

Locked Car

Have you ever been locked out of your minivan? If you do not know what it feels like then you are about to know.

My dad and his brother Shaun went on a road trip in California. My dad said, "California is dusty and full of crops." They stopped at a gas station and my grandpa locked the car with the keys inside. My grandma was a little bit mad and tired because she wanted to keep driving but they could not.

My dad was twelve and my uncle Shaun was fourteen. They both had blond hair that is (going to) turn/turning brown. The guys that worked at the gas station were nice so they helped my grandpa. A few hours later they got the keys out of the car.

My dad and Shaun were still in the store and they saw the gas station guys talking. They said this, "how did that happen when we got the keys out of the car and that dude said ‘thanks.’ Then he locked the car and put the keys back in the car and shut the door again” he laughed. The gas station guys thought it was hilarious that my grandpa locked the keys in the car a second time! My dad and Shaun ran outside to ask if it was true, and my grandpa said under his breath, “Oh shut up.” A few hours later they got the keys out of the car again.

“How did our dad do this?” Said my dad.

“I can’t believe what happened,” Said Shaun

“I can’t wait to tell my friends,” My dad said.

“You can’t”. Grandpa said.

“Why?” They asked.

“Go to sleep,” he said.

Then they rode into the sunset (or the rest stop they booked a few hours ago)and thought about what happened.

My dad says this is just one of many silly things my grandpa did on their vacations, but this one was especially funny. That is my funny family story. I hope you liked it.