The Passie Fairy

Have you ever taken a pacifier from a child in the night while they were sleeping? This happened to me when I was only two years old. Read on to find out more.

I was in bed while my dad and Colleen (my neighbor) were discussing a plan they decided a plot to rid me of my pacifiers. The plan they had made was called the Passie Fairy. I was just like the Tooth Fairy except she took passies not teeth.

While I was asleep Collen crept into my room and stole a passie and replaced it with a toy plane. The next morning when I woke up I saw the plane and felt excited then forgot about the missing passie.

The next night my dad crept into my room, swiped two passies and left a small packet of M&Ms for me. When I woke up I felt overjoyed! "The Passie Fairy had left a whole packet of M&Ms!"I could not wait to tell my dad.

This continued night after night for another week. But each time the Passie Fairy came she would take one more passie than the previous night. Soon I was out of passies and didn't even mind.

It ended when Colleen and my dad explained to me about how they had used the Passie Fairy to take away my passies. A few years later "Do you remember the Passie Fairy?" Dad said to me

"Yes I do."I responded

"Colleen and I were the Passie Fairy" He said

"Ha ha ha ha ha!"I laughed "that is cool!"

"it was funny too" said dad

"That was very clever"I said

We talked more about it and laughed after all that had happened for a while, then went to bed with a few giggles then silence. That was the end of the Passie Fairy.

In conclusion, the Passie Fairy had turned out to be my dad and Colleen. They had used a strategy similar to the Tooth Fairy to take my passies. I enjoyed writing this story very much and hope you have enjoyed it too!
