The greatest enthusiasm prevailed as 120 young men walked forward and signed the pledge. Next Sunday the Rev. R. B. Pope is to speak for the club, and as it will be his last Sunday here before moving to Chicago, the boys are expected to turn out in force.
—About midnight of Monday two drunken persons indulging in loud-mouthed profanity wended their way up Washington street, and opposite the residence of Register of Deeds Manly, halted, espousing a dog reclining upon Mr. M's doorstep. One of the party fired at the animal, the report awaking Mr. Manly who promptly appeared on the street, and would have increased the interest of the occasion had not the roughs best a hasty exit from the spot. The ball missed the canine lodging in the silk below the door.
—Manager Hill is adding to the attractions of the opera house by way of placing matting upon the main and gallery stairs, removing one of the inside entrances to the gallery, and other minor things. It is his intention to enforce order in the gallery hereafter. Boisterous persons will be ejected and arraigned in court. Yelling, singing and stamping have been carried to a disgraceful degree, keeping many excellent entertainments away from the city, and stopping residents attending those that come. If some method can be devised to abate the nuisance of munching peanuts during entertainments, Mr. Hill will deserve as he will receive, the thanks of the community.
—Dick Johnson is inclined to love not wisely, but too well, the wife of another colored man Mrs. George Moss. Dick courageously visits Mrs. M., at her home, to the great chagrin of course of her husband who does not fancy his marital rights should be thus wantonly invaded. Dick was enjoying the smiles of Mrs. M. on Monday pretty late in the evening. Suspecting all was not right, George placed himself sentinel-like at the door of the stairway near McCall's hall and quietly awaited results. Towards the two men's hours of the morning, heavy footsteps awoke the slumbering guard, and face to face the gentlemen met. Dick hurled an epithet, whereat George raised his crutch and brought it down upon Dick's upper story. Dick pulled a revolver and shot—George says that, but Dick says into the street—just to scare George a little. No arrests have been made, and thus the sable descendants of Africa rest their case.
—There was a harvest festival at the Unitarian Church Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, flowers, ferns, grasses, grains and fruits. At the back of the church in the shape of the letter A, was the following inscription: "The first fruits of the land thou shalt bring into the house of the Lord." At the right of the altar was a swabuck and stick of wood which rested upon a moss-covered bed some six feet square, which represented preparing for winter. In front of the pulpit was a pyramid of fruits and vegetables, and on either side a profusion of flowers artistically arranged. From the side lights hung suspended baskets of fruits. The pillars in the front of the church under the gallery were trimmed with evergreens, grasses and sheaves of wheat and oats, which by gaslight presented a magnificent spectacle. During the day the church was visited by several hundred citizens and students, and in the evening an immense congregation was present to hear the pastor, the Rev. J. T. Sunderland, who discoursed on "Making Preparation for the October of Life."

Adjoined Session of June Term.
MONDAY, Oct. 6.
This day was consumed in hearing a case from Ypsilanti. Josiah F. Sanders attempted to raise a wooden awning in front of his store. W. H. Hawkins objected on the ground that when built it would obstruct the view of his family and anticipated guests who may want to sit on the balcony, and get a clear view of pedestrians going to and fro from his hotel. To stop Sanders hedging guests from gazing upon the pretty young ladies, and the mashers of our sister city who may perambulate in front of the new block to see and be seen, Hawkins proceeds to secure an injunction, which he did through circuit court commissioner McMahon. The war ceased for a time and belligerents rested on their arms. Hostilities were renewed in circuit court. Mr. Albert Crane appearing for Sanders, argued that the legislature granted to the council of Ypsilanti full power to regulate these questions and that the court had no jurisdiction. Also, that no ordinance had been adopted by said city prohibiting the raising of awnings; and on the contrary one has been adopted to regulate width and awnings when built. Mr. Crane's argument was listened to with careful attention and won praise for the manner in which he handled his case. Decision reserved.
TUESDAY, Oct. 7.
J. H. Durand and others vs. William West. Time for settling bill of exceptions extended to first day of October term, on motion for new trial.
WEDNESDAY, Oct. 8.
John Dolan petitioned court for discharge from jail charged with unlawfully selling spirituous liquors to a person in the habit of becoming intoxicated. John was set free by the court.
The court refused to dissolve the injunction asked by Hawkins for the restraining of Sanders from building an awning, and will hear the case upon its merits next term.
TRANSACTIONS IN JUSTICE'S COURTS.
—In case of People vs. Thomas Hoban, for assaulting and battering John M. Gould, for refusing to give him a drink, Gould having been notified not to sell him any more intoxicating drinks, Hoban pled guilty and was sentenced to thirty days in Washtenaw Co. jail. Hoban was before Justice Freauff two weeks before, and was let off on promise of keeping sober.
—Justice Clark sent two tramps to Ionia, 90 days each, on Wednesday.
—By invitation of Justice Granger, Chas. O'Connor paid $5 for thumping John Huhn.
—John Parker and John Whalen, tramps, received 90 days each at Ionia, by order of Justice Beahan.
—Justice Beahan let off Hiram K. Cotant, an habitual drunkard, complained of by his wife, on promise of reform.
—Case of Adam Francisco charged with assault and battery upon John S. Earl, adjourned to Oct. 22, on account of the kicking, by a horse, of Adam.
—George Stevens pleaded guilty to stealing two razors from Shewerff's barber shop. It being George's first attempt Justice Granger leniently dealt with him—$5.
—John Tramor, noticed in these columns, charged with larceny of a watch from Wm. Rane of Whitmore Lake, some years ago, was upon trial last week before Justice Beahan, acquitted.
—George W. Krom of Ypsilanti rented the eating house on the fair grounds last week, agreeing to pay $75, and of this amount the society was to take $25 in meat tickets. On the strength of certain representations he obtained groceries and meats from Baumgartner and Laubengayer the butcher, which he afterwards failed to pay for, and he was arrested Saturday by constable Gidley at his home in Ypsilanti on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. His examination is fixed for to-day before Justice Granger of this city.
The case of the People vs. Mrs. Jennie Brinkles, charged with assault and battery upon the person of Mrs. Ellen Jeffers, tried before Justice Freauff on Monday occasioned considerable interest. These ladies lived in the same house on east Washington street, and according to the old, old story, harmony did not reign there. Mrs. Brinkles grabbed Mrs. Jeffers by the hair, whereat a daughter of the latter came to her mother's rescue and the battle necessarily waxed warmer. After a little, a long cadaverous law student, a wee bit of a servant girl, a sister of Mrs. J. and others appeared on the theatre of battle and at once concurred in the fact that hostilities should then and there cease. Hence the combatants were separated. Mrs. Jeffers appealed to court and a warrant apprehended Mrs. Brinkles, who, after a trial by jury was found guilty and fined the costs amounting to $10.10.
