Vol. XXVIII.

A SPIRITUAL SONG.

BY GEORGE MACDONALD.

FROM THE GERMAN OF NOVALIS.

The times are all of care!

The heart so full of fear!

To eyes that question fearful

The future spectral stare.

With tremors creep and hover

With feet so ghastly and sore!

The soul black midnight cover

Lies mountains piled aloft.

Firm prop like reeds are waving;

For trust is left no stay;

The thoughts, with wail and sobbing,

No more will they obey.

Frenzied, with eyes restless,

Deceys from Truth's defense;

Life's pulse is flagging listless,

And dull is every sense.

Who hath the cross upheaved?

To shatter and make whole?

Who lives from Christ received?

That he may help the soul?

Haste to the tree of wonder!

Give silent longing room;

Outgoing fumes assuage;

Will cleanse the phantom-gloom.

Draws there an angel tread?

Lo! at thy feet in splendor

Outspreads the promised land.

—Schiller's 'For May.'

MONEY.

Miriam Leslie was listening to a

"word of advice" from her step-father,

Mr. Wilton Seymour, a very beautiful woman of twenty-two, with a face that was a rare combination of sweetness and strength. Just now the resolute youth and expression of the brown eyes showed that firmness of character and predominated, there was no look of temper mated

her amiability.

"I have no power over your movements, Miriam," said the old gentleman,

kindly. "You are of age, and the wealth

you inherited from your father is entirely

under your own control; but I am afraid you are committing a grave error

if you accept Wilton Seymour's offer. I am afraid he is a man to marry powers of money.

"Why? I pass over the implied slight to my attractions; but tell me why you think Mr. Seymour marries me for my

money?"

"I don't know that I mean that exactly. I know that you are young, beautiful and talented; but I think if you had been poor you would not have received

this offer."

"Again I ask, why do you think so?"

"Mr. Seymour is one of that unfortunate class—a young man who has lived upon expectations. He has been educated and supported by an eccentric uncle,

who was supposed to be enormously

wealthy. Wilton has been raised in comfort, and has been through college with moderate credit, and since that,

moving in society, received everywhere

as the heir of his uncle's money. Six months ago his uncle died, leaving his money—much less than was supposed—to a hospital. Wilton accepted the situation gracefully enough, applied for a position as clerk in the wholesale house

of Myers & Co., and—courted an heiress.

"This is most insanity. I never heard of such folly!"

Miriam's face grew very sweet, as a look came into her soft brown eyes of devotion and trust.

"I am willing to trust myself, my whole future happiness in Wilton's hands, my money is of little consequence. If he cannot win my confidence sufficiently to control my fortune, do you think he can win my love—myself?"

Mr. Palmer moved uneasily in his chair.

"I wish you could listen to reason," he replied. "I am truly speaking for your own good."

"I know that as my own father would have given me had he lived; after seeing your affection for my little step-sister—your own children—never surpassing that shown to me, do you think I should appreciate your motives? I thank you for my heart for your advice; but my step-father's wish to have house and furniture settled upon herself, but was resolute about the remainder of her large for-ture being left subject to the control of her future husband.

Busy days were followed by happy evenings. The young people were favorites in society, and friends would insist upon social festivities to celebrate the marriage. The young people were pleased beyond these, when two loving hearts learned to read each other. While

Wilton loved more deeply every day,

Miriam was giving such respect to his future husband, that she made her future

lot brighter every day.

But the days of the betrothal were short. A gay wedding, a happy tour, and the young people came home to settle down in the handsome new house as quiet married folk.

Two years of happiness followed. Wilton was rapidly rising in the esteem of business men—having his position as junior partner in the firm of Myers & Co. at Miriam's earnest request. But although attentive to his business, he was no mere drudge, seeking money as the only end

and aim of life.

Miriam found him ever a willing assent

to her plans, and she was not without the best of friends. Money had been always been at her command, and there was no new restraint upon her expenditure. For fine dress she cared but little,

though she was tasteful, and her costumes were always rich and appropriate;

but she was not extravagant, and she loved to collect trifles of exquisite art

around her, patronizing rising artists, and

found no difficulty in exhausting her

liberal income each year.

It was during the third year of her married life Miriam began to find a cloud upon the former bright happiness

of her married life. Wilton was changed.

In these few words the loving heart of the wife summed up all her forebodings. He had been the sunlight of her life, loving, tender and thoughtful; but it became evident to her that some absorbing interest was gradually winning him more and more from her side.

"What was it?" she asked her husband,

on one pretext or another oftentimes staying away from her till long after midnight. His sleep became restless and broken, and some absorbing care kept his face pale, his eyes clouded, his manner

brave, but he no longer smiled, he inclined to collect trifles of exquisite art

around her, patronizing rising artists, and

found no difficulty in exhausting her

liberal income each year.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

The Claudian Aqueduct and the Stadium of Domitian—The Colosseum by Daylight and by Moonlight.

ROME, Jan. 23, 1873.

FRANK POND:

Having given a somewhat detailed account of the best explored portions of the Palatine, we will now hastily sketch

the few remaining items. The prospect

from the plateau of the house of Tiberias

and also that of Vespasian is very fine in the direction of the Aventine, overlooking the narrow valley in which once lay

the great Circus Maximus for the races,

which is said to have accommodated 200,-

000 spectators. Its antiquity dates from the time of the kings, and during the subsequent ages was extended and decorated and furnished with seats, and its history furnishes a very accurate description of its form and limits, but unfortunately its materials have been deemed of more value to construct the buildings of later times, and there is now nothing left for the eye of the stranger to linger upon

except the natural adaptation of the site

If you wish to have your Probate or other legal business done in the ANNOES, do not forget to ask the Judge of Probate and Circuit Commissioners to make their orders accordingly. A request will be granted.

—Coming: the Great Eastern Manicure and Circus. Time—May 15th. Preliminary of summer.
—Capt. FERGUSON of the Adrian Times, and Postmaster "elect" of that city, gave us a call a day or two ago.
—The "Queen of the May" soiled on her would-be admiring and loving suitors yesterday. That's all.
—A special meeting of the Ladies' Library Association is called to be held on Monday next, at 3 o'clock P. M.
—April repeated her sad tricks and gave us a few lively days just at the last. But May, we have nothing to say.
—The men who advertise (in the ANNOES) are the men who hope to sell and will give their customers good bargains.
—The Register reports a young girl falling into Allen's Creek a few days ago, and being rescued by an older companion.
—The Manchester Enterprise is the official organ of that village; and $40 a year is the fixed remuneration for corporation advertising.
—Several Ann Arbor merchants have flaming advertisements in the Dexter Leader whose names even can't be found in the ANNOES.
—Rev. C. H. BIRNBAUM, of this city, has been appointed a member of the State Board of Health, for the four years term. A good selection.
—The Register is assigning solid and learned reasons why capital punishment should be abolished; and, lo! it has been abolished in this State some many years ago.
—Prof. WARREN has received a letter of thanks from the King of Denmark, for naming a new asteroid after the Princess Thyra;—or so the New York World says.
—Senator CHILDS voted for the woman suffrage constitutional amendment, to the great joy of the Ypsilanti Commercial. "Pleased with a result, tied with a star."
—L. B. DICKSON, of this city met with a serious accident on Tuesday afternoon, falling and breaking his left collar bone very close to the shoulder. He is reported as doing well.
—Gov. FELTON and daughter arrived home from Texas on Tuesday evening. The Governor, we are pleased to say, is looking in better health than when he was in the State of Texas.
—Now is just the time to get your Bill-Heads, Card, Circulars, Letter-Heads, Statements, etc., printed, and the ANNOES office is the place. Good stock, good work, and low prices. Give us your orders.
—Members of the old "Ann Arbor Base Ball Club" under the organization of 1856 or 1857, are requested to meet at the Zevoe Armory, on Friday evening, at 7 o'clock, as an important business will be transacted.
—May J. R. BARRY, of this city, has been appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for four counties, Washtenaw, Ingham, and Eaton; and THOS. F. HILL, also of this city, Gauger for this Revenue district—eight counties.

The time to "grace a wagon" is when the axle is dry and harsh and music is "ground out" at every turn of the wheel; the time to advertise when business is dull, customers shy and sales few and far between. Who'll take the hint?
—The Ypsilanti Commercial evidently looks for the early death of Mayor SYMONS of that city. This is how it predicts it: "It is our belief that the drum shown in this city will be holed in ninety days or Watson Snyder's wife is a widow."
—If you propose to go to Central, Southern or Western Kansas buy your tickets at the ANNOES office; and if you wish to purchase Kansas lands call and get a full descriptive circular of the lands of A. T. & S. F. Railroad lands, the best in the State.
—If there is a provision in the city charter under which an appropriation can be made to pay for pasturing the cows, which, not satisfied with the freedom of the streets, make daily and nightly raids on doorways and gardens? If not such a charter is not worth a red.
—An accidentally detached stove pipe and an escape of coal gas came very near moving fast to GERBERG, daughter of F. R. ROSSON, on Wednesday night, and a cousin who roomed with her. As we went to press yesterday P. M. both of the young ladies had so far recovered as to be considered out of danger.
—On Saturday afternoon last, at about 5 o'clock CHARLES E. HANCOY, a young lad between 14 and 15 years old, son of ISAAC C. HANCOY, of this city, was drowned in the creek at a point a few rods above the ice house. In company with GEORGE CARBONETTO, a boy a little older, he was boating on the pond, in a boat some nine feet long, one-and-a-half wide, and made of inch boards. The boys took turns as the boat would carry but one. In turning the boat it capsize, and being unable to swim CHARLEY called for help in vain and finally exhausted sunk to his watery grave. His playmate tried to go to his rescue, but was unable to give aid: Alarm was immediately given, but the body was not recovered until a little after 11 o'clock A. M. of Sunday. It was to come back as "Chicago Times" news morning. They are getting ready to run a continuous sheet in an air line from Detroit to Chicago, and will connect with a cable stack in Ypsilanti, and the other with a Bullock Press in the Times office. And then the communication will be by means of a cable. The news is wasted or not? Always decided in the affirmative."
—In the list of articles in the Overland Monthly for May: "The Gold-Standard of the Pacific; by Monroe Thomson; Oregon twenty years ago; by Samuel A. Clarke; Degrade Circular Mines, by Thos. Yelverton; Arab Stories and Traditions, down the Nile, by N. S. Dodge; The Third Napoleon; Ultra-violet—The Quest; by Eugene A. Carmichael; poetry: lesser sketches, etc. J. H. GARDNER & CO., San Francisco, Cal.

Just before the close of the session Gov. BAZLEY and the Senate made glad the hearts of the following Washtenawians: C. Backus, L. D. Burch, W. J. Clark, J. Forbes, J. M. Foynt, E. J. Johnson, B. A. Lombard, D. W. Palmer, John P. M. Perkins, J. H. Vance and P. W. Winger. It was done by ordering them commissioned as Notaries Public.
—One day last week a canvasser for a printing and stationery establishment located in our city, and took a long list of orders from merchants and clerks for letter and note-heads at a price above what they could have been duplicated in our office, and we should have given better work and stock. The bait was a patent holder, to be paid for, of course, and always to be in the way. Men ordered who probably never saw the inside of one of the city printing offices, and who would have given a local canvasser a short and snappy answer, and this is the way home enterprise is encouraged.
—In this connection we suggest to wholesale Detroit houses to send canvassers here immediately. Let them perambulate the city, take an order in this house for a pound of tea, in the next for two pounds of coffee, in the one beyond that for pepper, saleratus, soap, etc., and then for leading canisters, knives, needles, tin, tins, tapes, and endless and nameless notions. They can then retire to the depot or some other place, place of deposit, weigh and measure and start on their delivery route. The citizens supplied might not make a cent of profit; but they would think they did which would answer the same purpose. Besides, it might encourage our business men—whether dealers in dry-goods, groceries, hardware or furniture, lawyers or bankers—to make both trade and manufacturing lively.

The "Bureau of American and European Correspondence," claiming to have a local publication in New York City, and the American weekly letter free, conditioned on granting the agency certain privileges. The "sample" letter is toothsome being a compound of scandal, a libel suit (puff for a life insurance company), and the spring fashions. To give our readers a touch of its quality we quote a single sentence verbatim: "Only one witness was heard at the meeting, one McClock, a worthy member of the local press, and his evidence nearly established the fact, that he considered himself bound to be a shining lumina in the insurance world. Had he dragged out a miserable existence examining the entrails of diseased swine, with a view to ascertain the cause of their obnoxious matter to be divided, there from."
—Not even the names of the two prominent correspondents and authors attached to the circular accompanying the letter can make such a guarantee, though coupled with the guarantee that the writers control the advertising patronage of leading firms. There is a fraud in the signature or a miserable, ignorant penny-liner has been employed as correspondent or copyist.
—The following conversation is reported as having actually taken place in one of the Ward Schools of this city a few days since:
Teacher—Who had been reading the daily chapter—(who wrote the Bible?)
First Scholar (promptly, confidently, and with much earnestness)—Dr. CHASE.
Second Scholar (equally prompt and confident).—No, it's Mr. BIAL, now.

The feelings of the teacher can be better imagined than described. It is suggested that the first scholar had played truant from Sunday School and spent his hour in F. H. C. where he mistook the recipe book carved on a certain prominent monument for the Bible, and very naturally got himself mixed as to the author. The second scholar, misled by the blunder and being used to stick to his bargains, concluded that authorship was transferred with copyright. Perhaps?
—We are indebted—no presume—to President WURTZ for a copy of the Cornell University Register for 1872-73, a handsomely executed pamphlet of 132 pages. It is full of information concerning the working of that young growing (we had almost written giant) and popular institution. It shows thirty-two professors and assistants, seven non-resident professors, two lecturers, and two instructors, with 525 students, a record many an older university might well be proud of. We congratulate President WURTZ and his liberal and earnest supporters on the deserved success their efforts have commanded and won.
—For several years we have annually urged the Common Council to establish, by actual survey and plat, the grade of the important streets in our city, and then to order, by ordinance, that all work done from time to time be in accordance with such grade. We have asserted that in no other way could good streets be secured, and that the money economically expended. We are, therefore, glad to see an engineer, Mr. FERRIS, at work on our streets with compass and level, and to hear that the plan so often advised and urged to be at last adopted. With such a survey and ordinance, and the work placed in charge of men of practical commonsense, we shall hope, to note an improvement in our streets.

A Fire Company has been organized in the Fifth Ward with the following officers:
Foreman—Moses Seabolt.
1st Assistant—Wm. Crouch.
2d Assistant—N. D. Gates.
Secretary—E. W. Moore.
Treasurer—Chas. H. Manly.
Steward—Guy Beckley.
Wardens—Geo. Rollett, Wm. Porter, Jacob Seabolt, Andrew Covert.
We are advised that about 50 members have been enrolled, and that the boys mean business. They "run rat" the old Eagle machine, which has been put in capital order.
—The Ypsilanti Sentinel is responsible for the following, in which local enterprise and radical tendencies are sarcastically mixed:
"At Cornwell's Paper Mill the other day, we saw the straw going up the elevator, from the mill to the stack to come back as 'Chicago Times' news morning. They are getting ready to run a continuous sheet in an air line from Detroit to Chicago, and will connect with a cable stack in Ypsilanti, and the other with a Bullock Press in the Times office. The names of the Washtenaw subscribers who draw blanks are—legion. 40,000 tickets were placed in the box, indicating that number of subscribers with receipts aggregating $8,000. Guess the publisher made a "plut" take.
The following indorsement of the Babcock Hook and Ladder Trucks is from the Chicago Chief of Fire Insurance Patrol:
"In my estimation they are just what are needed in town and village fire departments. They will prove not only an excellent auxiliary, but almost a complete fire department in themselves. For small towns and villages they are the only thing that can be had, and my first estimate of the "BABCOCK" has been more than confirmed, the Fire Iron, Patrons, having extinguished some very burning fires the last year with their Extinguishers, and in doing so have saved a very large amount of property from damage by fire and water."
THE Ypsilanti Sentinel threatens the Commercial with a libel suit. Take that "sober, second thought," Bro. WOODRUFF. The game isn't worth the powder.
Special Meeting.
The Ladies' Library Association will meet on Monday, May 6th, at 3 o'clock P. M., in the Ladies' Parlor of the Presbyterian Church. The question of increasing the annual tax of members will be presented for decision.

King of the Blood.—FOR SWELLED NECK AND ENLARGED GLANDS. One—For several years past I have been badly afflicted with Goitre, or Swelled Neck, and it had become so bad that I felt to raise my arms above my head produced a choking sensation, which was almost insupportable. After trying several remedies with no benefit, I was advised to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the effect has been almost miraculous. It took nearly seven bottles, and it has not only cured my neck, but greatly benefited my general health. I have not felt so well for years. I have been troubled from childhood with fatty tumours on my arms, and I can see the wonderful effects of your medicine upon those, for they have already begun to diminish, and I think that if I continue on with the medicine, they will entirely disappear.
With gratitude, I remain,
CHARLOTTE S. SMITH, Columbus, Pa.

Modoc Tactics Practiced by White Men.
We have no desire to excuse the cowardly and treacherous murder of General Canby and the Peace Commissioners by the Modoc Indians. On the other hand we hope that a swift and terrible punishment will be meted out to them. But any person familiar with the bloody annals of Indian warfare knows only too well that deeds fully as murderous and treacherous as this have been again and again perpetrated by whites upon Indians. A correspondent of the New York Tribune, who resided for many years in Northern California, has told us some particularly striking instances of the story of the massacre, twenty years ago, of a number of Modocs by a company of whites to which our telegraphic dispatches have made brief allusion. Twenty years ago, when the whites began to settle in the country into the neighborhood of Yreka, the Modocs, then a flourishing and warlike tribe, resented the innovation and waylaid the wagons of the immigrants, in one instance massacring a whole party of men, women and children, with a single exception of a train. The exasperated settlers formed a company to punish this cruel and cowardly act, and under the command of one Wright, started in pursuit of the Indian band which was led by a chief named Schonchin, the father of him of the same name who was a chief under Jack. Wright first proposed to invite the Indians to a friendly feast and to kill them all by feeding them upon roasted ox, the flesh of which had been poisoned. But public sentiment was against this mode of extermination, and it was abandoned. At length Wright came up with the band at a time when their bow-strings were wet and useless, and, proposing conference, he offered his hand to Schonchin in token of amity. Then suddenly drawing his pistol, as Jack did his upon General Canby, he shot Schonchin as a signal to his men that a general slaughter was Jack's intention. General Canby was a signal to this Schonchin's son and the rest to murder the commissioners. It is any wonder that these savages, with this example set them by the whites, should remember it? It is strange that when the occasion comes at last to repay the treacherous murder in kind, they should avail themselves of it? Certainly, with this example in mind, the white people cannot complain if they are murdered. They cannot do so without also condemning their own race. The Indians can say to the whites, as Shyllock to the Christians: "The villainy you did teach me I will execute, and I will go home if I do not better the example!"—Detroit Tribune.
