THE President has accepted an invitation to attend the exercises of the commencement at Harvard College, and will arrive in Boston June 26.

WELL, President Hayes has removed Marshall Pitkin of Louisiana, and commissioned Jack Wharton as his successor. Butler's letter did the job.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL has been appointed Minister to Spain, ex-Congressman Kasson taking the Austrian mission. The selection of Mr. Lowell is a good one.

THE Third Assistant Postmaster-General, Hon. E. W. Barber, of this State, has resigned. He don't like the civil service reform policy of the Administration, or its Southern policy either, we suspect.

THE Adrian Times says that Gov. Crosswell recently received a letter from a woman asking him to give her "a full and free divorce" from her husband and children. She was without money to fee lawyers.

THE First National Bank of Adrian has decided to surrender its charter and re-organize as a State bank. Its stockholders and managers think they see more money in operating under the State laws than they can make under the restrictions of the national banking law.

HE HAS his reward: Clark Waggoner, of Toledo, for a long-time connected with the Commercial of that city, and who wanted to be postmaster under Grant but could not, has been appointed collector of internal revenue and will enter into office July 1.

IF THERE is any confidence to be placed in the Detroit dailies, the aldermen of our neighboring city are a cheap set. Just think of buying the majority of the Common Council with a handful of street railway tickets. And that is really the meaning of the talk about the refusal to order the "bob-tail cars" to carry conductors.

THE Supreme Court of Arkansas has just confirmed the decision of a lower court holding a certain railroad act unconstitutional, and bonds to the amount of $16,000,000, issued under it in 1869, illegal. Now let a non-resident bondholder sue in the United States Courts and he'll get his money. In these modern days a State court don't amount to shucks.

FOR THREE years in succession—May 31, 1875, June 29, 1876, and June 3, 1877—Cornell University has had a student drowned at just about the same point in Fall Creek. Each student was drowned about 6 p. m., each was a Sophomore, each was an editor-elect of the Cornell Review, and each a member of the Christian Association. A singular chain of coincidences.

THE fine steamer R. N. Rice, of the Detroit and Cleveland line, took fire at her wharf on Sunday evening last, and was damaged to the extent of $40,000, her cabin and furniture being destroyed. Insurance $25,000. Repairs will be immediately commenced, and it is hoped to have her in running order by the Fourth of July. Meanwhile the new and elegant steamer Pearl will take her place in the line.

ON Tuesday evening last the Manhattan Club, New York, gave a brilliant reception in honor of Hon Samuel J. Tilden, Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks, Gov. Robinson, and Lieut. Gov. Dorsheimer. Many prominent Democrats from different States were present. Messrs. Tilden, Hendricks, Robinson, Dorsheimer, and Senator McDonald, of Indiana, each made brief speeches. That of Gov. Hendricks was exceedingly happy. Gov. Hendricks and wife sailed for Europe on Wednesday, to be absent about three months.

VANDERBILT has returned from his brief trip to Europe, and the reporters and interviewers are not very successful in inducing him to tell them what he went for or what he accomplished. One of them did draw this out of him: "One of the chief reasons I had for going to England was to see the Derby, and I feel that the sight alone of 300,000 people at a race was in itself worth a trip to Europe to see." So far but one result of his trip is known: the cutting of fares from Chicago to New York by his order cable from London, and the public must wait on his pleasure for further results. Perhaps one of them will be a New York Central steamship, line and perhaps not.

GAIL HAMILTON does not speak for brother-in-law Blaine for the same reason that one interpreter of Scripture said Balaam's ass spoke, "because Balaam was a stuttering man and couldn't." Blaine has full command of his vocal organs and can "shoot off his mouth" at the least provocation, or in more appropriate language make a pyrotechnic display at pleasure—combining invective, sarcasm, and wit in equal or unequal proportions. No, Blaine is silent from choice not necessity, and Gail is pulling his chestnuts out of the fire experimentally, just to feel the public pulse you know. And she does it vigorously and spitefully. Go it, Gail.

MINISTER PIERRERONT not only apex the nobility in his desire for a coat of arms, but, according to the London World, "spreads himself" in such a way as to make himself a target for burlesque. That paper says: "Mr. Pierreron really should moderate his transports of gratitude for hospitalities received. He has already caused a serious rise in the prices of poultry and American beef, and his cook must be half dead with work. There is no sleeping within a mile of Cavendish Square for the rattle of carriages and the sound of riotous living." It hasn't taken four years to exhaust the republican blood in Sir Edward's veins.

IF SENATOR KIRKWOOD is a representative Iowa Republican it is very evident that the Iowa Republicans are not the most cordial supporters of the President's Southern policy. Having been written to for his opinion personally of it, and also for his advice to the coming State Convention, he grudgingly responds: "Any action by the Republican State Convention, either approving or disapproving the President's policy, would be untimely and unwise." He finds the wisdom not in the policy itself, but in the fact that it does not commend itself to the popular Republican heart, for did it so commend itself he would not write "it is evident that an attempt to pass any resolution on the subject would produce division and dissension in the convention, and any such resolution, if passed, would not be held as binding by those who did not favor it." He considers the President's action as final, so far as it goes; warns those who dissent from it that "they cannot reverse it"; concedes that the President is "honest in his intentions" (Butler and Ben Wade and Zack Chandler would respond "hell is paved with honest intentions"); but as to the result of his policy, says: "I confess I am not very hopeful—my fears of failure are greater than my hopes of success."

HE proceeds to discuss the policy somewhat at length, and does not conceal his opinion that it was the individual and official duty of the President "to decide whether Chamberlain or Hampton was the lawful Governor of South Carolina—whether Packard or Nicholls was the lawful Governor of Louisiana." He asks: "Was it not his duty under the Constitution and the law to decide these very questions?" It may have been, but Senator Kirkwood certainly fails to point out the constitutional provision which makes the President the judge in a contested gubernatorial election in South Carolina, or Louisiana, or any other State. We had supposed that State courts, acting under State laws, had jurisdiction in such cases, and we are still of the opinion that there has been too much interference already from Washington. Gov. Kirkwood evidently isn't in favor of the Hayes policy.

IF THE Legislature of Michigan were in session, and if the average legislator had the capacity to put this and that together, we would commend to his candid consideration the following brief items: "The University of Virginia has received, during the past year, donations of $25,000 to build books and the rail equipment of a gymnasium." "By a recent bequest Yale College receives the $15,000 to found three scholarships, the recipients of which will be chosen from the next three classes that graduate." "The Legislature grudgingly doled out to the University $47,000, strangled one department which it created two years before, spitefully reduced the salaries (or the appropriations thereof) of two professors, in a sort of bull-dozing way advised the Regents to reduce the other salaries, and then imagined it had done a big thing for an institution which has given the State a wider and better fame than any other institution in it. The injustice of this penuriousness is found in the single fact that the students in the strangled School of Mines, brought here by the direct solicitation of the Legislature of 1875, are driven out by the Legislature of 1877. The University must suffer, and that permanently, by such unwise legislation, and its best professors will be more than likely to follow the exiled students."

THIS is a type of the compliments the Detroit Post daily throws at the head of its President "Nature wisely provided that we could not all be born in Ohio, so that there may be somebody left to attend to the ordinary non-political business of this continent." And this is a day later: "Gov. Hendricks made a speech at his farewell reception, at Indianapolis, last week, in which he said that he was just as certainly elected Vice-President as Blue Jeans Williams was elected Governor of Indiana. Possibly; we have always had our doubts about Blue Jeans being really elected. But he was counted in, and Hendricks was n't." Exactly! "Counted in." That isn't the way a satisfied "organ" puts it. The Post in its happiest moods does not render such uncertain sounds.

THE Lansing Republican has compiled a table showing the number of times each Senator and Representative was absent without leave at the opening of the 95th daily sessions, also the number of absences of each member on a call of the roll for the year and says, which in the Senate was 774 times, and in the House 887 times. The record of the Washenaw members is as follows: Senator Burleigh—absent without leave, 3 times; on roll call, 90 times. Representative Allen—absent without leave, 4 times; on roll call, 221 times. Representative Norris—absent without leave, 5 times; on roll call 292 times. Representative Sawyer—absent without leave, 2 times; on roll call 442 times. And their record was better than the average.

THE Adrian correspondent of the Detroit Tribune, writing under date of June 11, says: Cool rains for the past few days have been the salvation of the wheat crop in this section, which had begun to suffer from the drought. Reports from townships show a larger acreage put to wheat than last year, and every prospect now for a surprisingly fine crop. No trouble from insects is reported. Wool at present comes in slowly, although transactions are larger than at surrounding points; the price for choice ranges from 30 to 37 1/2c. When the bulk of the clip comes in it will undoubtedly be below former figures.

Ten thousand sels were put in Gogsway Lake and 5,000 in St. Mary's yesterday. Fish Commissioner Jerome assures the Sportsmen's Club that he will furnish them with fish liberally so long as they will protect them, and he has no reason to complain of them as yet. He says that Barry County cannot get a fish from the State for the reason that they will not afford them protection. The same reason prevents many other parts of the State from getting their supply. —Bottle Creek Journal.

THE Hoyt Street School building at East Saginaw was damaged by fire to the amount of $1,000 on Monday evening last; insured.
