THE DOCTOR'S STORY BY WILL M. CARLETON,

"Physic and blister, powders and pills, And nothing sure but the doctors' bills!

"Sweet as honey, or bitter as gall— Poor old woman, she takes 'em all...".

So she pleases whoe'er may call, An' Death is suited the best of all.

Mrs. Rogers lay in her bed, Bandaged and blistered from foot to head Blistered and bandaged from head to toe, Mrs, Rogers was very low.

I opened the blinds; the day was bright, And God gave Mrs, Rogers some light, I opened the window; the day was fair, And God gave Mrs. Rogers some air. Bottles and blisters, powders and pills, Catnip, boneset, sirups and squills; Drugs and medicines, high and low, I threw them as far as I could throw,

"What are you doing?" my patient cried; "Frightening Death!" I coolly replied.

Deacon Rogers, he came to me: "Wife is a-gettin' her health," said he

"Your wife," said I, "had God's good care, And His remedies, light and water and air,

"All of the doctors, beyond a doubt, Couldn't have cured Mrs. Rogers without," The deacon smiled and bowed his head; "Then your bill is nothing," he said. "God's be the glory, as you say! God bless you, doctor, good-day! good-day!

If ever I doctor that woman again, I'll give her medicine made by men.

PUT YOURSELF IN HER PLACE.

The long summer day had crept slowaway, and it was nearly 5 o'clock. ATTORNEY AT LAW. The hours at the railway station were marked as by some gigantic clock that told the laggard minutes by screaming whistle and clanging bell. The 4:30 accommodation had gone east, the western express due there at 4:55 had thundered through the village, gone on over the great viaduet and disappeared round

So one counted the hours by the trains, Lydia by name, a girl of the best New England type, quiet and yet with an mmense capacity for doing and daring should love and the occasion demand. The local freight would come next, and then she would see him again. She laid aside her work, put some splitzephyr vanity upon her head, and went out towards the railroad. As she approached the station she saw her brother, the station-master, opening the little freight house on the farther side of the By this she knew that the local freight would stop this time. Her heart

To understand all that took place on this occasion, and to fully appreciate her consummate skill in controlling the events so quickly to crowd upon her, we must study the construction of the road at this point. The main line for more than a mile to the right, or to-wards the east, was perfectly straight and comparatively level. To the left, or the west, it crossed a deep valley by a lofty stone viaduct, and beyond the val-ley it curved to the north and mounted the hill by a long grade. Just east of the ssenger station a branch road entered

We suspect that it is not always a pleasant day even in merry England; for Hood writes a poem about spring, beginning:

Come, gentle Spring! ethereal mildness, come!"
O Thomson, void of rhyme as well as reason, ow couldst thou thus poor human nature hum?
There's no such season! How it often is with us, we are re ninded in the first couplet of Mrs. Osgood's "May in New England": Can this be May? Can this be May? We have not found a flower to-day!

But we cannot help believing in May, nd every year we hope that she will behave better the next time she comes. For she does make us regret her departure sometimes. This is the way the regret has been written:

Spring is growing up;
Is not it a pity?
She was such a little thing,
And so very pretty!
Summer is extremely grand;
We must pay her duty—
(But it is to little Spring
That she owes her beauty). Spring is growing up,
Leaving us so lonely!
In the place of little Spring
We have Summer only.
Summer, with her lofty airs
And her stately paces,
In the place of little Spring,
With her childish graces.

The Causes of Violent Death. The violent deaths in Great Britain in 1874 were no less than 17,920, the highest number ever registered. There were 18 executions and 1,592 suicides, so that 16,310 may be classed as unexpected. Railways killed 1,249, horse conveyances given in our authority (a Scotch paper), but it is probable that exercise in the saddle had much to do with them. AGRICULTURAL AND DOMESTIC.

BEGINNERS at sheep-raising should content themselves with a small flock at first. The increase is rapid and fully equal to the growth of knowledge of breeding, feeding and making profitable. This advice will apply to other business than raising sheep.

FARMERS need a breed of fast-walking horses, both for their own use and for sale. A slow-walking horse is a nuisance, whether plowing, harrowing, or harvesting on the farm, or for cart, truck, dray, saddle, or carriage use in the city. Careful attention to this feature would pay better in the long run than breeding for trotters.

Horse Collars.—The Jalley Farmer says collars are, or should be, so made as to throw the chief force on the lower part of the shoulder. The horse can apply but little strength on the upper part, and for this reason breast collars are coming greatly into vogue, as the strength is exerted on the lower part of the shoul-der. The collar should be purchased of proper size. Just before putting it on the first time, immerse it in water, letting it remain about a minute, and immediately put it on to work. The col-lar, by being wet, will adapt itself to the shoulder, and should dry on the horse. When taken off, it should be left in the same shape it occupied on the horse, and ever after you will have a snug-fitting collar and no wounds.

When done let them stand ten or fifteen minutes to steam, then split open and fill each half with strawberries with or without sugar, add a spoonful of strawberry juice sweetened, if it will hold so much, and serve at once.

SALERATUS, -There can be no doubt that the free use of saleratus, so much consumed in bread, is excessively injurious to the human system. It is particularly liable to induce muscular prostration or paralysis, and is sure to injure the digestive organs. Of course it is most fatal to children, whose delicate organization is more sensitive than that of grown persons.

But I have been deceived, betrayed, and even humiliated by the course he has taken to a degree that I the convention was authorized to get the ques- ored race that can be found in that slave these colored people under the iron heel of their most bitter enemies and reduce them to a condition infinitely worse than before they were made free. I feel that to have emancipated these people and then to leave them unprotected would be a crime as infamous as to have reduced them to slavery when they were free; and for Mr. Hayes to do this to men who had at the hazard of their lives given him the votes without which he never could have had power to do this terrible injustice, no doubt he meditates the destruction of the party that elected him. A contemplation of all this fills me with amazement and inexpressible indignation. My only consolation is that history informs me that better men than I ever pretended to be have in like manner been deceived. Some have attemped excuses for him by saying that he means well, but hell is paved with just such good intentions.

The meeting was addressed by a number of the Ann Arbor "boys," who were here about to be public speakers yet I doubt if eloquence the audience that the simple recitals of their own sad experiences, which seemed to come lanti boys were present and spoke. Mr. Thompson, of Ypsilanti, favored as with a very appropriate song, for which he was loudly cheered.

At the conclusion a large number of our citizens, some of whom were hard drinkers, put on the red ribbon. A vote of thanks was then tendered to the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti boys for their presence with us, and for their earnest work in behalf of the cause of temperance. The meeting was dismissed with the Saline, April 23, 1877.

EXECUTIVE MANSON,

WASHINGTON, April 20, 1877.

Shy: Prior to my entering upon the duties of the Presidency, there had been stationed, by order of my predecessor, in the immediate vicinity of the building used as the State House in New Orleans, La, and known as Mechanics' Institute, a detachment of United States infantry. Finding them in that place, I have thought proper to delay a decision of the question of their require or justify the continued military intervention of the National Government, in the affairs of the State. In my opinion there does not now exist in Louisians such domestic violence as is contemplated by the constitution as a ground upon which the military power of the National Government may be invoked for the defense of the State. The disputes which exist as to the right of certain claimants to the chief executive office of that State are to be settled and determined, not by the Executive of the United States, but by such orderly and peaceable methods as may be provided by the constitution and laws of the State. Having assurance that no resert to violence is contemplated, but, on the contrary, that the disputes in question are to be settled by peaceable methods under and in accordance with law, I deem it proper to take action in accordance with the principles announced when I entered upon the duties of the Presidency. You are therefore directed to see that the proper orders are issued for their present position to such regular barracks in the vicinity as may be selected for their occupation.

No LITTLE excitement has been produced in New York city by the publication of the confession of William M. Tweed, revealing the operations of the notorious ring of which he was the head. Tweed says he has suffered much and suffered long in silence, and has borne the burden of what others shot id have shared. Afflicted with discusse feedle from the contract of th others shot id have shared. Afflicted with disease, feeble from age and continement, and ill at ease in mind, he seeks for the rest and relief he so much and so sorely needs. He adds that the only basis upon which he has a right to apply for leniency and pardon is, that he will make a complete surrender of his property and full disclosure of his criminal companions.
The proposition is a long and exhaustive document, and assumes the nature of a confession, which goes back as far as 1867, when the ring first began to assume form. It gives in detail which goes back as far as 1867, when the ring first began to assume form. It gives in detail the story of various conferences between the writer, Peter B. Sweeny, Richard Connolly, Henry Genet, A. Oakey Hall, and others, by which Tweed was elected to the State Senate, Connolly Comptroller in 1867, and Hall Mayor, Jan. 1, 1869, Tweed, according to the story, transferred to State Senator Winslow in person 5290,000 to secure the charter of 1870. trausferred to State Senator Winslow in person $200,000 to secure the charter of 1870, which gave to the ring the control of the city through the support of saveral influential Republican members of the Legislature. The confession gives the circumstances of the division of the spoils between himself, Sweeny, Hall, Cennelly and Woodward. It implicates Garvey, Ingersoll, Davidson, Watson, and a majority of the Board of Supervisors. Mayor Hall's proportion was 10 per cent. He shared throughout in all the profits. He was in full collusion with the fraud in its various details, and was fully aware of the fraudulent nature of the contracts presented for his signature. Anecdote of President Lincoln.

I called upon Mr. Lincoln soon after he was first installed in the White House. In the room where Mr. Lincoln granted interviews, etc., were several persons in particular and everybody in genen who were waiting their turn to speak It consists of a button made in the with him. I listened to the requests of dinary form of a sleeve button, in su several men and women, and I saw that manner that the top can be taken off, a very few were granted what they solicited. I had a seat at or near one end of a piece of paper, on which is to be wind long table. Mr. Lincoln sat at the other ten the name and address of the weam end. Soon after I was seated, in walked several officers of the Spanish navy to pay their compliments to Mr. Lincoln. By some means they were directed to-ward my end of the table, and I saw they took me for the President. Mr. Lincoln saw the same thing, and hastily signaled me to "go ahead," as he expressed it, and receive them. I rose, shook hands with each officer, and exchanged a few words with them, which would have been, I suppose, appropriate had I in-deed been President. The moment their backs were turned I looked toward Mr. Meel, 'Flower,' 'All kinds of kontur Lincoln. He was shaking with laughter.

Thirty-Three Years in a Dungeon. A woman has lately been found in a secluded cave near Udino, in Italy, who had been imprisoned thirty-three years. In 1844 she became attached to an Austrian officer, but her father, a violent hater of the Austrians, who, at that time, were in possession of that part of Italy where he resided, refused his consent to WHEAT-No. 2 Red Fa would then marry without his permission. He dissimulated his anger, and, her, he induced her to descend into the cave with him by means of a rope lad er, with a view of examining it. He was the sister, whose hatred toward the Austrians was equally great, continued the imprisonment. The unfortunate woman, on her liberation, had a complexion of ness in which she had long lived, and her voice had departed, through cononly in a hoarse whisper.
