmer than one's finger dipped in the mass can bear. When it is first applied to a boot or shoe, the leather should be previously soaked in water, that it may swell up, so that the pores can open well and thoroughly absord the lard. The liquid lard should be smeared over (to be water proof) at least three or four times, and sole leather oftener still. Afterwards the lard remaining visible on the outside should be wiped off with a rag. By these means you have a water-proof boot or shoe, without the annoyance caused by most stuffs of penetrating the leather and greasing the stockings. An occasional coating of hog's lard is also to be recommended for patent leather boots or shoes, as it prevents the leather from oracking, and if it be not rubbed in too strongly the leather will shine just as well after the grease has been applied.

It is proposed to commemorate the next 4th of July by laying the cornerstone of the monument over the National Cemetery at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. There is now on hand for this object

Dr. Decasine of Antwerp announces that the itch may be cured instantaneously by simply applying, without rubbing, petroleum to the parts affected. The mere emanations of the oil are sufficient to disinfect the patient's clothes.

The History of Dr. Schenck's own Case, and how he was cured of Consumption.

cured of Consumption.

Many years ago, whilst residing in Philadelphia, I had progressed gradually into the last stage of Pul monary Consumption. All hopes of my recovery being dissipated, I was advised by my physician, Dr. Parrish, to remove into the country. Moorestown, New Jersey, being my native piace, I was removed thinker. My father and all his family had lived and died there—and died of Pulmonary Consumption. On my arrival I was put to led, where I lay for many weeks in what was deemed a hopeless condition. Dr. Thornton, who had been my father's family physician, and had attended him in his last illness, was called to see me. He thought my case entirely beyond the reach of medicine, land decided they I must dia, and zave me one week to arrange my temporal affairs. In this apparently hopeless condition, I heard of the remedies which I now make and sall. It seemed to me that I could feel them working their way, and penetrating every nerve, fibre, and dissue of my system.

My lungs and liver put on a new action, and the mor working their way, and penetrating every nerve, fibre, and tissue of my system.

My lungs and fiver put on a new action, and the mor bid matter which for years had accumulated and irritated the different organs of the body, was eliminated, the tubercles on my lungs ripened, and I expectorated from my lungs as much as a pint of yellow offensive matter every morning. As this expectoration of matter subsided, the fever abated, the pain left me the cough ceased to harass me, and the exhausting night-sweats were no longer known, and I had re reshing sleep, to which I had long been a stranger. My appetite now began to return, and at times I found it difficult to restrain myself from eating too much; with this return of health, I gained in strength, and now am fleshy. I am now a bealthy man, with a large healed cicative in the middle lobe of the right lung and the lower lobe hepatized with complete adhesion of the pleura. The left lung is sound, and the upper lobe of the right one is in a tolerably healthy condition.

Consumption at that time was thought to be an incurable disease, by every one, physicians as well as those who were unlearned in me licine—especially such cases as were reduced to the condition I was in. This induced many people to believe my recovery only temporary. I now prepared and gave the medicines to consumptives for some time, and made many wonderful cures; and the demand increased so rapidly that I determined to offer them to the public, and devote my undivided attention to lung diseases. In truth, I was next to foreed to it, for people would send for me far and near, to assertain whether their cases were like mine.

For many years, in conjunction with my principal mine.

For many years, in conjunction with my principal office in Philadelphia, I have been making regular professional visits to New York, Boston, Baltimore, and ittsburg. For several years past I have made as many as five hundred examination weekly with the "Respirometer." For such examination my charge is three dollars, and it ambles me to give each patient the true condition of his disease, and tell him frankly whether he will get his disease, and tell him frankly whether he will get well.

The great reason why physicians do not cure Consumption is, that they try to do too much; they give me.ichnes to stop the cough, to stop the n ght. wents, heetie fever, and by so doing they derange the whole digestive system locking up the secretions, and eventually the patient dies.

The Pulmonic Syrup is one of the most valuable medicines known. It is nutrient, powerfully tonic, and healing in itself. It contains no opium, yet loosens the phlegm in the bronchial tubes, and nature throws it off with fittle exertion. One bottle frequently cures an ordinary cold; but it will be well first to take a dose of Schenck's Mandrake's Pills to cleanse the stomach. The Pulmonic Syrup is readily digested and absorbed into blood, to which it imparts its healing properties.

of Schenck's Mandrake's Pills to cleanse the stomach. The Pulmonic Syrup is readily digested and absorbed into blood, to which it imparts its healing properties.— It is one of the best preparations of iron in use; it is a powerful tonic of itself; and when the Seaweed Tonic dissol es the mucus in the stomach, and is carried off by the aid of the Mandrake Pills, a healthy flow of gastric juice, good appetite, and a good digestion follow. The Seaweel Tonic is a stimulant, and nove other is required when it is used. It is pure and pleasant; no bad effects like when using Bourbon whisky, which disorders the stomach, toryors the liver, locks up all the secretions, turns the blood futo water, dropsy sets in, and the patient dies suddenly.

Bourbon whisky is recommended now-a days by almost every physician. Many patients that visit my rooms, both male and female, are stupefied with this poison. The relief is temporary. If they cough they take a little whisky; if they cannot sleep, they take a little whisky; if they cannot sleep, they take a little whisky; if they are bleated up, and imagine they are getting fleshy. The stomach, liver, and digestive powers are completely destroyed, and lose their appetite for food. No one was ever cured of consumption by this process, where cavities have been formed in the lungs. A little stimulant is frequently beneficial to consumptives, such as pure brandy or good sines; in many cases London porter or brown stout in moderate quantities; but Boarbon whisky hastens on instead of touring consumption.

The Seaweed Tonic produces lasting resutes, thoroughly invigorating the stomach and digestive system, and enabling it to eliminate and vale into healthy

The Seaweed Tonic produces lasting resutes, thoroughly invigorating the stomach and digestive system, and enabling it to eliminate and to ske into healthy blood the food which may be used for that purpose—It is so wonderful in its effects that a wine glassfull will direct a hearty meal, and a little of it taken before breakfast will give a tone to the stomach which few medicines possess the power of doing.

The MANDRAKE PILLS may be taken with entire afety by all iges and conditions, preducing all the toodresults that can be obtained from calomet, or any of the mercurial medicines, and without any of their nurful or injurious results. They carry out of the ystem the foculent and worn out matters loosened and issolved by my Seaweed Tonic and Pulmonic Syrup.—
