CENTENNIAL BELLS. BY B. F. TAYLOR.

Ye belfy'd blacksmiths in the air,
Smite your sweet anvils good and strong!
Ye lions in your lofty lair,
Roar out from tower to tower, along
The wrinkled coasts and scalloped seas,
Till winter meats the orange breeze
From bridal lands that always wear
The orange-blossoms round their hair.
Centennial Bells, ring on;

Pour out, ye goblets, far and near,
Your grand melodious iron flood,
Till pine and palm shall think they he ar
The axes smite the stately wood,
Nor dream the measured cadence m sant
The cloca-tick of the continent!
The foot-fall of a world that nears
The field-day of a hundred years,
Centennial Bells, ring on!

Ye blossoms of the furnace fires,
Ye iron tulips, rock and swing,
The People's Primal Age expires,
A hundred years the reigning king
Strike one, ye hammers overhead,
Ye rusty tongues, ring off the red,
Ring up the Concord Minute Men,
Ring out old Putnam's wolf again,
Centennial Bells, ring on 1

Where prairies hold their flowery breath Where prairies not their nowery orean Like statues in the marble ledge—
Where mountains set their glittering teeth
Through wide horizon's rugged edge,
And held the world with granite grip
As steady as a marble lip,
And here, and there, and everywhere,
With rhythmic thunder strike the air.
Contourial Rells ring on' nial Bells, ring on!

Ring down the curtain on To-day
And give the Past the right of way,
Till fields of battle red with rust,
Shine through the ashes and the dust
Across the Age, and burn as plain
As glowing Mars through window-pane,
How grandly loon like grenadiers
These heroes with their hundred years!
Centennial Bells, ring on!

That quavered up the belfry statr,
"They've signed it! Signed it!" and the joy
Rolled forth as rolls the Delaware.
The old man started from a dream,
His white hair blew, a silver stream,
Above his head the bell unswung
Durch as a roorsing clory hung;

And the standard of the standa

These resolutions were presented under direct instructions from the Virginia Assembly, the delegates from the colony selecting Mr. Lee as their spokesman. They were at once seconded, probably after previous understanding, by John Adams, of Massachusetts—Virginia and Massachusetts being then the leading colonies. It was a bold act, for it was still doubtful whether anything better than a degrading death would await these leaders, if unsuccessful. "With other powers, it would rather injure than avail us. Foreign aid will not be obtained but by our actions in the field, which are the only evidences of our union and vigor that will be respected. In the war between the United Provinces and Spain, France and England assisted the provinces before they declared themselves independent; if it is the interest of any European kingdom to aid us, we shall be aided without such a Declaration; if it is not, we shall delegation. McKean says, in a letter written delegation. McKean says, in a letter written in 1814 to John Adams: "I sent an express for Casar Rodney to Dover, in the county of Kent, in Delaware, at my private expense, whom I met at the State House door on the Fourth of July, in his boots, he resided eighty miles from the city, and just arrived as Congress met," Jefferson has, however, thrown much degrading death would await these leaders, if unsuccessful. Gage had written, only the year before, of the prisoners left in his hands at Bunker Hill, that "their lives were destined to the cord." Indeed, the story runs that a smilar threat was almost as frankly made to the son of Mr. Lee, then a schoolboy in England and the same of his teachers when some visitor saked the question: "What boy is that?" "He is the son of Richard Henry Lee, of America, "the teacher or prisoner of the cord on the boy's head and said: "We shall yet see your father's head upon the Tower Hill"—to which the boy answered: "You may have it which the boy answered: "You may have it which the boy answered: "You may have in which the boy answered: "You may have it which the boy answered: "You m to argue against independence? But John Adams reports that Dicknson's mother used to say to him: "Johnny, you will be langed; your estate will be forfeited or confiscated; you will leave your excellent wife a widow," and so on: and Adams admits that if his wife and mother had held such language, it would have made him miserable, at least, And twas under this restraining influence, so unlike the feartless counsels of Abby Adams, that Dickinson rose on that 1st of July and spoke thus:

"I value the love of my country as I ought, but I value my country more; and I desire this plaint to the policy, of my conduct. The first campaign will be decisive of the controvarsy. The Declaration will not strengthen us by one man, or by the least supply, while it may expose our soldiers to additional cruelties and outrages. Without some prelusory trials of our strength, we ought not to commit our country upon an alternative, where to recede would be infamy, and to persist might be destruction.

AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

The Cherry Tree.

When Summer breathes o'er budding leaves,
And woos the flowers to life and light,
And grassy legions throng the roads,
And limnes sing from morn till night, Each jocund month reveals to me New beauties in the Cherry tree.

New beauties in the Cherry tree.

Quaint rings, and moss, and snowy flakes,
And arms aglow with crimson gens;
I almost deem it has a soul
That trembles through its dainty stems;
For off it shakes as if with giee,
That gnarled and cabalistic tree,
There's not a robin, bilthe and brown,
Or lark that wings the upper air,
But knows'its boughs as well as I,
And sings his quaintest carol there.
I ween they're spread o'er land and see
The glory of the Cherry tree.

Well knows the placebox its states off

Well knows the plowboy, tireless elf, The branches where the jewels cling, And ere he milks the dreamy herd He sears and banquets like a king. To boy and bird alike 'tis free, Under that old, familiar tree,

When Phoebus sinks beneath the wave, And lillies hang their saintly heads, While roses weep beside the gate, And robins sleep in lofty beds, The lover bends with reverent knee Under that old, familiar tree,

No fervid yows that friendship pours, Beneath his green and sheltering cope, When moonlight tips his happy leaves, Are ever marred or madly broke.' Oh, never faithless tryst could be Under the staunch old Cherry tree.

When autumn comes, with haggard eyes, And rebel winds assail his crown, And all his kingly breast is bare, And leaves like tears come trembling down, Still fancy's pensive eye doth see A martyr in the Cherry tree.

LONDON, June 16, 1876. MY DEAR POND-We made our advent across the channel from Dieppe, landing at New Haven, a rather poor sea port at present, where the tide which waits for no man" compelled us to wait for it over an hour. We began our English sight-seeing by taking a run ever to Brighton, the great seabathing resort for London. It is a city of 100,000 inhabitants without manufactures or special industry of any kind, and dependent, like Saratoga, entirely upon its annual influx of temporary visitors. The only beautiful portion is the fine street along the seaside, faced by a splendid sea wall over two miles all saddled upon Hayes, and in Hayes, ding are to be found in perfection. if elected, are to be perpetuated, and their sins condoned. Political Clippings.

J. M. WHEELER.

The German voters constitute an immense and often a controlling part of the voting population of the United States. In this centennial year the greater part of the German vote will certainly be given to Tilden .- Hartford

The nomination is a thousand times better than a compromise would have been, and makes us regret more than ever that the Republicans did not put up their best man-a man whose very name meant reform in administration, and reform in finance.-Boston Glob

The campaign, with Tilden for the Democratic candidate will mean business. All hopes of a kid-glove contest are at an end. It cannot be a hightoned contest, with a mutual exchange of gilded compliment with such a man in the field. He is a skillful political manager. - Rochester Express (Rep.)

Our English cousins do not think very highly of our Cincinnati nominations. They want to know "who is Mr. Hayes?" and declare that his principal merit is that he is almost unknown," which, in their matter-of-fact way, they consider a poor recommendation for the office of President of the United States. -New York Herald.

Now we can catch a glimpse of better times. We can see the way open to pure and simple government, economy in expenditure, reduced taxes, a sound currency, and the revival of industry Tilden and reform is the phrase that clears up all this fog and makes an open sky for the country.-Boston Post.

Of that class of citizens who care more for reform than other isms involved in the contest, Tilden cannot fail to be a favorite, and in his selection the Democrats have acted more wisely than the Republicans, who did not dare to nominate their best man, and dodged the real issue of the canvass by a com-promise candidate.—Boston Herald (Ind.) The President will hardly find it ad-

The declarations at St. Louis on the National Centennial Route the platform as in the selection of a candidate. - Indianapolis Sentinil (Dem.) The Senate seems determined that the Democratic House shall not inaugit without let or hindrance, and they propose to continue in the same profligate course. It is for the Democratic House to insist upon retrenchment. Enough has been appropriated for all honest purposes, but not a dollar for stealing. Let the matter rest just there. -Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Democrats have exceeded the Republicans in definiteness of doctrine, for they have declared the greenback a promise to pay money that should be redeemed, and have denounced the Republican party for not taking the first decisive indispensable step for the re-turn of the country to Specie Payments -the payment of the legal-tender debt in real money. The proclamation of the Democratic party, is an event upon which we congratulate ourselves !— Cintels, Grand and Beautiful Mountain and Valley Scenery, and the many points of Historic interest

The police arrested about twenty men who were engaged as bar-keepers and waiters, selling lager beer. A crowd of people assaulted the police and rescued the prisoners. The selling of beer was resumed. One hundred extra policemen were called from the reserve forces in the stationhouses, and the rescued prisoners were resrested and beer-selling stopped. Many men who engaged in the riot were also arrested.

THE WEST.

A WAGON-TRAIN from Gen. Crook's camp arrived at Fort Fetterman, last week bringing the wounded in the late engagement. They endured the trip well, and all are likely to re-cover. Gen. Crook will make short excursions with the cavalry until the return of the train and infantry, when he will endeavor to strike the Sioux hard.

A san case of drowning is reported from La Crosse, Wis. John Magee, accompanied by his wife and two children, his father-in-law and wife and two children, his father-in-law and brother-in-law, visited the city in a small skin for the purpose of shopping. They loaded their bark and started to return home. When near Goose Island the boat struck a snag and capsized, throwing the occupants and goods into the Mississippi. The father-in-law, brother-in-law, and one child managed to get hold of the overhanging bushes, being near the shore, and were saved, but Magee, who did all he could to save his wife and child, sank with them both clinging to him, and all were drowned.
